Agnew Picked for VP Spot

By RAYMOND M. LAHR
MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Richard M. Nixon opened his second campaign for the presidency today by choosing Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland as his running mate.

Nixon, who won the Republican presidential nomination early today on the first ballot, made the surprise announcement less than 11 hours later. "I have now made a decision. I shall recommend to the convention that it nominate for vice president on the Republican ticket Gov. Agnew of Maryland," Nixon said at 12:39 p.m. EDT.

Ratification Tonight
Agnew will be ratified tonight at the final selection of the 29th GOP National Convention. Nixon will make his acceptance speech at the same session and outline the policies he hopes will carry him to the White House.

The 49-year-old Agnew, who nominated Nixon for President at the Republican convention Wednesday night, had not been mentioned among those reported on Nixon's final check list of possibilities for the vice presidential spot.

He said he selected Agnew after setting three requisites: First, a man "qualified to be President, second one who can campaign effectively, and third one who can assume the new responsibilities I will give the vice president particularly in the area of problems of the states and cities."

When Nixon made the announcement before television cameras and microphones, there was hardly a murmur of surprise or elation from the half dozen party workers assembled at the Maryland delegation's headquarters at the San Souci Hotel.

Agnew was not in the hotel at the time. Nixon said: "Gov. Agnew has been informed and he is on his way to the hotel. I will meet with him and after we have met, I will bring him into this room so all of you will have an opportunity to take a picture of him if you like and then answer questions."

Not Central Figure
Agnew had not been a central figure in the speculation about a vice presidential nominee. Most of the talk centered about Sens. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Charles Percy of Illinois, Howard Baker of Tennessee, and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York.

Agnew, who started the year as a charter supporter of Nelson A. Rockefeller, later drifted away from the New York governor.

Many observers dated this to Rockefeller's surprise original announcement that he would not seek the presidency. Agnew had not been notified of this decision and had invited newsmen to his office, to hear Rockefeller enter the race.

Agnew was shaken by Rockefeller's disavowal of candidacy. Rockefeller's aides later claimed they had tried to reach the Maryland governor by phone.

pressure from Rockefeller and his supporters to remain as a favorite son and hold Maryland's 26 delegate votes uncommitted to either major candidate.

On the roll call for the presidential nomination early today, however, Maryland cast 18 votes for Nixon and 8 for Rockefeller.

Nixon had originally announced he would reveal his decision between 10 and 11 a.m. EDT today, but at 11:10, Herbert G. Klein, his press secretary, told reporters Nixon was still undecided.

He said Nixon was "having difficulty" making the choice, and added: "The problem is just weighing the merits of several outstanding candidates."

Nixon then returned to his hotel suite at the Hilton Plaza to confer further with a small group of advisers. He emerged at about 12:35 p.m. and walked into the American Scene room to make the announcement.

Nixon won nomination without any of the rancor that split the party in 1964 and received immediate pledges of support from his two principal rivals—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of

New York and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was stricken Tuesday morning with his sixth heart attack only hours after he addressed the convention by television from Walter Reed Army Hospital, said today he was "delighted" at Nixon's nomination.

In a message to Nixon, Eisenhower said: "You know I am an honorary delegate and could have been there and voted—then the total would have been 693 instead of 692!"

Eisenhower was referring to the 692 total Nixon received on completion of the first roll call before delegations began switching their votes to get on the bandwagon and make the nomination unanimous.

The former vice president's victory was a remarkable comeback for a man whose political career seemed finished after he lost the White House to John F. Kennedy in 1960 and then failed in an election for governor of his native California in 1962.

He won with ease and in a way that left none of the wounds inflicted on party unity by Barry Goldwater's steamroller triumph over Rockefeller four years ago.

Major shifts in the Florida and New Jersey delegations in the final hours helped Nixon to thwart the efforts of Rockefeller and Reagan to deny him a first ballot victory.

Adage for Rock: He Who Hesitates Is Lost

ROCKEFELLER... he who hesitates

By CHARLES DUMAS
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's failure to win the Republican presidential nomination almost surely will be recorded as a classic example of the time-worn adage, "He who hesitates is lost."

If it is possible to blame any one element for Rockefeller's undoing, it is that he entered the race much too late.

"It all goes back to March 21," said former Rep. William E. Miller, the 1964 GOP vice-presidential nominee, who labored in Rockefeller's cause this time.

Not Seeking
On that chilly spring day in Manhattan, Rockefeller jolied political professionals and dismayed ardent admirers by announcing that he would not seek the nomination.

He had been expected to fill the void left by the withdrawal of Michigan Gov. George Romney, whom Rockefeller had encouraged to carry the so-called moderate Republican banner against Nixon.

Rockefeller had been besieged by a wide variety of influential Republicans across the nation, including several governors, to declare his candidacy. They had taken his many previous disclaimers of interest as stalling tactics and had assumed he would now agree that the time had come to make his move.

Not quite six weeks later, Rockefeller went before another news conference, this time in Albany, N.Y., and declared that he had changed his mind—he now would pursue the nomination with "all my heart."

But damage had been done to his prospects. He not only lost valuable campaign time but also the allegiance of supporters.

Not Too Late
If Rockefeller came in too late, it certainly was not with too little.

The multimillionaire mounted a campaign fueled by lavish expenditures of money and energy.

He poured millions of dollars—the latest estimate is $5 million, but rivals believe the figure is much higher—into a dazzling, advertising campaign, a heavily staffed campaign headquarters and a jet-powered air caravan that crisscrossed the nation many times.

Rockefeller pitched for support through an outpouring of professionally produced television spot commercials and a series of full-page ads in major newspapers throughout the country.

He wanted to show his strength in public opinion polls and thereby persuade party leaders that he was the candidate they needed for a sweeping GOP victory in November. After a faltering start, the polls gradually began to turn his way.

Belated Entry
But the serious problem of belated entry evidenced itself in Rockefeller's inability to recapture the loyalty of some of his original backers.

Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, who had led the effort to draw Rockefeller into the race, was a key example. Agnew was said to have soured on Rockefeller after the March 21 statement.

Agnew spurned Rockefeller's plea to keep the Maryland delegation neutral and instead nominated Nixon.

Massachusetts Gov. John A. Volpe, another who had spoken out for Rockefeller in the early going, seconded Nixon's nomination. Rockefeller also had trouble convincing rank-and-file delegates that they should ignore their inclinations toward Nixon in favor of a more-likely winner—himself.

The defeated candidate told a news conference early today, "I think this convention genuinely preferred Dick Nixon and the same was true for the leadership of the party. It's as simple as that."

Asked, however, if he felt he should have run his campaign differently, Rockefeller said, "I'd do it exactly the same."

A Changed Man—Nixon Is a Winner

By MERRIMAN SMITH
MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Richard M. Nixon was a changed man today—he was a winner.

He was the undisputed possessor of the Republican presidential nomination over such glamorous opponents as Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

But more importantly for his self esteem, he was a man who had clawed and climbed from the depths of political despondency after two terrible beatings—for the presidency in 1960 and for the California governorship in 1962.

Furthermore, in personal conversation early today, the former Republican vice president accepted the fact that he had faced a hard election campaign, but he seemed calmly confident of the outcome. After six hard years, he had, in his opinion, thoroughly erased the image of a loser.

During the long night of his triumph, Nixon spent most of the time in his beige-and-gold suite atop the Hilton Plaza Hotel. He packed his wife and daughters off to Convention Hall early in the evening and settled down to work with his personal secretary, Rose Woods, fishing out his own handwritten notes from a weathered brown briefcase as he dictated new passages for his acceptance speech.

After watching the nominating speeches and demonstration in his behalf, Nixon got somewhat fidgety. He decided to go for an automobile ride and invited along two press association reporters who had known him from campaigns past.

With no sirens or flashing lights, Nixon's car slipped out into the traffic shortly before 11:30 p.m. During a 30-minute drive, he took his nomination as a foregone conclusion and talked largely of his plans for the future.

He conceded there had been quite a battle within the party over his running mate, but said that until he could go through three conferences of party leaders after the balloting, the field was wide open; he had made no deals or promises; he wanted a man who could work with him effectively and sympathetically, who shared his philosophy and goals for, after all, the man he chose for vice president might end up as chief executive some day.

One of the first things he planned to tackle after completing his convention chores was a series of planning conferences at a resort outside San Diego, Calif., to which he will fly Saturday. He emphasized the need for the best possible planning for the cities and maintenance of law and order.

As soon after the convention as his San Diego consultations will permit, he wanted to make a flying trip to some of the major cities, not for conventional political rallies but to smooth any feeling which may have been ruffled during the intramural scrimmaging that led to the climactic roll call.

He returned to the hotel in time to watch the last nominating speeches. By this time, his wife, Trish and Julie with her fiance, David Eisenhower, had returned to the penthouse, babbling excitedly about the uproar of the convention hall, the dazzling demonstration in his behalf and how everybody was congratulating them even before the roll call began.

When the final results were announced and the convention exploded across his television screen, Nixon hugged his ladies, shook hands with the men and sat down again to accept the first of many telephone calls of congratulation.

Rockefeller called and they talked at surprising length. Gov. George Romney called. Even Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who Nixon expects will be his Democratic opponent, telephoned.

Then it was time to go before reporters and television cameras in a small living room of a suite on the 15th floor. Instead of making a formal statement, Nixon began his television appearance in a most informal manner, chatting with reporters seated at his feet and sliding into a question and answer session.

The women folks headed for bed, but Nixon's night was far from ended. He plunged into meetings with elder statesmen of the party, listening to their ideas on the vice presidency. These sessions lasted until about 4:30 a.m. Then there were messages to be read, a few more telephone calls and daylight began.

Nine Miners Dead In Kentucky Blast

GREENVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Nine miners, trapped by an explosion in a sprawling new soft coal mine near this western Kentucky community, were found dead by rescue workers early today.

Rescuers toiling with picks and shovels in stifling 90-degree heat reached the miners shortly before 4 a.m. EDT, about 16 hours after the blast occurred. Eight bodies were recovered in the area of the explosion, about two miles inside the shaft and about 180 feet below ground level. Rescuers said the ninth body was found a "considerable distance" closer to the mouth of the mine.

The bodies were carried on stretchers to waiting ambulances and taken to a morgue set up at Muhlenberg Community Hospital in Greenville.

Relatives and friends of the miners, who sat in an office at the mine waiting word on the fate of the men, were escorted out of the building sobbing.

The dead men were identified as Will Rice, 31, of McHenry,

Echols, Ky.; and James Bryant, 25, Cornwell, Ky.

Rescuers said Rice was found closer to the entrance. It was believed he died of suffocation.

Paul Gregory, a foreman on the rescue team which recovered the bodies, said the eight others were killed by an explosion and not a resulting cave-in.

"They were not killed by any cave-in," Gregory said. "They were killed by an explosion of some kind."

The men were trapped at mid-afternoon Wednesday by an explosion in the giant River Queen mine, a Peabody Coal Co. operation opened less than a year ago and located about eight miles north of here. The blast triggered a slate fall.

Rescuers dug through debris in the main tunnel on the slope mine by hand for fear of another cave-in.

J. H. Mosgrove, assistant commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, said the explosion was caused by explosives.

Rosendale: Dogs Issue; Set Hearing

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Declaring that "dogs shouldn't have more rights than people," Town of Rosendale Supervisor Gerald Defelicio, along with the rest of the town board, scheduled a public hearing on a town dog ordinance to take place at the Community Building in Rosendale Sept. 18 at 7 p. m.

The decision was made at last night's regular town board meeting. There was a general discussion on the dog problem where it was pointed out that the dog population of the town has increased in the past few years and that some of the dogs were dangerous, having bitten people many times.

The board will study dog ordinances from the town of Ulster and city of Kingston and draw up a Rosendale ordinance to be presented on the 18th. Suggestions from the town residents will also be solicited at that time.

Bulldozer Sought

The board also agreed last night to advertise for bids for a used bulldozer to be used at the town dump. The town wants at least a 1960 vintage model. Bids will be opened at a special meeting of the town board at 7 p. m. on Sept. 4.

Defelicio, noting the discomfort of the board and the spectators due to the heat last night, suggested that an air conditioner be purchased for the town hall for "a couple of hundred dollars." Mrs. Catherine O'Leary, town clerk, said that an air conditioner had been under consideration for the past ten years. Councilman Glenn Debrosky was assigned to price air conditioners.

Fire protection in the West End fire district was also discussed and Defelicio called for a meeting between the commissioners of the Rosendale and Tillson Fire Companies and the town board concerning protection in that fire district. The area is near the Sadowski Farm toward High Falls.

There was general accord in not setting up a new fire district due to the high insurance costs. The consensus was to try to reach an agreement with the two fire companies to extend their present areas of coverage.

A meeting of elderly persons on recreation for the aged was noted by the board and it was suggested that the town contribute $500 per year toward the program if it proved effective.

Sewer Study Completed

Defelicio also informed the residents that a sewer study by the engineering firm of Brininger and Laros for the town had been completed and the report was now in the hands of the State Health Department in Albany for study. It is expected that there will be a number of separate sewer districts in the town.

Plans for a tax map have been temporarily shelved since Defelicio said he has found other supervisors at odds on the issue.

There were some complaints about the implementation of cablevision in the Bloomington area with the board agreeing that close supervision of the proceedings should be maintained.

Woodstock Board Sets Deadline

Woodstock's Zoning Board of Appeals has placed an August 10 deadline on Lewis R. Wilson to remove a sign and used cars from a parking lot across the street from his former Woodstock Garage on Tinker Street.

The Zoning Board of Appeals, by a unanimous vote, found Wilson guilty of violating the Special Use Permit section of the Zoning Ordinance. The Board claimed that Wilson did not receive permission to erect the sign or to set up a used car business on that site.

Board of Appeals members participating in the unanimous vote were Nelson Shultis, chairman, Mrs. Chester Miller, Benjamin Klaessig and Robert Cross. Lloyd Lund, another member of the Board, disqualified himself on the grounds of conflict of interest. He did not attend the meeting.

Also involved in the discussion were members of the Woodstock Town Board and the Woodstock Planning Board; George Beck, attorney for the Board of Appeals; Abram F. Molyneux, county attorney, and Neil McLeod, enforcement officer in the Town of Woodstock.

Wilson, who is currently operating another service station on Route 375 in West Hurley, is reported considering his next step. There are some rumors that he might fight the action.

Paltz Police Arrest Youth

New Paltz Village Police arrested an 18-year-old Town of Poughkeepsie youth wanted for possession of stolen goods.

Timothy Sadlier was arrested Tuesday after he was seen walking down Main Street in New Paltz.

A warrant, issued by Town of Poughkeepsie law enforcement officials, had been received by New Paltz officials along with a description of the suspect.

Sadlier was picked up and held until Dutchess County Authorities arrived.

Hubert's Representatives Install the Telephones

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey have had extra telephones installed at his Chicago offices despite a strike by electrical workers against the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. The New York Times said today.

The story from Chicago, where the Democratic National Convention will be held later this month, also said in part: Spokesmen for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, Humphrey's rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, complained that lack of telephones was jeopardizing their operation. But they said they had not sought and would not seek to circumvent the striking International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in acquiring extra phones.

Rosendale: Dogs Issue; Set Hearing

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Declaring that "dogs shouldn't have more rights than people," Town of Rosendale Supervisor Gerald Defelicio, along with the rest of the town board, scheduled a public hearing on a town dog ordinance to take place at the Community Building in Rosendale Sept. 18 at 7 p. m.

The decision was made at last night's regular town board meeting. There was a general discussion on the dog problem where it was pointed out that the dog population of the town has increased in the past few years and that some of the dogs were dangerous, having bitten people many times.

The board will study dog ordinances from the town of Ulster and city of Kingston and draw up a Rosendale ordinance to be presented on the 18th. Suggestions from the town residents will also be solicited at that time.

Bulldozer Sought

The board also agreed last night to advertise for bids for a used bulldozer to be used at the town dump. The town wants at least a 1960 vintage model. Bids will be opened at a special meeting of the town board at 7 p. m. on Sept. 4.

Defelicio, noting the discomfort of the board and the spectators due to the heat last night, suggested that an air conditioner be purchased for the town hall for "a couple of hundred dollars." Mrs. Catherine O'Leary, town clerk, said that an air conditioner had been under consideration for the past ten years. Councilman Glenn Debrosky was assigned to price air conditioners.

Fire protection in the West End fire district was also discussed and Defelicio called for a meeting between the commissioners of the Rosendale and Tilton Fire Companies and the town board concerning protection in that fire district. The area is near the Sadowski Farm toward High Falls.

There was general accord in not setting up a new fire district due to the high insurance costs. The consensus was to try to reach an agreement with the two fire companies to extend their present areas of coverage.

A meeting of elderly persons on recreation for the aged was noted by the board and it was suggested that the town contribute $500 per year toward the program if it proved effective.

Sewer Study Completed

Defelicio also informed the residents that a sewer study by the engineering firm of Brinier and Larios for the town had been completed and the report was now in the hands of the State Health Department in Albany for study. It is expected that there will be a number of separate sewer districts in the town.

Signs will be erected on Creek Locks Road to try to prevent teenagers from drag racing. A number of complaints have been received by the Board.

Plans for a tax map have been temporarily shelved since Defelicio said he has found other supervisors at odds on the issue.

There were some complaints about the implementation of cablevision in the Bloomington area with the board agreeing that close supervision of the proceedings should be maintained.

Negroes Riot Across From Site Of Convention

By JOHN W. ROSS

MIAMI (UPI)—Negroes rampaged early today through a wide slum area across the bay from the Republican National Convention in a sudden outburst of violence that left three persons shot and at least 10 more injured from bricks, rocks and beatings.

At least 100 persons were arrested by a 500-man police force armed with carbines and shotguns that moved into the area to put down a wave of looting, burning and brick throwing that began Wednesday. Authorities laid down a blanket of tear gas to break up one unruly mob early today.

A National Guard force of another 500 to 600 men was put on standby alert at a nearby armory. But they were not called out on the streets and about 2:30 a.m., EDT, today an uneasy quiet settled over the area that led many of the policemen to leave the district.

All three shooting victims were Negroes. Police said they shot one man in the leg when he ignored their order to halt when fleeing with an armload of clothes from a dry cleaning establishment. Another man was felled by a sniper's bullet and a third was shot in the back by another Negro, who was arrested, police said.

"This whole thing's crazy as hell," said Miami Police Capt. Jack Maddox in describing the series of outbursts that began following a black power rally early Wednesday evening.

The Negroes ignored on-the-spot pleas by Gov. Claude Kirk and the Rev. Ralph Abernathy. Even as the first ballot mounted toward the nomination of Richard M. Nixon as a candidate for president at Miami Beach six miles away, Negro gangs overturned automobiles and set them afire, smashed in store windows and began looting and throwing rocks, sometimes at each other. Police teargassed one unruly crowd estimated at 400 to 500 when it refused to disperse.

County Metro Mayor Chuck Hall bitterly blamed "outsiders" for the disturbances "because the eyes of the nation are focused on us for the Republican convention."

Kirk, accompanied by Abernathy, who succeeded the slain Dr. Martin Luther King as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, spent more than four hours touring the sprawling Liberty City Negro district where the disorders broke out about 4 p.m. Wednesday. The disturbances subsided briefly during the night, then renewed with gang looting of stores and rock throwing at passing automobiles.

Police officials said the ouster of white newsmen from a black power rally, called to protest the "lily-white makeup" of the GOP convention delegation, started the first outbreak.

ESCORT FOR RIOTER—A bloody rioter is escorted away by Miami police officers after he was injured in a clash with police late yesterday. Rock-throwing, looting bands of Negroes roamed through a large area of Miami's Negro district while Republicans were nominating Richard Nixon as their presidential candidate across Biscayne Bay. Eisenhower Shows Some Progress, Too Early for Predictable Outcome

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's doctors say he has shown some progress since suffering his sixth heart attack but that this early "the outcome is unpredictable."

There have been cardiac irregularities since the attack, described as major, Tuesday morning but they have not been pronounced, doctors reported Wednesday.

They indicated optimism over the 77-year-old, five-star general's condition after his third heart attack in three months and sixth since 1965 by limiting medical bulletins to one a day unless his condition worsens.

Eisenhower has not been allowed to watch the Republican National Convention on television since suffering the attack Tuesday morning, but has received reports from his son, John, who flew to the Capital from Miami Beach.

Presumably the general was not awakened to be told of the nomination early today of Richard M. Nixon as the Republican presidential candidate.

Eisenhower, who gave Nixon a lukewarm endorsement for the presidency eight years ago after Nixon understudied him through two terms, came out strongly for his former vice president in a hospital news conference several weeks ago.

David Eisenhower, the former president's grandson, told newsmen in Miami Beach that he had been told Eisenhower's condition was "normal for this stage and his progress in satisfactory."

"We expect he'll be confined for another 40 days or so and then we hope maybe we'll get him out of the hospital," David said.

He said he got this information from his father and added that since the general had discussed politics he assumed "he's doing okay."

Eisenhower is being given oxygen continuously in his hospital suite and is being fed a salt liquid diet by mouth.

Visitors have been restricted to the immediate family, including, besides John, the general's wife, Mamie. She has been with him since he was brought to Walter Reed last May.

Asked how the latest attack compared with the previous one June 15, which was called major, Eisenhower's doctors said

"equal severity."

They referred to the latest one as myocardial infarction, characterized by damage to the heart muscle.

Administration Raps Steel Industry Again

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The steel industry has taken another one on the chin from the White House.

The Administration, predictably pleaded, says the punch didn't hurt, but steelmakers are a little woozy nonetheless. And more than a little angry.

After a week of mounting pressure, the industry rolled back its latest price increases Wednesday to a percentage acceptable to government economists.

It was the second such pull-back in six years. President John F. Kennedy forced the industry to rescind across-the-board hikes in 1962.

Furnished Catalyst

U. S. Steel Corp., leading steel producer in the world, furnished the catalyst for Wednesday's action when it instituted "selective" increases of 2 1/2 per cent on several products to go along with similar hikes on other lines announced last week.

Other producers, most of whom had boosted prices by 5 per cent, immediately revised their prices downward to remain competitive on the market place.

The current price of steel is about $175 per ton.

The industry said it needed the additional revenue to pay for a new three-year contract with the United Steelworkers union (USW), which will add an estimated $1.5 billion to its labor costs, plus rising taxes and prices of raw materials.

In Austin, Tex., presidential aide Joseph Califano termed the pricing actions "a major victory for the President and Administration."

Calls Hike Inflationary

Johnson last week said he had no quarrel with a 2 1/2 per cent price rise which he contended would cover costs of the new contract. But he labeled as inflationary the 5 per cent, across-the-board increase instituted by Bethlehem Steel Corp., No. 2 American producer behind U.S. Steel.

"The President welcomes the substantial improvement from the general inflationary threat that was posed last week," White House press secretary George Christian said in a statement Wednesday. He said the adjusted price rates "saved the American consumer some $500 million of inflation."

But U.S. Steel again took sharp exception to the implication that steel prices have had or would have an inflationary impact.

"Steel prices are not the cause of inflation," the industry bellwether said. "This is now almost, but not quite, universally recognized. With the price changes in the last 10 years, since late 1958, amounting to only about 5 1/2 per cent while the cost of living went up about 20 per cent, it should be clear to everyone that it is necessary to look elsewhere to find the cost of living culprit."

The firm said the price increases "fall short of meeting the new employment costs" and made "no provision for increases in other steel company operating expenses."

Named to Bench

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Bertram Harnett, a lawyer from Grest Neck, has been named by Gov. Rockefeller to the State Supreme Court post vacated July 31 by William R. Brennan Wednesday to serve until next Jr.

Harnett, 45, was named Wednesday to serve until next Dec. 31 in the 10th Judicial District, which comprises Nassau and Suffolk counties.

Harnett is president of the Nassau County Legal Aid Society and board chairman of the Mitchell Field Development Corp.

With the price changes in the last 10 years, since late 1958, amounting to only about 5½ per cent while the cost of living went up about 20 per cent, it should be clear to everyone that it is necessary to look elsewhere to find the cost of living culprit."

The firm said the price increases "fall short of meeting the new employment costs" and made "no provision for increases in other steel company operating expenses."

LBJ and Steel Price

Lyndon Johnson should talk about the steel companies raising their prices. He's the biggest price-raiser of all, and his government the costliest the country has ever had. Only last month, he slapped a 10 per cent surtax on the taxpayer, and if that isn't a price rise, then what is it? And even with the extra $10 billion it will yield, it's not likely that the U.S. deficit will be lowered. Last week, Uncle Sam was up to his neck in red ink to the tune of a $25.4 billion deficit, three times as big as it was in 1967, and larger than in any year since World War II.

The President feels that the steel price rise will bring on inflation. Perhaps it will help to, but the spiral already was started some time ago when the Great Society began to tap the till. On the same day, the steel prices went up, so did the cost of living. It now stands at 4.2 per cent over a year ago. The steel companies had nothing to do with this, of course. So who is responsible if it isn't the Johnson Administration? Much as the steel increase is to be regretted, Bethlehem Steel & Co. are mere pikers at starting inflation compared to the Great Society.

The introduction of computerized equipment by CBS for television coverage of the Republican National Convention next month brought about a strike of electrical workers in Miami Beach. Computers have become standard equipment for projecting election results. Denying them would handicap the network coverage.

Sweden has established a Klotterplank, or scribble board, in a Stockholm underground shopping concourse to provide an all-weather facility for self-expression. Instead of scribbling taunts and mottoes on walls and fences, the restless can use the board. It sounds like one way of channelling steam harmlessly and publicly.

Hindsight is the best sight of all and Alderman-at-Large Bob Gallo displayed plenty of this with his rush to Western Union to rocket telegrams to state and city officials in the wake of Monday's double-tragedy on the East Chester By-pass.

The move made for a good headline and filled the local airwaves with incessant conversation.

However, when the chips were down—at Tuesday night's common council meeting — Alderman-at-Large Gallo made no move to raise the question of the faulty traffic light, demanded no probe and castigated no one. Wha' happened?

CITY OF KINGSTON
Commission on Human Relations
467 Broadway
Kingston, N. Y. 12401

Editor, The Freeman:

Because we live in the United States, we have certain rights which are protected under our laws. We all know of our American rights and that in many countries these rights cannot be practiced. As the Human Relations Director of our city, I intend to protect these rights. However, we must all as individuals accept our responsibility in the struggle for human freedom. All Kingstonsians must cooperate and work together in preserving the right of free speech, assembly and press. We must work for a city without selfishness; without prejudice; until we have a city of understanding. Individuals must concern themselves with that which affects our fellow men—as there is only one race; the human race.

I ask all groups to be active in spurring programs for the betterment of understanding among all peoples. We must eliminate prejudices among the relationships of our citizens. The goal is goodwill among religious and racial groups and it is a never ending battle. The Chamber of Commerce and other local clubs must help so that we may truly take pride and joy in our city. We need the thinking power of all our residents to lead us on and to help with our difficulties.

I would like to answer three old myths concerning Negroes, and they are the following:

1. Lazy, won't work. This obviously cannot be true as the Negro was brought here from Africa as a slave, starting over 300 years ago. He was not brought here to sit around idly. He was used as a worker, to do the hard, back-breaking work in the fields. Even today most Negroes are not white collar workers. The work they do is mainly physical, hard manual labor.

2. The Negro won't fight.

In World War II, not too many Negroes served in combat outfits. However, a generation later, out of a population of 10%, we find that about 22% of the soldiers fighting in Vietnam are Negroes.

My conclusion is that the Negro was as good a fighting man in World War II as he is today in Vietnam. The Negro has served honorably in all wars from the Civil War to the present.

3. The Negro is happy and is satisfied with his lot in life! He smiles and laughs a lot. My feeling is that he laughs because if he does not laugh he will cry. What is there to be happy about? Living in a slum ghetto, finding it difficult to get a decent job so that he can support himself and his family in dignity as befits everyone in our American society. The Negro carries a terrible feeling of frustration. He sees little hope for the future and without hope a human being is lost and is isolated from the rest of our great nation.

The 3 main problems in America are jobs, education and housing. All minority groups, the Negro, Puerto Rican, Mexican American, American Indian, etc. must be guaranteed equal opportunity in these three fields. We must in good conscience do no less than this. Starting with the Supreme Court Civil Rights Decisions of 1954 and continuing into the present, we now have just about all the legislation we need in these fields. However, over and above these material things, there are intangible things.

What cannot be legislated is fellowship, brotherhood, love. The brotherly love that one fellow human being has for another. In our various religions we have been taught that we are our brothers keeper. How many of us practice this? I would ask the following question. How many of us have just one Negro friend? I do not mean by this going to various meetings and spending a few hours with the Negroes that may be there. I ask, do we ever have a Negro in our home to break bread or to have a cup of coffee together? Do we ever go to a Negro's home and spend some time? In other words, how many of us ever socialize with our fellow American of another creed, color or of a different ethnic background?

Each of us knows if he practices this or not. To those of you who do not, I would say this. Try it, you might be surprised and agreeably so. You might find yourselves simply enjoying this new and interesting experience. You may find that, as I have found, that figuratively speaking, you will become color-blind, that the color of an individual is of absolutely no importance. When this day comes, the great democracy in which we live will be even greater and that all of us will be living a much fuller and richer life.

Sincerely yours,
IRVING BELL

Dem Delegate Strife

By BRUCE B. DETLEFSEN
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — While the Republican national convention at Miami Beach held the political spotlight this week, Democrats in New York State worked to remove the fuse from a potentially explosive second meeting of their party's State Committee.

The June meeting at which 65 at-large delegates were chosen to go to the Democratic convention this month in Chicago was climaxed by a walkout of supporters of Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

McCarthy had won 62 of the 123 presidential delegates elected in the primary. The senator's forces said they were entitled to half of the at-large votes, but party leaders gave them only 15%.

The apportionment of at-large delegates also irked upstate Democrats, who claimed they lost out to the New York City bloc. In addition, representatives of minority groups complained.

Seven Negroes were given half votes. Puerto Ricans received none. Against this background, State Chairman John J. Burns scheduled a second committee meeting for Thursday, Aug. 15 in Syracuse.

The stated purpose is principally to give a greater voice to Negroes and Puerto Ricans, but the McCarthy backers also hope to gain ground.

A spokesman for the Coalition For a Democratic Alternative, which is running the McCarthy drive in New York, said this week the group still is "definitely not satisfied" with its allotment of votes and would strive "for every one we can get."

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Burns said the state chairman is optimistic at least about finding spots for members of the two minority groups.

Burns' success, however, depends much upon powerful county chairmen in New York City who control distribution of many at-large votes.

Some at-large delegates, such as former Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York, have resigned. Others who had a full vote have agreed to accept a half vote.

This permits some maneuvering by county chairmen willing to add Negroes and Puerto Ricans. It does not necessarily mean they will award votes to Negroes and Puerto Ricans who prefer McCarthy to Vice President Hubert Humphrey, the senator's principal opponent.

The Coalition for a Democratic Alternative has scheduled a meeting of its leaders in New York City prior to the State Committee's meeting, which, they note, coincides with "McCarthy Day" across the country.

If these leaders remain adamant about their demands, and the minority groups are not awarded delegates they consider truly representative of their interests, then the second meeting could produce as much rancor as the first.

That Goldwater Imprint on the GOP

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
MIAMI BEACH (NEA) — The potent phenomenon of California's Gov. Ronald Reagan, late-hour formal entry into the presidential race, demonstrates that the Goldwater mark upon the Republican party was a deeper imprint than many have said.

It is ironic that Barry Goldwater himself should have spent much energy dispatching letters and telegrams to southern and other delegates, trying to counter the Reagan force and urging a vote for Richard Nixon.

For Reagan was the natural inheritor of Goldwater's once amazing strength within his party. Even though that strength dwindled greatly after the Arizona's severe defeat in the 1964 election, it would have been wholly plausible for him to have backed Reagan from then on.

That Reagan prospered politically without that support seems to validate a theory little attended to but quietly advanced since 1964 by several political analysts. It is this:

Nothing of consequence that happens to a political party is ever quite rubbed out. It leaves an indelible mark and alters a party's make-up irretrievably.

The widely heard judgment after 1964 was that the Republicans had had their long-desired fling at arch-conservatism, had gotten it out of their systems, and would thereafter return to the kind of reasonable diversity that supposedly characterized them in the two or three decades before.

To an extent this was true. The bitter ideological warfare of four years ago is gone. Delegates to the 1968 convention here did not come with the hot-eyed fervor of Goldwater crusaders. They appeared from the outset to be individuals pliable enough to listen to the arguments of others.

Yet the Reagan factor was always a key element in the presidential struggle, both at Miami Beach and in the long months preceding.

His latent power in the South was the strongest hangover from 1964. There the Goldwater dream never has MIAMI — It's been a great week in Miami. The political atmosphere has been hot, the ocean cool, the bands exciting, the hotel lobbies jam-packed, the scramble for tickets frustrating.

When it's all over, however, the cold inescapable fact is that you, the taxpayer, will have to pay for it all. You'll have to pay for the orange-colored elephant dressed in a mini skirt, the sky-writers that zoom over the ocean front, the red-white-and-blue decorations and all the other visible hoopla. In addition you'll have to pay for the invisible hoopla—the TV time, the organizers sent by the candidates to each state, the baby-sitters that watch each delegation, the travel back and forth, and many more state and congressional campaigns and finally the cost of the big showdown in November.

This may be a very killjoy look at politics. Certainly it's something the public doesn't know. But the fact is that the public will be paying for these campaign costs through continuing high taxes and continuing tax loopholes for the oil companies, the real estate lobbies and probably high-priced drugs. For tax loopholes for some mean higher taxes for you.

Here is how it has worked in the past:

Kennedy's Pledge

In 1960 John F. Kennedy, campaigning for President, had given a pledge that he would curtail the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance which permits oil companies to pay between 4 and 9 per cent taxes, whereas other corporations pay 52 per cent.

After making this pledge, however, and as he got deeper into the presidential campaign, Kennedy was appalled at the mounting costs of being elected President. Though a wealthy man, he faced campaign debts running into the millions.

In the end, a sizeable part of that campaign debt was paid off by oil men at a huge $1,000 a plate dinner organized by the Murchisons of Texas.

After that President Kennedy pretty much ignored his pledge to close the loophole in oil taxes. He submitted a proposal which was so ambiguous that Congress ignored it.

Another illustration was what happened when Eisenhower ran for President. One of his biggest backers was Sid Richardson, the big Texas oil man, a Democrat. At first Richardson tried to persuade Ike, to run as a Democrat.

When that failed, Sid was quite willing to back a Republican; for oil is thicker than politics.

He and other oil men put up all the pre-convention expenses for Eisenhower at the Commodore Hotel in New York, later a sizeable part of the election campaign expenses.

The investment paid off. After Ike was elected, he signed the tidelands oil bill which President Truman had vetoed, appointed a panel, largely dominated by oil men, to make a study of oil import quotas, and at first gave his blessing to a natural gas bill, taking the regulation of gas prices away from the Federal Power Commission, until the lobbyists spoiled it by contributing $5,000 to an Eisenhower dinner and trying to bribe Sen. Case of South Dakota.

Seldom have the oil lobbies had their way so blatantly as in the Eisenhower administration. And whether he realized it or not, the oil companies figured that their advance investment in paying Republican campaign debts was well worth while.

Drug Manufacturers

This is almost certain to happen after the Republican convention today, and after the Democratic convention in Chicago. The system is completely bi-partisan. And it

Ten and Twenty Years Ago

Aug. 8, 1948 — Martin S. Weise, of New Paltz, was injured in a motorcycle accident on Route 32, the third area cycle mishap in three weeks.

The attendance to date, at the Ulster County Artists Association exhibit in Lawton Park was reported at nearly 2,000.

Raymond Hicks, of Lake Hill, died at Kingston Hospital.

Brother Jacques Nary, a member of the Marist Order, Poughkeepsie, was injured in a fall from a truck in the Highland area.

Aug. 8, 1958 — District Game protector William J. Goodman announced that an estimated 1,000 fish were killed in Stony Clove Creek, allegedly as the result of some construction work going on in Chichester.

The water board announced that the recently reported leakage of five per cent in Kingston's water system was far less than that in other cities.

isn't always the oil boys who pay and profit. There are others.

At Miami the big drug manufacturers seem to be among the generous backers; also there's an interesting question regarding the long row of millionaires' yachts where various state chairmen and key delegates are being entertained. How much will the yacht owners discreetly influence future legislation? Some are entertaining just for the kick of entertaining bigwigs. Some are entertaining for influence.

But regarding drugs, there are no question marks. With the government paying for hundreds of millions of dollars worth of drugs under the Medicare program, the National Association of Pharmaceutical Manufacturers has become one of the most powerful lobbies in politics.

The chief issue is: the price of medicine. The drug lobby wants medicine purchased not by its generic names, which are dirt cheap, but by the highly advertised trademarked names which you see on television and which are considerably more expensive. The drugs are just the same. Only the name is different.

This has been one of the big debates in Congress and the chief champion of the drug lobby is Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Nebr. Significantly Hruska has been appointed on Richard Nixon's select nine-man board of congressional advisers.

Eugene Beasley, head of the Eli Lilly Drug Company, is also on Nixon's economic committee, while two executives of Warner-Lambert, William Lasdon and Elmer Bost, are very close to Nixon and put up $8,000 between them to finance two of Nixon's committees. "Congress 66" and the "Committee of the Loyal Opposition."

But whether it's drugs or oil or real estate, big labor or big farmers, the tab for the American political convention must be paid by someone. Also the ever-escalating cost of elections must be paid. We cannot become either a nation of millionaire candidates for public office or of poor-mouth candidates who put themselves in hock to big business or big labor for the future.

The Corrupt Practices Act, supposed to regulate the expenses of political campaigns, is the most tattered law on the statute books.

It needs drastic revision. This column will report further on this vital question.

What cannot be legislated is fellowship, brotherhood, love. The brotherly love that one fellow human being has for another. In our various religions we have been taught that we are our brothers keeper. How many of us practice this? I would ask the following question. How many of us have just one Negro friend? I do not mean by this going to various meetings and spending a few hours with the Negroes that may be there. I ask, do we ever have a Negro in our home to break bread or to have a cup of coffee together? Do we ever go to a Negro's home and spend some time? In other words, how many of us ever socialize with our fellow American of another creed, color or of a different ethnic background? Each of us knows if he practices this or not. To those of you who do not, I would say this. Try it, you might be surprised and agreeably so. You might find yourselves simply enjoying this new and interesting experience. You may find that, as I have found, that figuratively speaking, you will become color-blind, that the color of an individual is of absolutely no importance. When this day comes, the great democracy in which we live will be even greater and that all of us will be living a much fuller and richer life.

Sincerely yours,

Dem Delegate Strife

By BRUCE B. DETLEFSEN
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — While the Republican national convention at Miami Beach held the political spotlight this week, Democrats in New York State worked to remove the fuse from a potentially explosive second meeting of their party's State Committee.

The June meeting at which 65 at-large delegates were chosen to go to the Democratic convention this month in Chicago was climaxed by a walkout of supporters of Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

McCarthy had won 62 of the 123 presidential delegates elected in the primary. The senator's forces said they were entitled to half of the at-large votes, but party leaders gave them only 15%.

The apportionment of at-large delegates also irked upstate Democrats, who claimed they lost out to the New York City bloc. In addition, representatives of minority groups complained.

Seven Negroes were given half votes. Puerto Ricans received none.

Against this background, State Chairman John J. Burqs scheduled a second committee meeting for Thursday, Aug. 15 in Syracuse.

The stated purpose is principally to give a greater voice to Negroes and Puerto Ricans, but the McCarthy backers also hope to gain ground.

A spokesman for the Coalition For a Democratic Alternative, which is running the McCarthy drive in New York, said this week the group still is "definitely not satisfied" with its allotment of votes and would strive "for every one we can get."

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Burns said the state chairman is optimistic at least about finding spots for members of the two minority groups.

Burns' success, however, depends much upon powerful county chairmen in New York City who control distribution of many at-large votes.

Some at-large delegates, such as former Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York, have resigned. Others who had a full vote have agreed to accept a half vote.

This permits some maneuvering by county chairmen willing to add Negroes and Puerto Ricans. It does not necessarily mean they will award votes to Negroes and Puerto Ricans who prefer McCarthy to Vice President Hubert Humphrey, the senator's principal opponent.

The Coalition for a Democratic Alternative has scheduled a meeting of its leaders in New York City prior to the State Committee's meeting, which, they note, coincides with "McCarthy Day" across the country.

If these leaders remain adamant about their demands, and the minority groups are not awarded delegates they consider truly representative of their interests, then the second meeting could produce as much rancor as the first.

That Goldwater Imprint on the GOP

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

MIAMI BEACH (NEA) — The potent phenomenon of California's Gov. Ronald Reagan, late-hour formal entry into the presidential race, demonstrates that the Goldwater mark upon the Republican party was a deeper imprint than many have said.

It is ironic that Barry Goldwater—himself should have spent much energy dispatching letters and telegrams to southern and other delegates, trying to counter the Reagan force and urging a vote for Richard Nixon.

For Reagan was the natural inheritor of Goldwater's once amazing strength within his party. Even though that strength dwindled greatly after the Arizona's severe defeat in the 1964 election, it would have been wholly plausible for him to have backed Reagan from then on.

That Reagan prospered politically without that support seems to validate a theory little attended to but quietly advanced since 1964 by several political analysts. It is this:

Nothing of consequence that happens to a political party is ever quite rubbed out. It leaves an indelible mark and alters a party's make-up irretrievably.

The widely heard judgment after 1964 was that the Republicans had had their long-desired fling at arch-conservatism, had gotten it out of their systems, and would thereafter return to the kind of reasonable diversity that supposedly characterized them in the two or three decades before.

To an extent this was true. The bitter ideological warfare of four years ago is gone. Delegates to the 1968 convention here did not come with the hot-eyed fervor of Goldwater crusaders. They appeared from the outset to be individuals pliable enough to listen to the arguments of others.

Yet the Reagan factor was always a key element in the presidential struggle, both at Miami Beach and in the long months preceding.

His latent power in the South was the strongest hangover from 1964. There the Goldwater dream never has been allowed to die altogether. In Reagan it lives on, giving hope of racial and other conservatism.

It was, of course, relatively easy for the Goldwater-Reagan stamp to be put on the party's southern wing, not alone because of their views but because there the party is young and growing and has no other real heritage.

But the Reagan force as successor to Goldwaterism has also endured in the West and, in lesser degree, in such old Goldwater strongholds as Illinois, Indiana and the border territory.

Most seasoned GOP professionals have been saying since 1964 that it was no longer major that its driving heart was gone, that Reagan himself was too green and hence implausible as a candidate.

Nevertheless, it can fairly be said that the whole 1968 campaign was in a real sense built around this phenomenon—indicating its lasting power. Nixon won many southerners not by repudiating Reagan but by pointing to his 1964 help for Goldwater and saying that Reagan's newness made the former vice president the only practical alternative.

He won middle-ground Republicans by painting Reagan as a man who would once more take their party down the disastrous 1964 road. The mere use of the tactic was proof Goldwater's imprint endured.

The events in Miami Beach heavily underscored the fact, Nixon, having feared Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for the hold he might get on the general voting public, found Reagan the greater practical menace. Rockefeller, hobbled on his own, talked tirelessly of Reagan as the lever able to pry Nixon's strength from him and swing the convention elsewhere.

Goldwater, wanting Nixon, gave the irony a final, wicked turn when he addressed the convention in the terms and tones of 1964. It could have been the nominating speech for Ronald Reagan. Wishing to blur the old mark at least a little, Goldwater only etched it more sharply. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Drew Pearson Says

Convention Bills Do Mount ... And Who Really Pays Them

MIAMI — It's been a great week in Miami. The political atmosphere has been hot, the ocean cool, the bands exciting, the hotel lobbies jam-packed, the scramble for tickets frustrating.

When it's all over, however, the cold inescapable fact is that you, the taxpayer, will have to pay for it all. You'll have to pay for the orange-colored elephant dressed in a mini skirt, the sky-writers that zoom over the ocean front, the red-white-and-blue decorations and all the other visible hoopla. In addition you'll have to pay for the invisible hoopla—the TV time, the organizers sent by the candidates to each state, the baby-sitters that watch each delegation, the travel back and forth, and many more state and congressional campaigns and finally the cost of the big showdown in November.

This may be a very killjoy look at politics. Certainly it's something the public doesn't know. But the fact is that the public will be paying for these campaign costs through continuing high taxes and continuing tax loopholes for the oil companies, the real estate lobbies and probably high-priced drugs. For tax loopholes for some mean higher taxes for you.

Here is how it has worked in the past:

Kennedy's Pledge
In 1960 John F. Kennedy, campaigning for President, had given a pledge that he would curtail the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance which permits oil companies to pay between 4 and 9 per cent taxes, whereas other corporations pay 52 per cent.

After making this pledge, however, and as he got deeper into the presidential campaign, Kennedy was appalled at the mounting costs of being elected President. Though a wealthy man, he faced campaign debts running into the millions.

In the end, a sizeable part of that campaign debt was paid off by oil men at a huge $1,000 a plate dinner organized by the Murchisons of Texas.

After that President Kennedy pretty much ignored his pledge to close the loophole in oil taxes. He submitted a proposal which was so ambiguous that Congress ignored it.

Another illustration was what happened when Eisenhower ran for President. One of his biggest backers was Sid Richardson, the big Texas oil man, a Democrat. At first Richardson tried to persuade Ike to run as a Democrat.

When that failed, Sid was quite willing to back a Republican; for oil is thicker than politics.

He and other oil men put up all the pre-convention expenses for Eisenhower at the Commodore Hotel in New York, later a sizeable part of the election campaign expenses.

The investment paid off. After Ike was elected, he signed the tidelands oil bill which President Truman had vetoed, appointed a panel, largely dominated by oil men, to make a study of oil import quotas, and at first gave his blessing to a natural gas bill, taking the regulation of gas prices away from the Federal Power Commission, until the lobbyists spoiled it by contributing $5,000 to an Eisenhower dinner and trying to bribe Sen. Case of South Dakota.

Seldom have the oil lobbies had their way so blatantly as in the Eisenhower administration. And whether Ike realized it or not, the oil companies figured that their advance investment in paying Republican campaign debts was well worth while.

Drug Manufacturers
This is almost certain to happen after the Republican convention today, and after the Democratic convention in Chicago. The system is completely bi-partisan. And it isn't always the oil boys who pay and profit. There are others.

At Miami the big drug manufacturers seem to be among the generous backers; also there's an interesting question regarding the long row of millionaires' yachts where various state chairmen and key delegates are being entertained. How much will the yacht owners discreetly influence future legislation? Some are entertaining just for the kick of entertaining bigwigs. Some are entertaining for influence.

But regarding drugs, there are no question marks. With the government paying for hundreds of millions of dollars worth of drugs under the Medicare program, the National Association of Pharmaceutical Manufacturers has become one of the most powerful lobbies in politics.

The chief issue is: the price of medicine. The drug lobby wants medicine purchased not by its generic names, which are dirt cheap, but by the highly advertised trademarked names which you see on television and which are considerably more expensive. The drugs are just the same. Only the name is different.

This has been one of the big debates in Congress and the chief champion of the drug lobby is Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Nebr. Significantly Hruska has been appointed on Richard Nixon's select nine-man board of congressional advisers.

Ten and Twenty Years Ago
Aug. 8, 1948 — Martin S. Weise, of New Paltz, was injured in a motorcycle accident on Route 32, the third area cycle mishap in three weeks.

The attendance to date, at the Ulster County Artists Association exhibit in Lawton Park was reported at nearly 2,000.

Raymond Hicks, of Lake Hill, died at Kingston Hospital.

Brother Jacques Nary, a member of the Marist Order, Poughkeepsie, was injured in a fall from a truck in the Highland area.

Aug. 8, 1958 — District Game protector William J. Goodman announced that an estimated 1,000 fish were killed in Stony Clove Creek, allegedly as the result of some construction work going on in Chichester.

The water board announced that the recently reported leakage of five per cent in Kingston's water system was far less than that in other cities.

But whether it's drugs or oil or real estate, big labor or big farmers, the tab for the American political convention must be paid by someone. Also the ever-escalating cost of elections must be paid. We cannot become either a nation of millionaire candidates for public office or of poor-mouth candidates who put themselves in hock to big business or big labor for the future.

The Corrupt Practices Act, supposed to regulate the expenses of political campaigns, is the most tattered law on the statute books.

It needs drastic revision. This column will report further on this vital question.

UNITY CALL—Standing on the rostrum at Convention Hall early Wednesday after Richard Nixon's nomination as Republican presidential candidate, Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, unsuccessful in his pursuit of the nomination, calls for party unity and the formation of a solid Republican front for Nixon. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

New Dick Nixon— And New Strategy

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The new Nixon will employ a new campaign strategy in his second bid for the White House.

The former vice president will concentrate on pivotal industrial states going into what one of his aides calls "hostile territory"—including big city ghettos.

It will be a reversal of Nixon's 1960 strategy of visiting every state in the Union. That plan carried Nixon to defeat by John F. Kennedy.

To free himself for his new approach, Nixon has been working hard to unify the Republican party. He wants to be able to count on solid GOP backing so that he doesn't have to scatter his efforts, patching up party wounds and stirring up party enthusiasm when he should be going after the swing votes which could mean the difference between defeat and victory.

To further that unity, Nixon is considering a flying tour of some of the nation's cities to help pull the party together and heal any wounds left from the convention battles.

There are few wounds to heal. If unity wins elections, Nixon has it in large measure at the convention. He has a "harmony" platform, endorsed by all candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, and pledges of support from Govs. Ronald Reagan and Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The 1960 strategy was devoted to considerable campaigning at GOP rallies, aiming at stirring up Republican enthusiasm with the idea that it would carry over on election day and bring victory. This year, his strategy will be to count on GOP enthusiasm from the start and go after the independent, Democratic and minority votes needed to win.

How World Reacted to Nixon Choice

The world learned of Richard M. Nixon's Republican Party nomination for president and promptly took sides.

In Stockholm, the newspaper Expressen published the news and an editorial calling it "deplorable... Richard Nixon represents the most disgusting sides of American politics—where the lack of principles and ideas thrive."

In Hong Kong, businessman and philanthropist Dhun Ruttonjee said, "Richard Nixon is the right man for the Republicans."

If he's elected, I don't think there will be any changes in U.S. policy toward Asia."

In a South Vietnam farm district, President Nguyen Van Thieu finished a drink of coconut juice, heard the nomination news from Miami Beach by radio and said, "Congratulations. I wish him well."

In Rio de Janeiro, Sen. Mario Martins said Nixon in the White House would signal little hope for peace because "peace will continue being seen through inverted binocular lenses. Nixon is another defender of the big stick philosophy... But Sen. Raunundo Padilha said, "I expect Nixon will end the Vietnam war like Eisenhower ended the Korean conflict."

In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency Tass briefly reported the nomination in Miami Beach without comment. But it carried a long report on what it called "racial disturbances" in the convention city.

Idiot Horns, Powerful Lungs— GOP Demonstrations—'68 Style

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The demonstrations for the candidates were unmannerly, undignified, ridiculous. Their artificiality was so ludicrous as to be acutely embarrassing.

Not, of course, at this 29th national convention of the Republican party. When former President Dwight D. Eisenhower made those remarks in June 1966, he was referring to past conventions. He hoped and urged that things would be different at future conventions, including this one.

But, as the French say, the more things change, the more they stay the same. Anyway, there were times Wednesday night in Convention Hall when it seemed to be so.

If the demonstrations for Nelson Rockefeller and Richard M. Nixon weren't at least as noisy as any previous ones in convention history, it certainly was not the fault of the demonstrators with their idiot horns and powerful lungs.

The Republicans this year had adopted some new rules designed to make demonstrations seem less embarrassingly ludcious and, incidentally, easier on the eyes and ears, especially ears.

Rules are made to be broken, of course, and broken they were. The rules said demonstrators must be limited to delegates and alternates, with no outside talent except for bands. No more of this business of opening the gates to professional or amateur performers without floor credentials.

It must be said that the followers of Harold E. Stassen operated strictly according to the rules.

Stassen was nominated in a poignant speech by his nephew, J. Robert Stassen, who said there would be no demonstration unless the delegates wanted to do something spontaneous. The delegates did get up and applaud, and a couple of them, Halvorson Austin and Russell A. Austin Jr., of Washington, staged a two-man parade down the center aisle.

The demonstrations for Ronald Reagan and George Romney generated a great deal more noise, especially Reagan's. It marked the first massive balloon descent of the evening. Overhead nets suddenly opened, and thousands of gaudy balloons floated to the floor where the demonstrators knocked themselves out knocking out the balloons.

Chairman Gerald P. Ford had no real trouble quelling these demonstrations in time to keep the convention business on schedule.

But the time came, at 9:05 p.m., EDT, to introduce the governor of Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer, who was to nominate Nelson Rockefeller.

No sooner had he said "Pennsylvania" than bedlam broke out and the hall became a madhouse of dissonant, ear-deafening noise. Rockefeller signs blossomed instantly in the galleries and on the floor, and those idiot horns started sounding off.

What about the rules denying all but delegates from demonstrations? Scores, maybe hundreds, of the "We want Rocky" chanters were teen-agers who couldn't possibly have had floor credentials. One Rocky-for-president parader was a four-year-old child.

Finally Ford was able to carry the convention business to the moment when Richard M. Nixon was to be nominated by Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland.

The Rockefeller had somehow opened the doors of the convention to scores of youngsters chanting "We want Rocky." Little ones were less apparent amongst the Nixon demonstrators, but the new rules fared no better.

Nixon's Team Kept Its Cool

Editor's note: H. Clark Bell, Woodstock attorney, is attending the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach, Fla.

His exclusive, on-the-spot coverage of convention events, follows:

By H. CLARK BELL

Richard M. Nixon is a highly sophisticated and professionally attuned political tactician. He proved it last night. He and his smooth functioning organization had a detailed game plan to bring in the votes and apparently all of the alternatives had been carefully thought out.

He was magnificently prepared to wage a winning convention bid and he did so making no major mistakes. During the evening rumors flooded the convention floor. Tempers flared and the infighting was fierce at times. The Rockefeller-Reagan forces were desperate in an attempt to stop Nixon from a first ballot victory.

Stuck to Its Plan

Through it all the Nixon team never lost its cool. It stuck to its game plan and brought in the votes. With the nomination firmly under his belt, Nixon's first job is to perform a delicate balancing act in selecting a vice presidential nominee.

Nixon needs a man acceptable to the southern and western states in order to avoid conservative Republican and Democratic defections to the third party candidate, former Governor George Wallace of Alabama.

The Nixon people, apparently are looking over their right shoulder with far more political concern than they are to the left.

Nixon and the Republican party also need a man acceptable to the urban areas. A man qualified and experienced in urban affairs. A man who can attract independent and Democratic votes in the industrial centers. There are of course additional political considerations but these two main requirements appear to be at war with each other.

The list of possible nominees include Gov. Rhodes of Ohio, Gov. Volpe of Massachusetts, permanent chairman: Rep. Ford of Michigan, Sen. Baker of Tennessee, Gov. Agnew of Maryland, Mayor Lindsay of New York City, Sen. Hatfield of Oregon, Sen. Percy of Illinois, Sen. Tower of Texas and of course, the three R's, Romney, Rockefeller and Reagan.

First Major Decision

As the convention has unfolded, the selection of a vice presidential nominee has developed more interest and excitement here in Miami Beach than the fight for the top slot.

The lights of the Statler Hilton Hotel, Nixon's headquarters, burned through the night. Downstairs, happy workers drank, danced and partied. But upstairs high party leaders came and went to the chambers of Richard M. Nixon. They gave advice, spoke of support of their candidates for the vice presidential nomination and in some cases, they spoke strongly against the nomination of possible nominees.

This is the first major decision for Richard Millhouse Nixon the brand new Republican nominee for president in 1968. It may be his most politically crucial decision between now and November. Upon it may hinge the difference between Republican defeat and Democrat victory at the polls.

We in Miami will be watching Mr. Nixon carefully today.

gaudy balloons floated to the floor where the demonstrators knocked themselves out knocking out the balloons.

Chairman Gerald P. Ford had no real trouble quelling these demonstrations in time to keep the convention business on schedule.

But the time came at 9:05 p.m., EDT, to introduce the governor of Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer, who was to nominate Nelson Rockefeller.

No sooner had he said "Pennsylvania" than bedlam broke out and the hall became a madhouse of dissonant, ear-destroying noise. Rockefeller signs blossomed instantly in the galleries and on the floor, and those idiot horns started sounding off.

What about the rules denying all but delegates from demonstrations? Scores, maybe hundreds, of the "We want Rocky" chanters were teenagers who couldn't possibly have had floor credentials. One Rocky-for-president parader was a four-year-old child.

Finally Ford was able to carry the convention business to the moment when Richard M. Nixon was to be nominated by Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland.

The Rockefeller had some-how opened the doors of the convention to scores of youngsters chanting "We want Rocky." Little ones were less apparent amongst the Nixon demonstrators, but the new rules fared no better.

Nixon's Team Kept Its Cool

Editor's note: H. Clark Bell, Woodstock attorney, is attending the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach, Fla.

His exclusive, on-the-spot coverage of convention events, follows:

By H. CLARK BELL

Richard M. Nixon is a highly sophisticated and professionally attuned political tactician. He proved it last night. He and his smooth functioning organization had a detailed game plan to bring in the votes and apparently all of the alternatives had been carefully thought out.

He was magnificently prepared to wage a winning convention bid and he did so making no major mistakes. During the evening rumors flooded the convention floor. Tempers flared and the infighting was fierce at times. The Rockefeller-Reagan forces were desperate in an attempt to stop Nixon from a first ballot victory.

Stuck to Its Plan

Through it all the Nixon team never lost its cool. It stuck to its game plan and brought in the votes. With the nomination firmly under his belt, Nixon's first job is to perform a delicate balancing act in selecting a vice presidential nominee.

Nixon needs a man acceptable to the southern and western states in order to avoid conservative-Republican and Democratic defections to the third party candidate, former Governor George Wallace of Alabama.

The Nixon people, apparently are looking over their right shoulder with far more political concern than they are to the regards to the activities over the left shoulder.

Nixon and the Republican party also need a man acceptable to the urban areas. A man qualified and experienced in urban affairs. A man who can attract independent and Democratic votes in the industrial centers. There are of course additional political considerations but these two main requirements appear to be at war with each other.

The list of possible nominees include Gov. Rhodes of Ohio, Gov. Volpe of Massachusetts, permanent chairman; Rep. Ford of Michigan, Sen. Baker of Tennessee, Gov. Agnew of Maryland, Mayor Lindsay of New York City, Sen. Hatfield of Oregon, Sen. Percy of Illinois, Sen. Tower of Texas and, of course, the three R's, Romney, Rockefeller and Reagan.

First Major Decision

As the convention has unfolded, the selection of a vice presidential nominee has developed more interest and excitement here in Miami Beach than the fight for the top slot.

The lights of the Statler Hilton Hotel, Nixon's headquarters, burned through the night. Downstairs, happy workers drank, danced and partied. But upstairs high party leaders came and went to the chambers of Richard M. Nixon. They gave advice, spoke of support of their candidates for the vice presidential nomination and in some cases, they spoke strongly against the nomination of possible nominees.

This is the first major decision for Richard Millhouse Nixon the brand new Republican nominee for president in 1968. It may be his most politically crucial decision between now and November. Upon it may hinge the difference between Republican defeat and Democrat victory at the polls.

We in Miami will be watching Mr. Nixon carefully today.

Woman Critical After Accident In New Paltz

Injured in a traffic accident at 3 p. m. Wednesday on South Poughkeepsie Road, Town of New Paltz, Mrs. Fannie Mauro, 65, of Cornwall, remained in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

According to Highland State Police Sergeant Stanley Kowalik, Mrs. Mauro suffered a fractured pelvis and internal injuries when hit by a car operated by John Mark, 59, of Philadelphia, Pa. Mark was cited by troopers for speeding and being an unlicensed driver. He was taken before Lloyd Justice Linn Baker and the case was adjourned.

Troopers said Mrs. Mauro and her husband, George, 72, were walking along the road with Mrs. Mauro near the driving lane when the Mark car appeared. The two pedestrians separated and attempted to escape the path of the car but the woman was hit.

Mark said he swerved the car in an attempt to avoid hitting the couple, but was unable to get past the woman.

Troopers said Mauro was treated at the Poughkeepsie hospital for a dislocated right index finger. It was not definitely determined whether he was hit by the car or whether he received the injury as he ran to avoid the vehicle.

took an automobile ride with him late Wednesday night that he wanted a candidate who was "sympathetic" with him and who understood big city problems which he feared would become worse in the years ahead.

Discusses Cities Tour
During that same midnight ride, he said he was thinking of a flying tour to some of the cities during the next two weeks to help reunite the party.

In a television interview after the balloting, he said he felt he had wrapped up the nomination when he won the Oregon presidential primary May 29, although he conceded that Rockefeller and Reagan had built good campaign organizations.

Asked if he were free to choose his own running mate, he replied:

"I certainly am. I won the nomination without having to pay any price or make any deals. I will make the decision based on my best judgment as to the man who can work best with me and, if he ever has to do that, be president of the United States."

Didn't Come Easily
"I want a candidate who does not divide this country."

Although Nixon was never in any real danger of losing the nomination, his triumph did not come as easily as was advertised by his campaign managers, who had consistently claimed more than 700 first ballot votes compared with the 667 needed to win.

Before the states began switching votes to the winner as they always do once nomination is decided, the Nixon total was 692 at the end of the ballot.

Florida Changes Votes
Nixon got his first big break before the roll call, when the Florida delegation, where he had been listed for 19 votes, decided to give him 33 of its 34 on the first ballot.

Nixon's second break came during the roll call because of a revolt within the New Jersey delegation, where Sen. Clifford P. Case was supposed to get 35 of the 40 votes as a favorite son candidate. The rebellion gave Nixon 18 and left Case with 22.

Before the courtesy switches, the final tally gave Nixon 692, Rockefeller 292 and Reagan 175. Other votes were scattered among six favorite sons and two votes went to the never-say-die candidate, Harold E. Stassen.

Reagan made his way into the back of the hall from his trailer command post and eventually won recognition to offer a motion to make the vote unanimous. It was 2:10 a. m.

In all, 12 candidates were submitted to the convention. Besides the three major contenders, there were eight favorite sons and Stassen. Two pro-Nixon favorite sons, Gov. Walter J. Hickel of Alaska and Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina immediately withdrew their names.

Other Candidates

Others were Sen. Hiram L. Fong of Hawaii, a Nixon backer and first man of Chinese-American ancestry to be placed in nomination for the presidency; Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas, younger brother of the New York governor; Gov. George Romney of Michigan, once a national contender who withdrew last winter; Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas; Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio, and Case.

The demonstrations for Rockefeller, Reagan and Nixon were the usual circuslike spectacles with colored balloons cascading from nets in the ceiling, marching bands and friendly delegates jammed in the aisles with their waving signs.

Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland put Nixon's name in nomination.

Dyson Hits Fish On Farm Bureau: 'Debate Is Hoax'

John Dyson, candidate for Congress in the 28th District, today called his opponent's debate agreement "a hoax on the press and on the public, and an exploitation of the Farm Bureau for political reasons."

Dyson made the statement after discovering that the supposed debate to which Fish challenged him was really "a candidates forum where all candidates for Congress, State Senate and Assembly will speak in alphabetical order."

Dyson said he received a letter from the Columbia and Greene County Farm Bureaus in which it clearly stated: "The format of this event has always been the same. It is not a debate type program, but rather an opportunity for the public to see and hear all the candidates."

The Democratic candidate declared, "I am, of course, willing to attend this forum and present my views on agriculture and rural development. However, this is without question not a debate. My opponent, Hamilton Fish, has deceived the public in a desperate attempt to use the Farm Bureau to stall the growing public outcry for a series of face-to-face debates with me."

He added, "Thus, I still challenge my opponent to a series of 15 debates, three in each county — Columbia, Dutchess, Greene, Schoharie, Ulster."

The Millbrook publisher charged that it was Fish's strategy to consider this meeting a debate "in hopes of calming the public pressure for him to stand up like a man, away from the bosses who run him, and to make his positions known to the people of the 28th District."

Dyson noted that his office had yet to receive any word from Fish on any other debate and Dyson commented, "I have the feeling that Mr. Fish is afraid to stand up without texts prepared for him in Washington and discuss the issues in this campaign. Where does he stand on Viet-Nam, what programs does he offer to combat crime, how would he stem the decline in rural economy and what would he do to halt inflation?"

The Democratic candidate concluded by asking, "What will Mr. Fish do in Congress if he is not willing to debate here at home?"

Belsky Dies In Dutchess, In Grant Rite

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP) — Charles Belsky, who was in the military honor guard at the funeral of Gen. U.S. Grant, died Wednesday at his home. He was 100.

Belsky, a retired tailor, was born in New York City on July 4, 1868, and was 17 when Grant died. He served in the cavalry in the Dakota Territory.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Charles DeMask of Poughkeepsie, a granddaughter, three sisters and two brothers.

The funeral will be Saturday in Poughkeepsie.

Dufault Hits Rusk on Viet Bomb Policy

"Secretary of State Dean Rusk has once again given sound evidence why the Johnson Administration must be soundly repudiated by the coming Democratic Convention and by the voters this November," Peter K. Dufault of Hillsdale, Liberal Party candidate for Congress in the 28th District said today.

"The crux of our problems in getting out of Vietnam has been that the Administration never has wanted to leave. Finally they were forced to the Paris negotiations, at least in part by Senator McCarthy, but the negotiations have gone nowhere. To blame this all on the North Vietnamese is patently absurd. We just are not doing our part."

"Typical of the failure of will on our part was Mr. Rusk's recent statement that we would not curtail bombing of North Vietnam until the North Vietnamese went on record as promising to reduce their war effort. This was a brand new requirement, and went a long step backward from past Administration statements which did not require such a commitment."

"As long as the Administration remains in office, supported by the kinds of Congressmen I suspect my two opponents will be the war in Vietnam cannot be concluded."

Spell Details Of Ellenville Housing Unit
The newly appointed housing authority for the Village of Ellenville will be operating under Section 23 of the Federal Housing Act.
Under the act, the landlord gets a lease which he can use as collateral for a bank loan.
Also, a low income wage earner, living in an area where rents are beyond what he can afford to pay, will have part of his rent paid for by the federal government.
The government, through the housing authority, will determine what the wage-earner can afford. A line is drawn, and the government pays the rest of the rent, the amount above the imaginary line.
The housing authority would be working under a federal grant.
Clarence McGill, relocation administrator for the City of Beacon Urban Renewal Agency, said that the Section 23 formula "can upgrade the existing housing stock" and "make better use" of it.
McGill, treasurer of the Ellenville NAACP, predicted that the housing authority would "have to have an executive director eventually."
The director's salary would be paid out of the federal grant.

Belsky Dies In Dutchess, In Grant Rite

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — Charles Belsky, who was in the military honor guard at the funeral of Gen. U.S. Grant, died Wednesday at his home. He was 100.

Belsky, a retired tailor, was born in New York City on July 4, 1868, and was 17 when Grant died. He served in the cavalry in the Dakota Territory.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Charles DeMask of Poughkeepsie, a granddaughter, three sisters and two brothers.

The funeral will be Saturday in Poughkeepsie.

Dufault Hits Rusk on Viet Bomb Policy

"Secretary of State Dean Rusk has once again given sound evidence why the Johnson Administration must be soundly repudiated by the coming Democratic Convention and by the voters this November," Peter K. Dufault of Hillsdale, Liberal Party candidate for Congress in the 28th District said today.

"The crux of our problems in getting out of Vietnam has been that the Administration never has wanted to leave. Finally they were forced to the Paris negotiations, at least in part by Senator McCarthy, but the negotiations have gone nowhere. To blame this all on the North Vietnamese is patently absurd. We just are not doing our part."

"Typical of the failure of will on our part was Mr. Rusk's recent statement that we would not curtail bombing of North Vietnam until the North Vietnamese went on record as promising to reduce their war effort. This was a brand new requirement, and went a long step backward from past Administration statements which did not require such a commitment."

"As long as the Administration remains in office, supported by the kinds of Congressmen I suspect my two opponents will be, the war in Vietnam cannot be concluded."

Large bull elk may weigh a half-ton, stand as high as a horse and carry a five-foot spread of antlers.

Spell Details Of Ellenville Housing Unit

The newly appointed housing authority for the Village of Ellenville will be operating under Section 23 of the Federal Housing Act.

Under the act, the landlord gets a lease which he can use as collateral for a bank loan. Also, a low income wage earner, living in an area where rents are beyond what he can afford to pay, will have part of his rent paid for by the federal government.

The government, through the housing authority, will determine what the wage-earner can afford. A line is drawn, and the government pays the rest of the rent, the amount above the imaginary line.

The housing authority would be working under a federal grant. Clarence McGill, relocation administrator for the City of Beacon Urban Renewal Agency, said that the Section 23 formula "can upgrade the existing housing stock" and "make better use" of it.

McGill, treasurer of the Ellenville NAACP, predicted that the housing authority would "have to have an executive director eventually."

The director's salary would be paid out of the federal grant.

State Knights Pledge $500,000 to Retarded

The New York State Council of the Knights of Columbus has committed itself to a one-half-million dollar program designed to aid the Catholic education of mentally retarded and mentally handicapped children in the State of New York. The undertaking is the first of its kind adopted by the 127,000 member Catholic Fraternal Society which operates through 393 Councils in New York State. The announcement was made by James E. Foley, State Deputy, from his executive offices in New York City.

The funds will be made available to the Ordinaries of the eight Sees in the State of New York to be used without limitation for the purposes for which created. Foley had stated that "The program was promulgated, in part, due to the limitation of distribution of State funds for this purpose, because of the continued existence of the discriminatory provisions of the pernicious 'Blaine Amendment' which discriminates against the mentally handicapped, if a parent wishes to send the child to a religiously orientated school." His Excellency, Archbishop Terence J. Cooke, D.D., state chaplain of the organization, in commenting on the program, stated that "He was grateful for the action of the State Council for the program of education for the mentally retarded youth."

Warns U.S. About Border

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia said today he would call on Communist forces to help stop American military pressure on his border with South Vietnam if it intensifies much more.

"I would not hesitate to call upon Chinese and Vietnamese communists" if the alleged American threat increases, Cambodian chief of state said.

Newburgh Couple Fighting To Get Off Welfare Rolls

By JAY DENZ
NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — A half-paralyzed Newburgh man and his wife are fighting to get off the Orange County welfare roll, but under a new law they must be listed as relief recipients in order for both to receive Medicaid.

Joe Mancinelli, 55, is eligible for Medicaid benefits because his left side became paralyzed after a 1966 operation and he is classified as disabled. His wife, Dorothy, 55, is ineligible for such benefits unless she accepts welfare.

Don't Need Welfare
"I'm getting welfare checks and I don't need them yet," said Mancinelli. "We need Medicaid."

The taxpayers of Newburgh and Orange County are being taken, that's my point."

But Douglas F. Couser, head of the Social Services Department, countered: "The only way these people can both be eligible for state Medicaid benefits under the new law (effective April 1) is for them to be listed under a federal category (such as welfare recipients)."

Mrs. Mancinelli had been receiving Medicaid benefits until April 1, when the law changed. Mancinelli says his wife is entitled to the medical benefits because she acts as his nurse.

The Mancinellis' first welfare checks, called supplemental income grants, totaled $11.15 for July. The checks remain uncashed.

Could Return Them
"If they don't want to receive the welfare checks," said Couser, "all they have to do is send them back."

Mancinelli, who receives $148 per month from Social Security, replied, "I'm not after sympathy and I'm not after money. We need Medicaid but we don't need welfare. That money should be sent to people who really need it."

"If he wants things changed," said Couser, "he'll have to convince the legislature in Albany. They passed the law not us."

Mancinelli indicated he was going to try and do just that.

Niagara Cancels Nuclear Plans, State to Build

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. said today it had canceled its plan to construct a nuclear power generating plant on the Hudson River north of Troy.

At the same time, the State Power Authority announced in New York City that it would build a nuclear power plant adjacent to one Niagara Mohawk is completing at Nine Mile Point, near Oswego, on Lake Ontario.

Construction at the site at Easton had been scheduled to begin last spring, and commercial operation was scheduled for 1971.

Earle J. Machold, chairman of the board of Niagara Mohawk, said the company regretted the new decision but that "difficulties and delays in securing regulatory approvals, dictated that we take other steps to meet our immediately foreseeable power supply requirements."

Niagara Mohawk said its contracts with the General Electric Co. for a nuclear reactor and a 750,000-kilowatt turbo-generator intended for the Easton site would be assigned to the Power Authority for transfer to Nine Mile Point. This is expected to enable the Power Authority to complete its nuclear plant by 1973.

Machold said his company would augment its power supply requirements by joining with Central Hudson Gas & Electric Co. and Consolidated Edison Co. in the construction of a one-million kilowatt, conventional oil-fired steam electric generating plant on the west side of the Hudson River north of Newburgh.

The company also said that, within two years, it would install an additional 150,000 kilowatts of gas-turbine generating capacity in its Albany district. Niagara Mohawk's plant at Nine Mile Point is expected to exceed 600,000 kilowatts.

The Syracuse-based utility serves 1,162,000 electric customers and provides gas service to about 400,000 customers throughout most of upstate New York.

The Power Authority said its plant at Nine Mile Point was planned to back up the capacity of its St. Lawrence and Niagara hydroelectric projects. The authority estimated the cost at more than $200 million.

Authority Chairman James A. Fitzpatrick said the agency's acquisition of the site adjacent to Niagara Mohawk's would facilitate the operation of both plants.

County officials are still optimistic that federal and state funds will be made available to help construct the new proposed infirmary. In May of this year, several legislators said that there was a good possibility that the state, county and federal government would share the costs equally. The federal share of the bond, if it is obtained, will reportedly not be available until the 1969 budget appropriations are approved by Congress.

Two other bond issues are scheduled to come before the county legislators at tonight's meeting. A $25,000 bond issue, to be shared on a fifty-fifty basis between the state and the county, will be voted on for repairing the historic Perrine's Bridge in Rifton. The resolution states that an emergency situation now exists at the bridge and that the foundations must be strengthened in order to enable restoration work to take place at a later date.

A $32,000 bond issue for restoring a county-owned building on 74 John Street will also be voted on this evening. Most of the funds, if appropriated, will be used for internal renovations in order to improve the functional use of the building. The building, according to the resolution, has "historical significance" to the residents of the city and county.

American Nazi Party More Prosperous Now But It's Slips Are Showing

WASHINGTON (AP) — One year after the assassination of its founder—George Lincoln Rockwell—the American Nazi party, its name changed, appears outwardly more prosperous, more sophisticated. But its private papers disclose deep splits with several factions competing for a control of the tiny movement.

What apparently is the principal Nazi organization—now known as the National Socialist White Peoples party, NSWPP—has bought a two-story building in a quiet middle-class neighborhood in suburban Arlington, Va.

There, in a second floor office that is carpeted wall-to-wall in deep red, Matthias Koehl Jr.,

33, presides as national leader. Seated beneath a four-foot red banner bearing a black swastika—symbol of Adolph Hitler's Third Reich—Koehl rules a tiny band of armed racists and anti-Semites.

"I was born a racist," Koehl told an interviewer. "I never could see the sense of mixing of blacks and whites. It's highly in-decant. I've always believed in the establishment of an all-white America."

Koehl was second in command last Aug. 25 when Rockwell was shot by a sniper in an Arlington shopping center. The sniper, former Nazi party member John Patler, has since been convicted and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Koehl, a native of Milwaukee, Wis., speaks glibly and without hesitation as he talks of the aims of the Nazis—and of his own predictions for the future of the United States:

"What we know is coming is race war. Race war is just around the corner in historical terms. We expect there will be a serious American defeat in Vietnam because of the administration's no-win policy."

He sees also hard economic times coming "because of dwindling reserves of gold and silver. There's going to be chaos in America—we will hold out at that time the only alternative."

But Koehl, respected by his pistol-toting comrades in the Arlington establishment, apparently doesn't command the respect of all Nazis. He lacks something of Rockwell, the former Navy commander and World War II fighter pilot who affected a folksy style as he smoked his corn-cob pipe and talked hate.

"I'm going to completely separate the black and white races and preserve white Christian domination in this country, and I'm going to have the Jew Communists and any other traitors gassed for treason," Rockwell once said.

WALKING MAN — Former President Harry S. Truman braves 90 degree weather to walk from his house in order to vote in the Missouri Primary election. In earlier years Truman often was at polling place a minute or so after it opened, but yesterday he waited until mid-morning to vote. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Bilingual Teaching In Manhattan School

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Presta atención a mí," the teacher says to six-year-old Lucy Rivera. Then, "Pay attention to me," she repeats immediately in English.

The scene is a second-floor classroom at St. Brigid's Roman Catholic school on the Lower East Side of Manhattan, a neighborhood that once was filled with Poles, Ukrainians and Jews but during the past few years has become predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican.

Sally Gilhool, a New York City school teacher, is conducting an experimental summer class in bilingual teaching and learning. Her subject is language and she is fluent in English and Spanish. Her pupils are six-year-old Puerto Rican children from the neighborhood.

"Canten," she says. "Sing." Lucy, in a blue and white striped sailor dress with red anchors at the hem, and her six classmates sing: "Fray Felipe, Fray Felipe, Duermes Tu, Duermes Tu..."

"Ahora Ingles," says Miss Gilhool. "Now English."

The children sing: "Brother John, Brother John, Are you sleeping, Are you sleeping..."

In another room, Leonard Alba, who taught English in Cuban schools until he fled to the United States and an office typing job (he can't qualify as a teacher here) when Castro came to power, has a group of seven-year-old Puerto Ricans who are learning to play plastic song flutes, and—more important—to talk about what they are learning in two languages.

Across from his classroom, Lucy Blake, a school teacher from White Plains, N.Y., is teaching art to another group of six-year-olds. High on the far wall of the room is a multi-colored sign which says: "Me gusta pintar" and "I like to paint."

All three teachers and their 65 six and seven-year-old pupils are part of a six-week, three-hour a day experimental program in bilingual teaching.

All three teachers and their 65 six and seven-year-old pupils are part of a six-week, three-hour a day experimental program in bilingual teaching and learning through the humanities—language, art and music. The program is financed by the federal government through New York City's Center for Urban Education, one of 20 educational laboratories set up across the country by the Health, Education and Welfare Department (KHEW).

The purpose of the program, said Raymond A. Drescher, a New York school principal on leave to the Center, is to try to use the humanities to develop fluency in both Spanish and English.

He notes that of the estimated 700,000 Spanish speakers in New York, many are illiterate, or barely literate in both languages. This holds true as well, he said, for many of the Mexican-Americans of California, Texas and the Southwest.

"When people talk bilingualism," Drescher says, "they usually don't mean bilingualism. They mean, 'you may not speak Spanish, you must learn English.'"

He says that when children speak one language at home and another in school often they can become distressed and emotionally and functionally reject one of them. This can impair a child's ability to learn.

"A child who picks up the idea in school that Spanish is bad goes home and hears his parents speaking Spanish and concludes they're bad and then that he himself is bad," Drescher said.

"If a kid feels he's at the bottom of the barrel, he'll remain there."

Art, music and language were chosen as the vehicles for developing fluency in both languages because at the six and seven-year-old levels these subjects are mostly fun and have a high appeal for children.

Nobody in the program believes that "we can change the world in a six-week experiment," but they hope at least to start building a bridge to the Puerto Rican community, one of those "disadvantaged" groups in the new language of sociologists.

OUT OF DANGER — Two small girls, Shirley Wong Chan (top), 12, and her cousin Suzie "Nancy" Wong Chan (bottom), 9, were pronounced out of danger early today (Manila time), after spending five days in the rubble of a building flattened by the killer earthquake last Friday. The two Chinese girls were the first survivors in the wreckage in 59 hours. Officials say about 100 persons are still buried in the building. (UPI RADIOPHOTO).

Therapy Patients To Show at Fair

The Patient Services Therapy Booth at the Ulster County Fair, Friday, Saturday and Sunday will have on display hundreds of gift items in a wide selection of crafts all made by patients of the Occupational and Diversional Therapy Program of the Kingston Infirmary Annex, Golden Hill. Carefully and effectively displayed, these items are available to the public at the Patient Services Therapy Booth under direction of the Patient Services Committee of the Ulster County TB and Health Association.

The Patient Services Program of the Ulster County TB and Health Association is the sponsor of this valuable Patient Services display, as last year, the Patient Services unit will be located directly next to the Association's Educational Booth. The Patient booth was developed by Charles Tarsia of the Infirmary Therapy Program Teacher; by E. Robert Johnson, the Association's executive director and through the aid of Mrs. Dorothy Guntzmann, R.N., director of nursing, Kingston Infirmary and Mrs. Elnora McSpirt, R.N., director of nursing at the Infirmary Annex at Golden Hill.

Unusual, useful Gifts

The display will feature the many unusual and useful handicrafts that have been produced with great effort by the many handicapped, chronically ill and disabled now at the two Infirmary locations, and are offered for this patient sale as a very vital aspect of the whole effect of therapy programming for the patient.

"The desire of the public for these patient-made items is very important," Tarsia noted, "this interest in turn stimulates the interest of the patient and encourages him to go on." The purchase by the public of these patient-made items assists in the continuance of the program; going back to the patient and most important, bringing a tangible reassurance that his efforts can bear fruit and his work desired by another.

The Therapy Program is a continuing year-round project at both Infirmary sites where, once enrolled, many patients find a whole new interest and a form of rehabilitation is established. Tarsia is assisted by a year-round volunteer therapy and entertainment staff of effective and capable aides which have included Mrs. Dora Molenhauer, Mrs. William Hornbeck, Mrs. John Wolfersteig, Mrs. Anna Marks, Mrs. Olive Terwilliger, Miss Lillian Carter, Miss Ethel Carter, Mrs. Fay Stewart, Miss Bertha Waterman, Miss Adiska Conro and Mrs. Bruno.

"We urge all concerned, interested people to stop at our Booth," Johnson and Tarsia noted. There is a wide range of items on display developed by patients who have learned to work in some degree of creativity with their hands. These therapy program patients gain a vital psychological lift in thus being able to recognize productivity and usefulness in himself. The encouragement he receives from this special recognition is the knowledge that someone 'outside' admired and wanted his work so much that he purchased it."

LBJ to Complete Physical Checkup

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson is described by an aide as feeling fine but there is no indication when a public report on the physical checkup he is undergoing will come.

Such reports usually have been released about the time of each presidential birthday. Johnson will be 60 Aug. 27.

Dutchess Man Escapes Injury

A 24-year-old Dutchess man narrowly escaped serious injury at 11:40 p. m. Wednesday when he lost control of his car as it left Route 199 in the Town of Red Hook and hit a utility pole. Rhinebeck troopers said Howard Walter Jr., of Rhinebeck, was cited for driving at a speed not reasonable and prudent. The summons is returnable before Red Hook Justice Frank Martin. The car was traveling west when it went off the right side of the road and the driver turned back but overcorrected the course of the vehicle and it glanced off the pole and came to stop in a field 100 feet off the highway.

Automobile Fires

Dispatchers at the County Fire Control Center reported automobile fires were extinguished on Wednesday by Kerhonkson and Port Ewen firefighters, and this morning Gardiner firemen were called out to check a fire in a car in that community. Ulster Hose Co. 5 responded to an alarm yesterday afternoon for a truck fire.

OUT OF DANGER — Two small girls, Shirley Wong Chan (top), 12, and her cousin Suzie "Nancy" Wong Chan (bottom), 9, were pronounced out of danger early today (Manila time), after spending five days in the rubble of a building flattened by the killer earthquake last Friday. The two Chinese girls were the first survivors in the wreckage in 59 hours. Officials say about 100 persons are still buried in the building. (UPI RADIOPHOTO).

Therapy Patients To Show at Fair

The Patient Services Therapy Booth at the Ulster County Fair, Friday, Saturday and Sunday will have on display hundreds of gift items in a wide selection of crafts all made by patients of the Occupational and Diversional Therapy Program of the Kingston Infirmary Annex, Golden Hill. Carefully and effectively displayed, these items are available to the public at the Patient Services Therapy Booth under direction of the Patient Services Committee of the Ulster County TB and Health Association.

The Patient Services Program of the Ulster County TB and Health Association is the sponsor of this valuable Patient Services display, as last year, the Patient Services unit will be located directly next to the Association's Educational Booth. The Patient booth was developed by Charles Tarsia of the Infirmary Therapy Program Teacher; by E. Robert Johnson, the Association's executive director and through the aid of Mrs. Dorothy Gunzelmann, R.N., director of nursing, Kingston Infirmary and Mrs. Elnora McSpirt, R.N., director of nursing at the Infirmary Annex at Golden Hill.

Unusual, useful Gifts

The display will feature the many unusual and useful handicrafts that have been produced with great effort by the many handicapped, chronically ill and disabled now at the two Infirmary locations, and are offered for this patient sale as a very vital aspect of the whole effect of therapy programming for the patient.

"The desire of the public for these patient-made items is very important," Tarsia noted, "this interest in turn stimulates the interest of the patient and encourages him to go on."

The purchase by the public of these patient-made items assists in the continuance of the program; going back to the patient and most important, bringing a tangible reassurance that his efforts can bear fruit and his work desired by another.

The Therapy Program is a continuing year-round project at both Infirmary sites where, once enrolled, many patients find a whole new interest and a form of rehabilitation is established. Tarsia is assisted by a year-round volunteer therapy and entertainment staff of effective and capable aides which have included Mrs. Dora Mollenhauer, Mrs. William Hornbeck, Mrs. John Wolfersteig, Mrs. Anna Marks, Mrs. Olive Terwilliger, Miss Lillian Carter, Miss Ethel Carter, Mrs. Fay Stewart, Miss Bertha Waterman, Miss Adiska Conro and Mrs. Bruno.

"We urge all concerned, interested people to stop at our Booth," Johnson and Tarsia noted. There is a wide range of items on display developed by patients who have learned to work in some degree of creativity with their hands. These therapy program patients gain a vital psychological lift in thus being able to recognize productivity and usefulness in himself. The encouragement he receives from this special recognition is the knowledge that someone 'outside' admired and wanted his work so much that he purchased it."

Program volunteers who are serving at the Patient Services Therapy display at the Ulster County Fair include: members of the Infirmary Therapy and Entertainment Volunteer Staff, the Patient Services Committee, Program Volunteer Workers, Township Program-Christmas Seal Chairmen, Board Members of the TB Association as follows: Mrs. Dorothy Gunzelmann, R.N., Mrs. Elnora McSpirt, R.N., Mrs. Arnold Rymkovich, Mrs. Belle Lockwood, Miss Bertha Waterman, Miss Adiska Conro, Mrs. William J. Press secretary George Christian, announcing that Johnson would complete his physical in a brief visit to Brooke Army Medical Center today, said the President "feels fine."

But Christian told newsmen he did not know when the presidential doctor, Vice Adm. George G. Burkley, would issue a report.

Johnson began his checkup Tuesday with a five-hour visit to Brooke's extensive facilities at San Antonio, 75 miles from his ranch.

Mrs. Johnson, getting an examination of her own, remained at Brooke all the while. There was no immediate word on when she would wind up her stay. In any event, she has not been confined to the institution but has visited friends in San Antonio between tests.

There has been no indication that either of the Johnsons has been ailing in any way.

Political Pot Empty For Rocky

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Nelson A. Rockefeller reached the end of his political rainbow at 1:49 a.m. EDT today and found the pot empty.

He had spent an estimated $5 million to $10 million—he's not a man to keep track of the nickels and dimes—in his third futile try for the Republican nomination for President.

But he said it "all was worthwhile, and that if he had it to do over again he wouldn't change anything."

Happy, his wife, didn't quite cry as she and Rockefeller met the press a few minutes after watching on TV Richard M. Nixon's first ballot triumph. Rockefeller smiled, and said he had already phoned Nixon with congratulations and a promise to help him campaign.

"It looks like I didn't count properly," he said of his earlier forecasts that Nixon would fall short of the goal. "I ran about 75 votes short of what I expected and Gov. (Ronald) Reagan was about 100 short of what I had hoped."

Why, he was asked, after two previous defeats and after taking himself this time out of the race, had he finally decided to make a third run for the Republican prize? He said he saw the nation in trouble and that after 22 years in government service "I felt I had no right not to make available the experience I had."

Why did he think he had lost? "I think the convention genuinely preferred Dick Nixon," he said. "So did the leadership of the party. It's as simple as that."

Knowing what he knew now, if he had it to do over again, what would he do differently? "I'd do exactly the same," he replied.

Did he feel his efforts were wasted? Not at all. He said the GOP shows new awareness "of what's going on in the world," and he thinks he had a role in the change.

"Every minute of it has been worthwhile," he said. "The three attempts (his unsuccessful campaigns) have left their mark on the party. And I hope that this time I've brought out some of the vital issues facing our country."

What about his own future? He is 60 and has two years to go on his third term as governor of New York. He had said once he might retire after that.

"I wasn't worrying much about my future," he said. "As little Nelson (aged 4) said, 'Daddy, if you don't win, we can play more.' That's the answer."

Even Happy was able to smile about that.

Stassen's Kin Spells Out the Reasons Why

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—What makes Harold E. Stassen run? His nephew said he was offering the former Minnesota governor to the Republican National Convention, gave this reply:

"He has always felt the political arena was the most effective way to alert the public to a serious impending problem—either as an officerholder or a political candidate. His dedication and concern drive him to take courageous action, even at the risk of public misunderstanding."

It was Stassen's fourth try for the Republican presidential nomination, and his third presentation to a nominating convention. Again his attempt drew little support. And Stassen said the other day that this time probably will be his last.

His nephew said he was honored to place in nomination a man who had dedicated his life to world peace and freedom. He called Stassen "perhaps the most misunderstood and underestimated man in America today."

Derailment Near Chatham

CHATHAM, N.Y. (AP)—Eleven cars of a Boston-Albany freight train were derailed in this village southeast of Albany early today.

No one was reported injured. The cars, including several hoppers loaded with crushed stone, spilled across two tracks, blocking traffic on the Penn-Central subsidiary's line between Pittsfield and Selkirk, south of Albany.

Village police said some of the cars overturned, creating "quite a mess."

The 71-car train, powered by four locomotives, was enroute from Selkirk to Pittsfield, the railroad said.

The accident occurred along Woodbridge Avenue, near the Chatham High School.

Boy Strangled
RICHMONDVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Anthony Jackson, 10, was strangled accidentally Wednesday when he fell from a tree house while playing with a rope near his home in this community west of Albany, police said.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Jackson.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Trial by combat originated among Germanic tribes over 1,500 years ago as a means of ascertaining guilt or innocence, notes The World Almanac. The theory was that the victor of a "judicial combat" must be innocent because intervening Providence had caused him to prevail. Spreading throughout medieval Europe, this practice became mainly a private way of resolving affairs of honor. Between 1589 and 1608, some 8,000 Frenchmen died in duels.

He dived into the lake and recovered the girl's body a few minutes later, police said.

She lived at 9 High St.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Trial by combat originated among Germanic tribes over 1,500 years ago as a means of ascertaining guilt or innocence, notes The World Almanac. The theory was that the victor of a "judicial combat" must be innocent because intervening Providence had caused him to prevail. Spreading throughout medieval Europe, this practice became mainly a private way of resolving affairs of honor. Between 1589 and 1608, some 8,000 Frenchmen died in duels.

Nature of Law in Argentina Makes Drug Arrests Difficult

By GUILLERMO PIERNES
BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—By nature, Argentines are averse to the temptations of narcotics. And for this reason, their capital is becoming a main pipeline for illicit drug traffic to the United States and Canada. Nine Argentines, six of them women, have been arrested in the past two months trying to smuggle heroin and cocaine past customs officials in New York and Montreal. Officials of the two countries stated flatly that the smuggling operation is centered in Buenos Aires, using narcotics processed in Europe. Argentine police are cooperating with international police officials in trying to crack the rings. They have had a good measure of success, as the flurry of recent arrests show.

But the campaign has not ended. An Argentine police official, who heads a specially created anti-narcotics squad, said the nature of Argentine laws makes it difficult to make narcotics arrests here. But Argentine police pass tips and other information to international police bodies to aid them in spotting couriers using Buenos Aires as a base. "Women are often selected as couriers because there exists a tendency among customs agents not to search them—out of modesty," said the official, who asked that his name not be used. "The narcotics rings prefer to use Argentines—preferably Argentine women—because this is a nation without a narcotics addiction problem," he continued. "Thus, our people arouse less suspicion among customs agents than would, say, a Bolivian or a Brazilian." The police official said operators of smuggling rings here offer prospective couriers $2,000 plus air fare to the United States or Canada for delivering packages of narcotics to contacts. He estimated that the drug dealers net $30,000 on each transaction. Last July 12, customs agents at Kennedy International Airport in New York found $4 million worth of heroin taped to the bodies of two Argentine women, one of them a school teacher, who had just arrived from Buenos Aires. They were charged with smuggling and held in $100,000 bond each.

The Nobel Prize Laser Beam-- May Top Transistor's Help to Man

By HUGH REYNOLDS

The laser beam, for which Bell Laboratories won the Nobel Prize in physics in 1964, is still in its early development stages but it is expected to be a greater boon to modern man than the transistor, also invented by Bell.

Tuesday afternoon, the Kingston Lions Club was treated to an explanation of the laser at their weekly luncheon at the Gov. Clinton Hotel by Emil Sticht, a public relations representative of the New York Telephone Company from Albany.

Present Uses, Future
Afterwards, in a Freeman interview, Sticht explained what a laser beam is, what its present uses are and future plans for it.

The word laser stands for Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation. In short, it is coherent light. Regular light, such as sunlight and street lights are incoherent lights, they spread out and dissipate. Coherent light is concentrated light.

The present uses of laser beams sound like something out of a Buck Rodgers comic strip. Medically, the beam has proven to be an extremely useful survival tool. It can be used as a knife for pinpoint surgery and in addition, congeals the smaller blood vessels, thus drastically reducing bleeding.

In certain cases it has been used to fight skin cancer and is also the only known way to effectively remove tattoos.

It has also been highly successful in the repair of detached retinas. The beam is aimed through the pupil of the eye at the damaged retina and welds it back in place while also destroying any loose, minute particles of retina that may be floating in the eye.

Used Industrially

The laser is now being used industrially in the drilling of diamonds. Previously, it took one man eight hours to drill a hole. With the laser, according to Sticht, it takes a billionth of a second. The Western Electric Company uses this process in its wire producing operation. The laser, when fully developed, is expected to have a major effect on the communications industry. The present microwave frequencies can carry about 20,000 voice channels. The laser beam has a potential of many million channels. As an example, every television program in the world could be transmitted on one laser beam.

At present, Bell has developed beams of 160 watts that can transmit up to seven miles through any kind of weather conditions. Rain tended to break up the beam into irregular light in earlier models. Eventually, the laser beam, which can only transmit in straight lines, just as microwaves, will be beamed from tower to tower at great distances. The advantage of the laser over the microwave in this phase of communication transmission is that the beams don't have to be amplified at each station.

The beam itself has almost unlimited range, and in fact has been bounced off the moon and returned to earth in two and one-quarter seconds in clear weather. Sticht said the Bell Labs expect to have a laser beam waiting for our astronauts when they land on the moon in 1970.

Power for Space Travel

The possibility of laser beams as power for space travel is being considered. It would still take powerful rockets to get a space ship off the ground but once in space, laser beams, which emit a very slight vibration could be used for power due to the weightlessness of objects in space.

Unfortunately, Sticht said, the laser beam is also being explored for its military possibilities. According to latest reports, both Britain and Russia are experimenting with the beam. The beam can be used as a supplement to radar. Buck Rodgers space guns are still a long way off, Sticht says, but they are too, a possibility.

The Bell company has not filed for patents on its laser developments, Sticht said, because the company feels that the laser is something that will eventually benefit all mankind and should not be monopolized.

Sticht pointed out that Bell took a similar position with the transistor, which it developed in 1956. Everything from washing machines to car radios are now transistorized and manufactured by a host of different companies.

Future Unlimited

As for Sticht, he said he is looking forward to presenting more lectures on the laser beam but that due to the size of the territory he covers, he will be able to speak only to service clubs and school assemblies.

Said Sticht at the close of the interview, "It's taken time, patience, a lot of hard work and research to develop the laser beam. The future is unlimited."

Uruguay Commences Manhunt For Kidnaped Key Official

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The Uruguayan government says it won't compromise with pro-Peking terrorists who kidnaped a key official in an attempt to force a softening of President Jorge Pacheco Areco's austerity program.

The largest manhunt in the country's history was under way for Dr. Ulises Pereira Reverbel, head of the state electric and telephone company, and a male secretary. They were kidnaped Wednesday by four members of the Tupamaro National Liberation Front. Armed with machine guns, the kidnapers wounded Pereira's chauffeur and another secretary.

Reverbel, 48, a wealthy cattle rancher, lawyer and close adviser to the president, had been a strong advocate of Pacheco's crackdown on labor agitation and his program of belt tightening to check inflation.

A leaflet distributed by the front said Reverbel was kidnaped "as a warning that nothing will remain unpunished and that popular justice will be exercised through the most convenient channels."

Dorpan Man Killed

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Anthony J. Estenes, 66, of Schenectady, N.Y., was killed Wednesday when his automobile rolled over and skidded on the Maine Turnpike, throwing him onto the road.

Police theorize that a trailer being pulled by the car knocked, causing the accident.

The leaflet accused Pacheco of "having sold our country to North American capital through the International Monetary Fund and through the meddling of neighboring dictatorship."

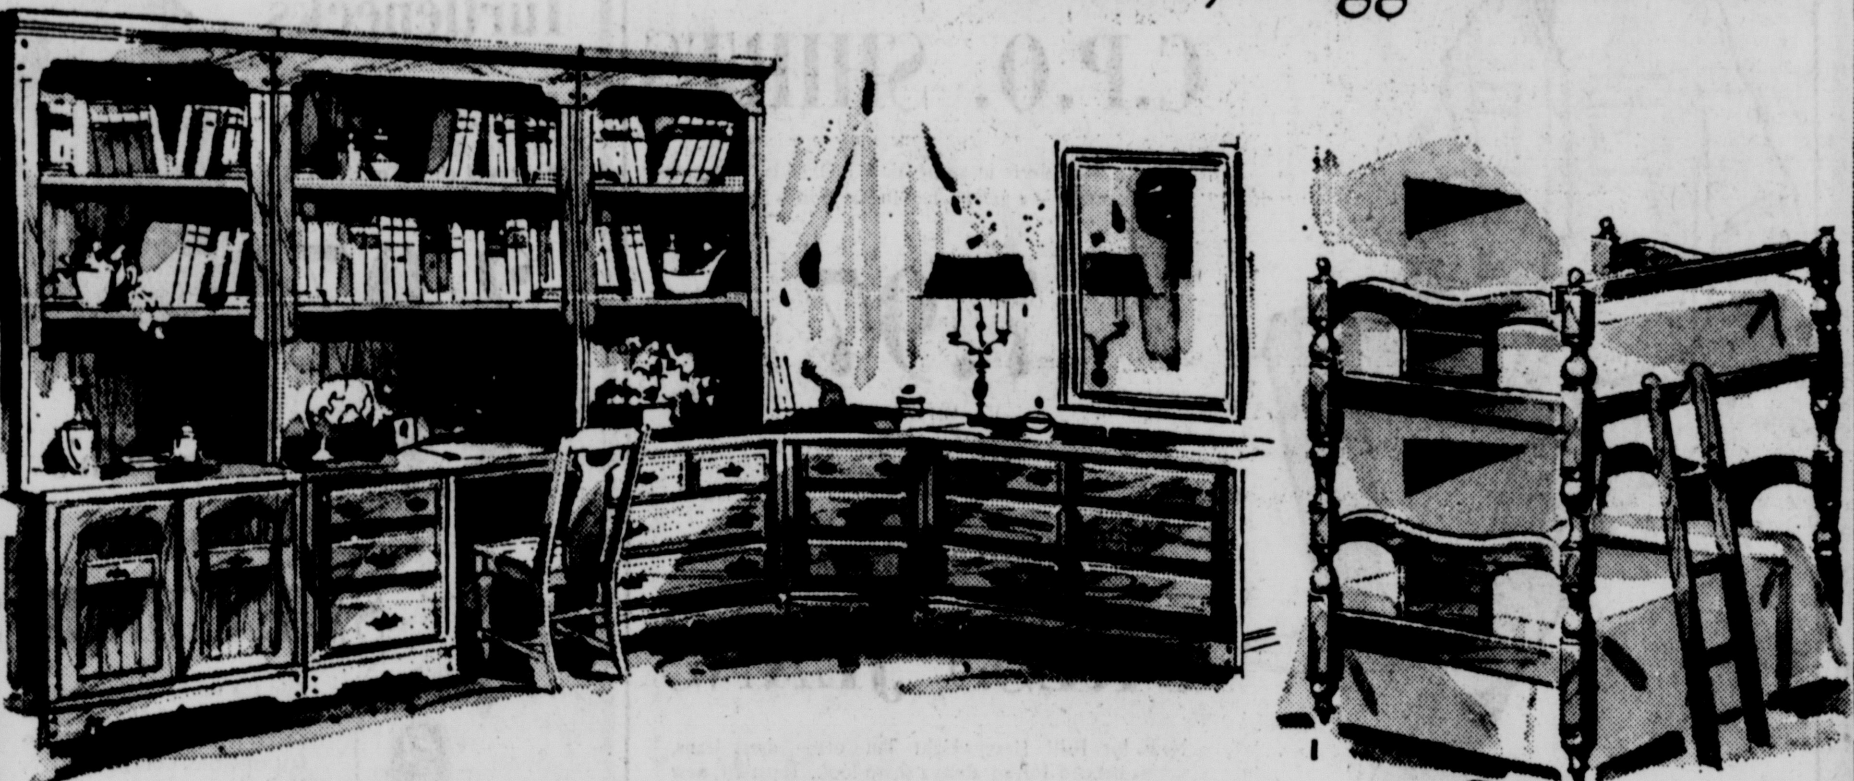

A government spokesman, who described the front as a Peking Communist group, said: "The government will not deal with delinquents—they are extremist elements who are out to intimidate but will not succeed."

Authorities said Reverbel's chauffeur identified two of the terrorists, saying they were Jorge Amilcar Lluveras, 38, a minor union leader, and Eloises Rivero Cedres, 30, a former Socialist militant. Both are known in left-wing circles as Peking Communists.

Power for Space Travel

The possibility of laser beams as power for space travel is being considered. It would still take powerful rockets to get a space ship off the ground but once in space, laser beams, which emit a very slight vibration could be used for power due to the weightlessness of objects in space.

Unfortunately, Sticht said, the laser beam is also being explored for its military possibilities. According to latest reports, both Britain and Russia are experimenting with the beam. The beam can be used as a supplement to radar. Buck Rogers space guns are still a long way off, Sticht says, but they are too, a possibility.

The Bell company has not filed for patents on its laser developments, Sticht said, because the company feels that the laser is something that will eventually benefit all mankind and should not be monopolized. Sticht pointed out that Bell took a similar position with the transistor, which it developed in 1956. Everything from washing machines to car radios are now transistorized and manufactured by a host of different companies.

Future Unlimited
As for Sticht, he said he is looking forward to presenting more lectures on the laser beam but that due to the size of the territory he covers, he will be able to speak only to service clubs and school assemblies.

Said Sticht at the close of the interview, "It's taken time, patience, a lot of hard work and research to develop the laser beam. The future is unlimited."

Uruguay Commences Manhunt For Kidnaped Key Official

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The Uruguayan government says it won't compromise with pro-Peking terrorists who kidnaped a key official in an attempt to force a softening of President Jorge Pacheco Areco's austerity program.

The largest manhunt in the country's history was underway for Dr. Ulises Pereira Reverbel, head of the state electric and telephone company, and a male secretary. They were kidnaped Wednesday by four members of the Tupamaro National Liberation Front. Armed with machine guns, the kidnapers wounded Pereira's chauffeur and another secretary. Reverbel, 48, a wealthy cattle rancher, lawyer and close adviser to the president, had been a strong advocate of Pacheco's crackdown on labor agitation and his program of belt tightening to check inflation.

A leaflet distributed by the front said Reverbel was kidnaped "as a warning that nothing will remain unpunished and that popular justice will be exercised through the most convenient channels."

Dorplan Man Killed

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Anthony J. Estenes, 66, of Schenectady, N.Y., was killed Wednesday when his automobile rolled over and skidded on the Maine Turnpike, throwing him onto the road.

Police theorize that a trailer being pulled by the car jackknifed, causing the accident.

By GUILLERMO PIERNES

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—By nature, Argentines are averse to the temptations of narcotics. And for this reason, their capital is becoming a main pipeline for illicit drug traffic to the United States and Canada.

Nine Argentines, six of them women, have been arrested in the past two months trying to smuggle heroin and cocaine past customs officials in New York and Montreal. Officials of the two countries stated flatly that the smuggling operation is centered in Buenos Aires, using narcotics processed in Europe.

Argentine police are cooperating with international police officials in trying to crack the rings. They have had a good measure of success, as the flurry of recent arrests show.

But the campaign has not ended.

An Argentine police official, who heads a specially created anti-narcotics squad, said the nature of Argentine laws makes it difficult to make narcotics arrests here. But Argentine police pass tips and other information to international police bodies to aid them in spotting couriers using Buenos Aires as a base.

"Women are often selected as couriers because there exists a tendency among customs agents not to search them—out of modesty," said the official, who asked that his name not be used.

"The narcotics rings prefer to use Argentines—preferably Argentine women—because this is a nation without a narcotics addiction problem," he continued. "Thus, our people arouse less suspicion among customs agents than would, say, a Bolivian or a Brazilian."

The police official said operators of smuggling rings here offer prospective couriers $2,000 plus air fare to the United States or Canada for delivering packages of narcotics to contacts. He estimated that the drug dealers net $30,000 on each transaction.

Last July 12, customs agents at Kennedy International Airport in New York found $4 million worth of heroin taped to the bodies of two Argentine women, one of them a school teacher, who had just arrived from Buenos Aires. They were charged with smuggling and held in $100,000 bond each.

Applying Inheritance
To a Family's Need

Q—Our modest income has been severely strained by my husband's prolonged illness. We have a $7,500 mortgage on our home, a $450 loan against my husband's life insurance and less than $1,000 in savings. We have just been notified of an unexpected legacy that will provide $25,000 in cash and 8 shares of Diamond International. We'll appreciate your advice on how to make the best use of this surprise inheritance.

A—Congratulations on your rare good fortune. I sincerely hope that it may give your husband renewed courage while regaining his health.

I'd be inclined to let the mortgage stand if you've been able to swing it this far. I'd repay the bank loan, clear up current bills and establish a $12,000 savings account at the best available rate of interest. The remainder might be divided, putting $5,000 into bonds to enhance your feeling of security—and the balance into growth stocks for capital appreciation.

Hold Diamond International, which represents a good growth industry (packaging) and pays an annual dividend of $1.80, regularly increased since 1960. For bonds I'd recommend AAA-rated Am. Telephone 5% debentures of 1995 or Consumer Power 1st 6% of 1998 or Commonwealth Edison 6% of 1998, all selling to yield over 6%. For growth stocks, I suggest equal-dollar amounts of FMC Corp., Consolidated Foods and Santa Fe International.

Q—I'm 65 years old and have $20,000 in Certificates of Deposit paying 5 1/2%. I'd like your opinion on U.S. Treasury Certificates paying 6%.

Should I switch to these and where do I buy them?—A.B.

A—The 6% Treasury bond, maturing May 15, 1975, is selling at a premium which takes the yield back to approximately 5.6%. The principal advantage from switching your capital would be the assurance that the good yield would continue for several years. Certificates of Deposit are short-term obligations. You live near an urban center where any one of several brokerage firms could execute your order.

Man Charged With Burglary

Kingston detectives arrested a 42-year-old man Wednesday and charged him with two counts of third degree burglary in connection with an investigation of two entries made at B. Millens and Son steel and metal establishment in the downtown area.

Detectives Joseph Feraca and Meyer Levy booked Albert Lewis, of 116 Hunter Street, on burglary charges. He was accused of entering the Millens building on July 29 and Aug. 3 and taking 600 feet of copper welding cable, brass and other metals.

Feraca and Levy earlier arrested two men on charges of criminal possession of stolen property in the second degree. The charges are felonies, police said. Accused of those counts were Thomas C. Kelly, 26, of 43 Sycamore Street, and Albert Tyler, 37, of West Union Street. The cases were scheduled before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

In an unrelated case, police arrested 17-year-old John Miller of 66 West Union Street on Wednesday and charged him with burglary in the third degree. The youth was accused of the theft of copper from Block Park. Detective Floyd Krom made the arrest.

Food Ignites, Firemen Called

Smoke from a pan containing food that ignited on the stove in the home of Mrs. Gertrude A. Broadhead at 3 Schryver Court last night resulted in a call for firemen who responded with Engines 1 and 2 and Truck 2.

Alarm headquarters was notified at 9:17 p. m. that smoke was seen near the roof of the Broadhead home, and on arrival firefighters in charge of Deputy Chief Glyn Southard found the contents of a pan of food burning.

Queens Boy, 4, Rescued From High Falls Pool

By WALTER S. CLARK

A 4-year-old boy vacationing with his parents at the Makowsky Cottage Colony on Rock Hill Road in High Falls, was rescued from drowning Wednesday afternoon in a swimming pool at the summer resort after he reportedly slipped and fell in deep water.

The boy, Keith Dienes, of 90-30 Union Turnpike, Glendale, Queens, was taken from the water by David Ciele, 17-year-old counselor at the resort, who with Clair Zieler, a guest, administered first aid to revive the boy.

The Marletown First Aid and Rescue Squad responded to a call after Ellenville State Police were notified. The ambulance crew treated the boy and rushed him to Benedictine Hospital where he was examined and treated in the emergency room and later released.

Milton Makowsky, operator of the cottage colony, said the boy was among a large number of persons swimming in the pool after 2:30 p. m. yesterday. The boy, Makowsky said apparently walked in the pool and went past the three foot safety zone mark.

Other swimmers saw the child splashing in the water and then he went beneath the surface. The counselor quickly reached the boy and took him out of the water where Miss Zieler applied artificial respiration.

Makowsky said the boy had been in the pool for some time before the incident occurred. He added that the child was taken to the hospital as a precautionary measure in case hospitalization was decided upon after examination by physicians at Benedictine.

Scores of guests at the summer resort witnessed the near-drowning and watched the young counselor go to the aid of the boy as he struggled in deep water.

State Police Sergeant Henry S. Rhodes of Ellenville said troopers went to the cottage colony after being notified but on arrival they found the boy had been taken from the pool.

Queens Boy, 4, Rescued From High Falls Pool

By WALTER S. CLARK

A 4-year-old boy vacationing with his parents at the Makowsky Cottage Colony on Rock Hill Road in High Falls, was rescued from drowning Wednesday afternoon in a swimming pool at the summer resort after he reportedly slipped and fell in deep water.

The boy, Keith Dienes, of 90-30 Union Turnpike, Glendale, Queens, was taken from the water by David Ciele, 17-year-old counselor at the resort, who walked in the pool and went past the three foot safety zone.

The Marbletown First Aid and Rescue Squad responded to a call after Ellenville State Police were notified. The ambulance crew treated the boy and rushed him to Benedictine Hospital where he was examined and treated in the emergency room and later released.

Milton Makowsky, operator of the cottage colony, said the boy was among a large number of persons swimming in the pool after 2:30 p. m. yesterday. The boy, Makowsky said apparently walked in the pool and went past the three foot safety zone.

Other swimmers saw the child splashing in the water and then he went beneath the surface. The counselor quickly reached the boy and took him out of the water where Miss Zieler applied artificial respiration.

Makowsky said the boy had been in the pool for some time before the incident occurred. He added that the child was taken to the hospital as a precautionary measure in case hospitalization was decided upon after examination by physicians at Benedictine.

Scores of guests at the summer resort witnessed the near-drowning and watched the young counselor go to the aid of the boy as he struggled in deep water.

State Police Sergeant Henry S. Rhodes of Ellenville said troopers went to the cottage colony after being notified but on arrival they found the boy had been taken from the pool.

Crime Info Center

By MALCOLM G. BARR
WASHINGTON AP — A Baton Rouge, La. policeman halted a car for running a stop sign last month.

Before the officer finished making out the ticket, a routine check by a new computer hundreds of miles away in Washington D.C., reported that the driver was wanted in a half-million-dollar New York bank robbery.

Unusual? Not any longer, said the FBI Monday in reporting on the first 18 months operation of the National Crime Information Center.

The FBI called the center, located near its headquarters in the capital, "the greatest advance in law enforcement in 25 years" and said it's responsible for 500,000 arrests or recoveries of stolen property each month.

The big computer is the guts of the center, which serves as a warehouse of facts on 586,000 wanted men, stolen cars, missing guns, and hundreds of other items bearing serial numbers.

The center provides almost instantaneous information to more than 700 police departments in 43 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

Hawaii will be hooked up to the system Aug. 9 and by the end of the year all 50 states will "subscribe."

The FBI said notices of stolen cars or descriptions of fugitives and missing property are fed electronically by police agencies into one of 62 terminals. These terminal points relay the information to the $1-million center in Washington.

California alone has 300 police departments which feed information into one terminal. New York state has about 140 agencies which run their data through two relay points.

REQUEST FUNDS — Dewese W. DeWitt (L), chairman of Mid-Hudson Heart Association accepts check from John M. Robbins, president of Ulster TB and Health Association representing special bequest funds from the estates of the late Mrs. Grace Van Dover Shultis and Mrs. Blanche Sherman Berman. They were bequeathed to the TB group. Also on hand for the presentation were Miss Katherine A. Bower, executive director of the Heart Association and E. Robert Johnson, executive director of the TB group whose directors ordered that both bequest funds, as received in the treasury be withdrawn and presented to the Heart office in order to conform with the original intent of both wills that the funds be used for Heart program. The local Heart group, originally organized by the TB Association, was until 1965, a division of the TB group. (Freeman photo by Kn'h).

HUD and Private Housing— The Gap Getting Little Wider

By JAMES L. SRODES
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The gap between the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the private housing industry is getting a little wider.

HUD's "new approach" to housing problems is scarcely two months old and already one spokesman for homebuilders has taken it to task.

HOUSE AND HOME magazine, a New York publication for builders, has entitled its July editorial on the HUD policy change, "How to Blow $1 Million-Plus to Justify a Re- search Budget You Don't Know How to Use." H&H means every word it says.

The target of the blast is HUD's program of "in-city" experiments in low cost housing for low income families. The program aimed at involving private industry in seeking more efficient methods of planning and building in the urban core.

According to H&H, the program was ill-planned and poorly organized, political pressures influenced the allocation of funds, the building industry was bypassed and, if all this isn't bad enough, it was not the answer to the problem.

HUD's reaction has been as strong as the charges. In denying the charges, the housing agency accused H&H of being confused, said the publication cited only half the evidence and that it had not been friendly to HUD in the past anyway. HUD hopes H&H will use its letter in its August issue.

All this only underscores the basic gap between HUD and the homebuilders.

Speak Reverently

While both HUD and homebuilders speak of housing for the poor in the same tone reserved for mother's pie and Old Glory, they both view each other as enemies. The homebuilders look on HUD as government interference by people with little or no experience in construction while HUD wishes wistfully that the homebuilders would work more for its programs than for profits.

The "in-city" program is a case in point.

For a long time HUD had been criticized by the homebuilders and others for its policy of passively sitting back until a community proposed abolition for one of its urban problems. Be more aggressive, they said to HUD, and how about letting private industry use some of its knowhow to help you?

Since April, HUD Secretary Robert C. Weaver unveiled the "new approach"—an aggressive program taking the campaign to the cities and offering assistance for specific tasks with the emphasis on the private sector.

Also unveiled was Thomas F. Rogers, a former Defense Department systems analyst who was to coordinate HUD's technical programs with other federal agencies and the cities.

In May, HUD announced its "in-city" program. Its aim was to attract private industry help in solving the problems of building large scale low income housing in a short period of time. The experiment was to take place in 20 cities so there would be a wide range of experience.

The 19 firms which bid were winnowed down to three finalists who were asked to do preliminary surveys over a six-week period. The engineering division of Kaiser Industries Inc., of California finally awarded a two-year contract for $4.9 million.

Boos and Catcalls
Boos and catcalls from House and Home magazine followed shortly.

First, said H&H, "Only aerospace groups, think-tanks and a few architectural firms were asked directly to bid. Nobody with any expertise in housing to speak of was invited."

Wrong, say HUD officials. They cite invitations to builders of Levittown, Reston, Va., to the Kingsberry Homes Corp. as well as to aircraft companies, lumber associations and other firms as being among the 171 invitations issued.

H&H also implied there was political hanky-panky in selection of the finalists from the 19 bidders. It claims one of the bidders had it in the bag anyway, but the agency just went through the motions for appearance's sake.

The magazine's editors also confused the "in-city" housing program with the model cities program for rehabilitation of neighborhoods and made some additional criticisms which HUD will no doubt also take great pains to correct.

The problem, of course, is that neither charges nor corrections or countercharges will do much to close the gap which keeps government and industry from being what they both say they want to be—partners in the effort to provide decent housing for less fortunate Americans.

Crime Info Center

By MALCOLM G. BARR
WASHINGTON AP — A Baton Rouge, La. policeman halted a car for running a stop sign last month.

Before the officer finished making out the ticket, a routine check by a new computer hundreds of miles away in Washington D.C., reported that the driver was wanted in a half-million-dollar New York bank robbery.

Unusual? Not any longer, said the FBI Monday in reporting on the first 18 months operation of the National Crime Information Center.

The FBI called the center, located near its headquarters in the capital, "the greatest advance in law enforcement in 25 years" and said it's responsible for 500-600 arrests or recoveries of stolen property each month. The big computer is the guts of the center, which serves as a warehouse of facts on 586,000 wanted men, stolen cars, missing guns, and hundreds of other items bearing serial numbers. The center provides almost instantaneous information to more than 700 police departments in 43 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

Hawaii will be hooked up to the system Aug. 9 and by the end of the year all 50 states will "subscribe."

The FBI said notices of stolen cars or descriptions of fugitives and missing property are fed electronically by police agencies into one of 62 terminals. These terminal points relay the information to the $1-million center in Washington.

California alone has 300 police departments which feed information into one terminal. New York state has about 140 agencies which run their data through two relay points.

REQUEST FUNDS — Dewese W. DeWitt (L), chairman of Mid-Hudson Heart Association accepts check from John M. Robbins, president of Ulster TB and Health Association representing special bequest funds from the estates of the late Mrs. Grace Van Dover Shultis and Mrs. Blanche Sherman Berman. They were bequeathed to the TB group. Also on hand for the presentation were Miss Katherine A. Bower, executive director of the Heart Association and E. Robert Johnson, executive director of the TB group whose directors ordered that both bequest funds, as received in the treasury be withdrawn and presented to the Heart office in order to conform with the original intent of both wills that the funds be used for Heart program. The local Heart group, originally organized by the TB Association, was until 1965, a division of the TB group. (Freeman photo by Kreh).

HUD and Private Housing— The Gap Getting Little Wider

By JAMES L. SRODES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The gap between the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the private housing industry is getting a little wider.

HUD's "new approach" to housing problems is scarcely two months old and already one spokesman for homebuilders has taken it to task.

According to H&H, the HOUSE AND Home magazine, a New York publication for builders, has entitled its July editorial on the HUD policy change, "How to Blow $1 Million-Plus to Justify a Research Budget You Don't Know How to Use." H&H means every word it says.

The target of the blast is HUD's program of "in-city" experiments in low cost housing for low income families. The program aimed at involving private industry in seeking more efficient methods of planning and building in the urban core.

According to H&H, the program was ill-planned and poorly organized, political pressures influenced the allocation of funds, the building industry was bypassed and, if all this isn't bad enough, it was not the answer to the problem.

HUD's reaction has been as strong as the charges. In denying the charges, the housing agency accused H&H of being confused, said the publication cited only half the evidence and that it had not been friendly to HUD in the past anyway. HUD hopes H&H will use its letter in its August issue.

All this only underscores the basic gap between HUD and the homebuilders.

CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 8, 1968

The Ulster Academy Population-- A Profile of the Local Community

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Ulster Academy is making the big move.

The new independent day school strode closer to its fall opening this week as headquarters moved from 17 Pearl Street to the school site in the former Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing on Mary's Avenue.

Headmaster Raymond A. Nelson, shown at right, inspecting the paint job in his offices at the new location, said moving plans are well underway and the administrative staff is very pleased with the new quarters.

Activities this week include setting up of the art studio under the direction of Mrs. Katherine K. Wagenfohr, Master of Art and Visual Education.

Lab Facilities Set

The common room which will be used for lunch is being placed in the newly painted offices.

The extensive library collection of Ulster Academy is being placed on shelves. Many volumes especially in the science field were left by the Nursing School for use of the new Academy.

Laboratory facilities, one of the many attractions of the Benedictine Hospital site for the new school, are "all set," Nelson said.

The faculty will take up offices Sept. 4 to prepare for the first semester of the new school. In the interim, Nelson

Different Phase

Nelson said he had found the offices at 17 Pearl Street very adequate and pleasant for the 11 months since his arrival last September until now. However, he noted, the school is moving into a different phase of development when it becomes important to unify all parts of the operation, administrative and instructional.

Classes will start Sept. 16 for approximately 70 students in grades seven through 10. The possibility of a limited junior high school class of from six to 10 students is still under consideration.

Faculty appointments were completed in late July and

Nelson is enthusiastic about the well rounded academic and athletic program to be offered to students in this very first semester of the new academy which was started as just a thought in 1966.

Aim Achieved

The student population for the first class presents a profile of the community with a cross section of economic, ethnic and educational backgrounds. This was one of the aims of the original planners and has evidently been well achieved in this pioneer class.

Much has gone into planning for the new school since the idea caught fire two years ago. One of the matters of prime concern in the early stages was selection of a site. The School of Nursing facilities at Benedictine Hospital provided an excellent solution, one which met with the enthusiastic approval of the Academy board of trustees and hospital officials.

When classes start in September, the academy will utilize athletics.

ize the main and ground floors as classrooms and laboratory facilities. Fully equipped science laboratory, preparation rooms, lecture hall, library, auditorium, kitchen, common room will be provided in addition to ample classrooms.

Another feature of the site is private and ground floor entrance for students and faculty.

Faculty Members

Members of the faculty are Richard S. Wolter from Wilbraham Academy, Mass., Master of English and Language Arts; Richard E. Gavitt from Gunnery School, Conn., Master of History and Music; Thomas Gabriel from Admiral King High School, Ohio, Master of Science; Miss Margaret Wilber from The Knox School, Long Island, Master of Classics.

Also, Dr. Harold D. Sylvester, from the Pennington School, N. J., Master of Mathematics; Mrs. Wagenfohr from Rondout Valley Central School, Master of Arts and Visual Education; Kamen Gachev from Yale University, Master of Modern Languages and Louis Schafer from Kingston YMCA, director of

Lab Facilities Set

The common room which will be used for lunch is being placed in the newly painted offices.

The extensive library collection of Ulster Academy is being placed on shelves. Many volumes especially in the science field were left by the Nursing School for use of the new Academy.

Laboratory facilities, one of the many attractions of the Benedictine Hospital site for the new school, are "all set," Nelson said.

The faculty will take up offices Sept. 4 to prepare for the first semester of the new school. In the interim, Nelson

Different Phase

Nelson said he had found the offices at 17 Pearl Street very adequate and pleasant for the 11 months since his arrival last September until now. However, he noted, the school is moving into a different phase of development when it becomes important to unify all parts of the operation, administrative and instructional.

Classes will start Sept. 16 for approximately 70 students in grades seven through 10. The possibility of a limited junior high school class of from six to 10 students is still under consideration.

Faculty appointments were completed in late July and

Nelson is enthusiastic about the well rounded academic and athletic program to be offered to students in this very first semester of the new academy which was started as just a thought in 1966.

Aim Achieved

The student population for the first class presents a profile of the community with a cross section of economic, ethnic and educational backgrounds. This was one of the aims of the original planners and has evidently been well achieved in this pioneer class.

Much has gone into planning for the new school since the idea caught fire two years ago. One of the matters of prime concern in the early stages was selection of a site. The School of Nursing facilities at Benedictine Hospital provided an excellent solution, one which met with the enthusiastic approval of the Academy board of trustees and hospital officials.

When classes start in September, the academy will utilize the main and ground floors as classrooms and laboratory facilities. Fully equipped science laboratory, preparation rooms, lecture hall, library, auditorium, kitchen, common room will be provided in addition to ample classrooms.

Another feature of the site is private and ground floor entrance for students and faculty.

Faculty Members

Members of the faculty are Richard S. Wolter from Wilbraham Academy, Mass., Master of English and Language Arts; Richard E. Gavitt from Gunnery School, Conn., Master of History and Music; Thomas Gabriel from Admiral King High School, Ohio, Master of Science; Miss Margaret Wilber from The Knox School, Long Island, Master of Classics.

Also, Dr. Harold D. Sylvester, from the Pennington School, N. J., Master of Mathematics; Mrs. Wagenfohr from Rondout Valley Central School, Master of Arts and Visual Education; Kamen Gachev from Yale University, Master of Modern Languages and Louis Schafer from Kingston YMCA, director of athletics.

Sacred Heart Church, Newburgh, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Nancy Lorraine Valk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Klaus N. Valk of RD 2, Walden, to Anthony Patrick Misasi Jr., son of Mrs. Mary Misasi of Box 678, Glasco, and the late Anthony P. Misasi, on Saturday, Aug. 3.

The Rev. Dominick Leo officiated at the double ring ceremony. Also in attendance was the Rev. Jansen Dedrick of Denny Memorial Baptist Church in Walden. Mrs. Antoinette Cemente, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Baskets of white assorted flowers decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a floor length gown of French lace and organza styled with a square scooped neckline and long pointed sleeves on the fitted bodice. A hoop skirt had a tier effect with an organza ruffled overlay and a full detachable train was draped from the midback. Her headpiece was a crown of crystals and pearls attached to a four tier illusion veil and she carried a white rose and daisy bouquet, centered with an orchid corsage, on a white lace covered Bible with daisy streamers.

Mrs. Fredrick Schimmel of Newburgh was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a floor length lavender organza over taffeta gown fashioned with a scoop neckline and long sleeves. The Empire waistline was accented with daisies and the A-line skirt fell into a draped fullness in the back. She carried a nosegay of lavender and white carnations, chrysanthemums and daisies with daisy streamers.

Attendants were Mrs. James Knapp, Walden; Mrs. Gilbert Valk, sister-in-law of the bride, Walkkill; Mrs. Kenneth Valk, Walden, sister-in-law of the bride; and Miss Sarann Johnson, Walden. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Linda Misasi, Saugerties, niece of the bridegroom. Miss Sharon Misasi of Saugerties, also a niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Their gowns were fashioned similarly to that of the honor attendant in mint green, powder blue, yellow, turquoise, pink and lavender, respectively, and they carried nosegays of carnations and daisies to match their gowns. The flower girl carried a basket of pastel colored daisies.

Salvatore Misasi of Saugerties was best man for his brother. Serving as ushers were Carl Crispino, cousin of the bridegroom; John Ascarino, uncle of the bridegroom; Edward Sinnott Sr., brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Michael Mayone, all of Glasco; and Junior usher was Salvatore Misasi Jr. of Saugerties, nephew of the bridegroom. Another nephew of the bridegroom, Edward Sinnott of Glasco, served as ringbearer.

After the wedding a reception for 162 guests was held at the Rhoda Arms in Newburgh. For her wedding trip to Florida, the bride chose a combination white and beige dress accented with a pink jacket and pink and white accessories.

Mrs. Misasi is a graduate of Valley Central High School, Montgomery, and Krissler Business Institute of Poughkeepsie. She is employed by IBM, Gaithersburg, Md. She is a member of Denny Memorial Baptist Church in Walden.

Her husband, a 1961 alumnus of Saugerties High School, is employed as produce supervisor for Grand Union's Washington Division. He is assigned to 100th Division. He is assigned to 100th Division General Supply Company, 1850 Baltimore Road, Rockville, Md., USA. He is a member of St. Joseph's Church, Glasco.

Mr. and Mrs. Misasi will reside at Eldorado Towers, 1215 Oak Leaf Drive, Silver Springs, Md.

Autograph Party Slated Aug. 23

An autographing party for Jane Barry, author of "Grass Roots," will be given Friday, Aug. 23 from 3-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. at the Book Center, Ulster Shopping Plaza, Albany Avenue extension.

Mrs. Barry's book is a story of men in politics and politics in action. It is also a very human tale of a professional campaign manager and the woman who sustains him when the fighting gets rough, yet questions the brawling, heart breaking business which is "the madness of many for the gain of a few."

Jane Barry, whose husband has been in grassroots politics most of his life as a public relations man for state senators and other officials, is eminently qualified to write this account of day-by-day, blow-by-blow progress of an election campaign. Responsive to the moods and motivations of the political arena, she recreates with the extraordinary vigor the mistakes, the triumphs, the deals and intrigues.

Miss Barry has authored also "A Time in the Sun," "A Shadow of Eagles," "Maximilian's Gold," "Grass Roots" is her first book with a modern setting.

MRS. ROBERT LASHER, left, helps Mrs. Wessel Cross adjust her Dutch cap as the women prepare for Dutch Day and the historic house tour at Stone Ridge. Sponsored by the Women's Guild of Marletown Reformed Church, the event will take place Saturday, Aug. 17, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Luncheon will be served in the church basement from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. The tour of six historic houses will include the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. James Embree, Dr. and Mrs. Ted Grenda, Miss Harriet Church, Miss Barbara White and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Springer. Tickets will be available at the church. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Here is a mother who writes for all children the kind of stories she wished she could have found for her own. Jane Clement has provided tales that renew and refresh, that quietly remind us that love, purity and self-sacrifice are still precious. A whimsical fairy tale, a legend and a richly historical piece are among the forms used. Of a previously published Christmas story by Mrs. Clement entitled "The Three Gifts" which appeared in a new collection of Christmas stories, BEHOLD THAT STAR, Ruth Hill Viguers, then Editor of THE HORN BOOK wrote: "Among several stories of real distinction are . . . "The Store Where It's Always a Pleasure to Shop"

MRS. CLINTON KEITH of West Hurley was caught by Freeman photographer John Kruh leaving a local food market with her ample grocery supply. The mother of three children, Mrs. Keith said, "if prices keep going up, people with large families will be forced to buy less nutritious foods because they are more expensive." In a survey just completed by the Freeman's Woman's Department it was found that food prices in the area have been steadily rising with no remedy in sight.

'The Sky's the Limit' Where Food Cost Is Concerned

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI
For the Woman's Dept.

"Up, up, up," said Mrs. Michael Apuzzo when she was questioned recently by a Freeman Woman's Dept. reporter in a local market . . . and she was speaking about food prices not balloons.

Mrs. John Weber, another shopper and the mother of five children, also noted a steady rise in prices within the past year, mainly in dairy products and frozen vegetables. In her own words, "I don't notice any particular increase in meat costs, maybe because I buy my meats at sale prices and store them in the freezer, but 59 cents for a pound of tomatoes and a dollar for 10 ears of sweet corn is a bit too much. At that rate I'll have to ration food in my home."

Mrs. Bessie Perry might have an answer to some of women's problems about cost. She claims prices fluctuate to such a degree that food items are three to four cents cheaper at the beginning of the week. She evidently practices what she preaches as it was Monday when she was interviewed.

The government reported the cost of living took its biggest upward jump in more than two years in June. The Labor Department reported that the consumer price index was 4.2 per cent higher than a year ago. And what do proprietors of local markets have to say? The Freeman Woman's Dept. took a survey to find out.

We used the average cost of preparing a Sunday dinner at home for a family of four, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's figures, as a guide. Their report claimed costs were down five cents during the month of June if the dinner was roast beef and down 11 cents if it was chicken. Our sample dinner menu included fruit cup, tossed salad, entree, dessert and coffee. Considering the number of local markets contacted, it was quite evident that the women shoppers were right. Prices in the Ulster County area have been steadily rising. Only one store of the several which participated in the survey listed lower prices. This fact is perhaps even more surprising because, besides meat and canned goods, fresh fruits and vegetables such as tomatoes, lettuce, green peppers, onions were included in the check, and in August these foods should be plentiful and reasonable.

The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets indicates that poultry continues to "lessen the strain on the meat budget." Plentiful supplies of beef, pork and poultry are available but "wholesale prices on beef are holding to the high figures of previous weeks."

However, shoppers don't need records to tell them they are saving or spending more. Mrs. Evelyn Usherwood knows "I'm leaving the store today with the same amount of food but it's costing me $30-$35 when it used to be $20-$25."

What about the rest of the country? Mrs. Warren Westbrook, recently arrived here from California, says, "Meat, milk and staples in general, sure are higher here than in California."

Where will it all lead to, we wanted to know. And Peggy Slizewski of Kingston had one answer. "If it keeps up it's going to lead to starvation."

Welcoming Foreign Visitors

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

tions on the American scene:

How does one say "welcome" to visitors from foreign lands?

In these days of the national "Visit the U.S.A." and "Discover America" programs, some of the answers come from the Society of American Travel Writers.

This group, many of whose members have been guests in almost every country and almost every U.S. state, has summed things up in a handbill it's posting around New York City. Called how to "Be a Sidewalk Ambassador for New York City," its suggestions are just as applicable in any other city, town or village in the land.

—Inquire whether you can help him, when a stranger appears lost or hesitant.

—Take time to give him accurate and specific directions.

—Speak slowly and distinctly,

but not loudly, when assisting a foreign visitor.

—Walk with him a block, or even more, to point out the way.

—Be enthusiastic and well-informed about New York's (or your city's) sight-seeing attractions.

—Be friendly. Be courteous. Be hospitable. He is your guest.

—Remember, at least one visitor's unforgettable memory of New York (or your own town) may be you.

As one who's collected roadside signs since the automobile became our way of life, I happily relay this group quoted in the Ford Times, a publication of the auto manufacturing company.

Sign on entering a small town: "Drive carefully. Don't insist on your rites."

Another, near a school road, "Approach a school the way you did as a child—slowly!"

And on a tow truck, "Call us at any hour—we're always on our toes."

Caption on a cartoon showing a mother and small boy at the check-out counter of a supermarket:

"... And he contains one box of cookies, 29 cents ... one orange soda, 12 cents ... a pint of ice cream, 36 cents."

MRS. CLINTON KEITH of West Hurley was caught by Freeman photographer John Kruh leaving a local food market with her ample grocery supply. The mother of three children, Mrs. Keith said, "if prices keep going up, people with large families will be forced to buy less nutritious foods because they are more expensive. In a survey just completed by the Freeman's Woman's Department it was found that food prices in the area have been steadily rising with no remedy in sight.

Benefit For Vietnam Victims

HUGUENOT DANCE WORKSHOP

The Performing Arts of Woodstock will sponsor a dance concert Saturday night for the benefit of Vietnamese children who have endured intense suffering as a result of the war. PAW is working in cooperation with the Committee of Responsibility, Inc., New York, and organization dedicated to the care of these children of Vietnam who survive the initial stages of napalm burns, massive injuries and subsequent deformities. The Committee has obtained medical and hospital commitments including temporary foster care in the United States for the war-burned and injured children. A large number of surgical specialists in the United States are willing to contribute their skills in furthering the cause of the Committee.

The benefit dance will be given by the Huguenot Dance Workshop on August 10 at 8:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre in Woodstock. Donation will be $1. All proceeds will be given to the Committee of Responsibility, Inc.

The Little Theatre is on Tinker Street next door to the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen. Donations are being accepted for the Committee by PAW at Box 517, Woodstock. The theatre will open at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday. Public is invited.

'The Sky's the Limit' Where Food Cost Is Concerned

For the Woman's Dept.

"Up, up, up," said Mrs. Michael Apuzzo when she was questioned recently by a Freeman Woman's Dept. reporter in a local market... and she was speaking about food prices not balloons.

Mrs. John Weber, another shopper and the mother of five children, also noted a steady rise in prices within the past year, mainly in dairy products and frozen vegetables. In her own words, "I don't notice any particular increase in meat costs, maybe because I buy my meats at sale prices and store them in the freezer, but 59 cents for a pound of tomatoes and a dollar for 10 ears of sweet corn is a bit too much. At that rate I'll have to ration food in my home."

Mrs. Bessie Perry might

have an answer to some of women's problems about cost. She claims prices fluctuate to such a degree that food items are three to four cents cheaper at the beginning of the week. She evidently practices what she preaches as it was Monday when she was interviewed.

The government reported the cost of living took its biggest upward jump in more than two years in June. The Labor Department reported that the consumer price index was 4.2 per cent higher than a year ago. And what do proprietors of local markets have to say? The Freeman Woman's Dept. took a survey to find out.

We used the average cost of preparing a Sunday dinner at home for a family of four, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's figures, as a guide. Their report claimed costs were down five cents during the month of June if the dinner was roast beef and down 11 cents if it was chicken. Our sample dinner menu included fruit cup, tossed salad, entree, dessert and coffee. Considering the number of local markets contacted, it was quite evident that the women shoppers were right. Prices in the Ulster County area have been steadily rising. Only one store of the several which participated in the survey listed lower prices. This fact is perhaps even more surprising because, besides meat and canned goods, fresh fruits and vegetables such as tomatoes, lettuce, green peppers, onions were included in the check, and in August these foods should be plentiful and reasonable.

The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets indicates that poultry continues to "lessen the strain on the meat budget." Plentiful supplies of beef, pork and poultry are available but "wholesale prices on beef are holding to the high figures of previous weeks."

However, shoppers don't need records to tell them they are saving or spending more. Mrs. Evelyn Usherwood knows "I'm leaving the store today with the same amount of food but it's costing me $30-$35 when it used to be $20-$25."

What about the rest of the country? Mrs. Warren Westbrook, recently arrived here from California, says, "Meat, milk and staples in general, sure are higher here than in California."

Where will it all lead to, we wanted to know. And Peggy Slizewski of Kingston had one answer: "If it keeps up it's going to lead to starvation."

Welcoming Foreign Visitors

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

tions on the American scene: "How does one say 'welcome' to visitors from foreign lands? In these days of the national 'Visit the U.S.A.' and 'Discover America' programs, some of the answers come from the Society of American Travel Writers.

This group, many of whose members have been guests in almost every country and almost every U.S. state, has summed things up in a handbill it's posting around New York City. Called how to "Be a Sidewalk Ambassador for New York City," its suggestions are just as applicable in any other city, town or village in the land.

Inquire whether you can help him, when a stranger appears lost or hesitant.

—Take time to give him accurate and specific directions.

—Speak slowly and distinctly,

but not loudly, when assisting a foreign visitor.

—Walk with him a block, or even more, to point out the way.

—Be enthusiastic and well-informed about New York's (or your city's) sight-seeing attractions.

—Be friendly. Be courteous.

Be hospitable. He is your guest.

—Remember, at least one visitor's unforgettable memory of New York (or your own town) may be you.

As one who's collected roadside signs since the automobile became our way of life, I happily relay this group quoted in the Ford Times, a publication of the auto manufacturing company.

Sign on entering a small town: "Drive carefully. Don't insist on your rites."

Another, near a school road, "Approach a school the way you did as a child—slowly!"

And on a tow truck, "Call us at any hour—we're always on our tows."

SOFT DRINKS LURE SHOPPERS

Families are spending almost twice as much money on carbonated soft drinks as they did 10 years ago, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's recent Household Food Consumption Survey. The National Soft Drink Association reports that Americans each drank on an average 287 8-ounce drinks or almost 18 gallons of soft drinks during 1966. Consumption of soft drinks has grown more than 50 per cent in the last decade, while our use of most other beverages has remained fairly stable. Many reasons account for the rapid growth in our use of soft drinks, says Louise M. Kakargo, Extension Home Economist.

Consumers have a choice of 25 to 30 different flavors of soft drinks from which to choose. But more than half of the ten top selling brands last year were colas. Colas accounted for 63 per cent of the total soft drink market in 1967. Two companies have introduced a new caffeine-free cola in test markets. Regular cola drinks contain about one-third as much of the stimulant, caffeine, as a cup of coffee. Caffeine-free colas may be of special interest to people who want to limit their caffeine intake.

Dietetic sodas have attracted many people to the use of soft drinks. In 1960, 20 million cases of dietetic soft drinks were produced. By 1966, sales jumped to more than 400 million cases, and by 1970, industry sources predict that sales will exceed 800 million cases. Currently, about 15 per cent of all the soft drinks produced are low calorie ones.

It is often difficult to make cost comparisons among different sodas at the store, because the price is not always marked on the container. If you do not find the price marked, you may want to call it to the attention of the store manager.

A recent supermarket survey of soft drinks revealed that there was no difference in cost between the regular and dietetic form of a given brand of soda. Flavor generally does not affect cost. In the store checked, fruit flavors and colas were more similar in price.

Cost differs among brands of soda. In general, a store's own private label costs less than a nationally advertised brand. In the store recently surveyed, a large 28-ounce bottle of the private label brand cost about 17 cents whereas the same size bottle of a nationally advertised brand cost about 29 cents.

Buying soda in larger size containers usually lowers the cost per ounce. For example, the cost per ounce of one brand of soda purchased in 6½-ounce bottles was nearly double the cost per ounce of sodas purchased in 16-ounce bottles.

You can save money when you buy soda in returnable bottles rather than throw away bottles or cans. One brand of cola bought in a 12-ounce can cost about 15 cents compared with 11 cents for cola bought in the same size bottle that was returned. However, if the bottle is not returned, the cost increases to 13 cents.

Delicious Can Can Barbecue

Tired of wieners and hamburgers from your grill? About this time of year most of us are weary of the same menu. Then how about serving grilled canned luncheon meat slices and a vegetable casserole concocted from cupboard-convenient ingredients that you can heat over your charcoal grill? Everything is there on your cupboard shelf and, for you campers, this is a dandy menu that you can tote along.

A can of cream of asparagus soup binds together the mellow canned sweet peas and vacuum-packed golden whole kernel corn. Dry onion soup mix has all the seasonings you'll need and American cheese spread, squeezed from its pressurized can, gives the casserole a yummy, golden topping. If your family likes meat glazes, you can baste the luncheon meat slices with your favorite bottled barbecue sauce. Crisp relishes, especially pickle and carrot sticks, are a good go-along. For dessert, you'll want to slice a chilled watermelon. Keep a jar of instant tea on your cupboard shelf, too, for big pitchers of frosty cool iced tea.

Cupboard Casserole

- 1 7-oz. can vacuum-packed golden whole kernel corn
- 1 10½-oz. can condensed cream of asparagus soup
- 1 17-oz. can sweet peas, drained

- 1 5-oz. can water chestnuts, drained and diced
- 2 tablespoons dry onion soup mix
- Processed American cheese spread from pressurized can Combine undrained corn with soup in a 1½-quart casserole. Stir in peas, water chestnuts and onion soup mix. Top with cheese to taste. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or heat over charcoal grill until casserole bubbles and is hot. Yield: 6 servings.

Dramatic Mini-Coffee Souffle Desserts

To bring down the curtain on an elegant dinner party with a chorus of bravos, present these individual Coffee Walnut Souffles as the final act. Do you think they look far too difficult to prepare? Well, that's not the case at all.

A chilled souffle, in contrast to the hot, temperamental type, is dependable. It will be consistently light, even, high and delicious. This is why individual chilled souffles such as these coffee walnut beauties take no more time or effort than other refrigerator desserts. In fact, you'll find that they are actually convenient because they can be prepared hours in advance and held in the refrigerator until just the right moment.

The stabilizing factor in Chilled Coffee Walnut Souffles is gelatin; it is so well united with the egg whites and whipped cream that you'd never guess it was there. Yet, it does its work well by producing a creamy texture that also holds its shape when chilled.

Part of the glamor of this dessert is in the serving dishes you select. We thought that, long-stemmed, crystal dessert goblets were particularly dramatic (but small, deep china bowls or even decorative coffee cups would also be appropriate).

For the traditional high-hat effect, foil collars are bound around the rims and the mixture is spooned in to the top of the foil extensions. When the souffles are chilled and firm, the collars are removed. Don't tell the secret right away; at least not until your guests have a chance to sip their demitasse and wonder a while. And if they're also wondering about how you brew such rich, fragrant demitasse, tell them it's really quite elementary. Simply use one Approved Coffee Measure (equal to two level measuring tablespoons) of coffee to each four ounces of water per serving. Pour immediately after brewing at peak flavor into your daintiest china cups.

INDIVIDUAL COFFEE WALNUT SOUFFLES

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 1 cup sugar, divided
- 4 tablespoons instant coffee powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, separated
- 2½ cups milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups heavy cream
- ½ cup finely chopped walnuts

Combine gelatin, ½ cup sugar, instant coffee and salt in two-and-a-half quart saucepan. Beat egg yolks with milk. Add to gelatin mixture. Stir over low heat until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly, about 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from heat; add vanilla. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Meanwhile, prepare collars on dessert glasses by binding a double strip of aluminum foil firmly around top of each glass, extending one inch above top rim of each glass. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Add remaining ½ cup sugar gradually. Beat until very stiff. Fold in gelatin mixture. Whip cream; fold in with walnuts. Spoon into prepared dessert glasses. Chill until firm. Remove collars. Garnish with additional chopped walnuts, if desired. Makes eight to 12 servings. (Half the recipe may be molded in five-cup mold or turned into nine-inch baked pie shell.) *For eight to 12 servings with "top hat," use four to six-ounce goblets or demitasse cups. If eight-ounce glass or dish is used, "top hat" will be eliminated or number of servings will be reduced to four to six extra-large portions.

Food Tips for Busy Housewives

Meat loaves lend themselves to so many variations. For the meat you can use ground beef, ground pork, veal, lamb, or ham, or a combination of two or more of any of these. They may be topped with a frosting of mashed potatoes, or served with a number of zesty sauces. Onions or potatoes may be cooked on top of them while the meat loaf is baking. This gives them an unusually good meaty flavor.

To perk up spinach or kale, garnish with egg butterflies. Arrange half slice of hard cooked eggs back to back to form butterfly wings. Tiny pieces of green pepper make the antennae and eyes. Tiny strips of pimiento or stuffed olive slices may also add and point up their color.

To curtain an open cabinet or closet, hang the curtain on swinging drapery arms instead of straight across. When hung this way, they look neater and have all the convenience of a door.

To help that little first or second grader get a firmer grip on a wide-mouthed vacuum bottle, place a couple of rubber bands around the middle. This enables small hands to hold on better.

When making a knitting bag, leave the sides open and sew large snap fasteners on them. Then, when knitting, unsnap the sides; the bag will form an apron on your lap. This keeps the knitting clean and protects your dress from lint.

Rubber soap dishes, drain-board covers, bowl scrapers, and rubber gloves all may be cleaned with a baking soda solution. Use three tablespoons of soda dissolved in a quart of warm water.

It is easy to dry flowers with cornmeal and borax or fine sand. The bouquets or arrangements which result give a wonderful flow of achievement.

Tigers Tab Campbell As "Rookie of Year"

By AL DALY
UPI Sports Writer

This has to be "The Year of the Tiger"—rookie Dave Campbell hit a two-run homer, his first hit in the majors, while playing with a 102 temperature.

Campbell's homer highlighted a three-run eighth-inning uprising that put the finishing touches on a 6-1 Detroit victory over the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night after the Tigers made the last three putouts of a 5-2 triumph in a game suspended Tuesday night.

Campbell's only regret was that his parents, who live in nearby Lansing, Mich., weren't on hand to see the homer.

"They were here in Detroit Tuesday night," he said with a wry grin. "But I rode the bench all night."

In other American League action, Oakland and New York split a doubleheader with the Yankees winning the opener 3-0 and the Athletics taking the 10-inning nightcap 4-3, the Boston Red Sox edged the Chicago White Sox 3-2, the Baltimore Orioles swept the Minnesota Twins 3-0 and 9-6 and the California Angels defeated the Washington Senators 4-2.

Braves Play Twice At Dietz Tonight

Kingston's high-flying Braves, leading both halves of the Hudson Valley Rookie League pennant race, hope to firm up their standing in a two-night doubleheader against the Wappingers Falls Ions today at Dietz Stadium.

Manager Paul Giannuzzi will send right hander Ted Bream against the Ions in the 6:30 opener, and follow with fireball Frank McGowan in the 8:30 nightcap.

The Braves have identical records of 7-1 in each round. Wappingers is 3-6 in the first half and 6-4 in the second.

Romper Room Brigade Vies for WCC Title

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

The adults of the Woodstock Country Club had better look out. The romper room brigade may just move in and take over the club championship now that a vacuum has been created by Bill Van Aken's decision not to defend his title.

Fourteen-year-old Scotty Dean and 15-year-old John Buoymaster already have registered major upsets in the first round of the championship flight.

Dean, regarded by many as the next great player at Woodstock, knocked off John Hasbrouck, a highly regarded newcomer to the WCC ranks, 4 and 3.

Buoymaster perpetrated another stunner in topping Arnold Broggi, the retired college professor and one of the club's low handicap players.

The younger set received a bit of a jolt however when Ray DuBois, the 1967 finalist against Van Aken, upended Drew Rubin, 2 and 1. Rubin captured the coveted Warren Townley Memorial this year and was playing excellent golf.

Van Wagenen Upset
In other first round matches, Jay Van Wagenen drew a first round bye; Dave Dean surprised Walter S. Van Wagenen, another semi-retired pedagogue; George Seidler eliminated Andy Horvath, 5 and 4; Jim Dills topped Mike Boyle, 3 and 2; and Lembert Dean, Scotty's father, edged Harry Kennedy, the greens chairman, 1 up.

The Woodstock golf committee's decision to permit junior players in the Championship Flight did not meet with total approval at the village links.

As a matter of fact, one of the elders knocked off in the first round is an outspoken critic of the move.

The Woodstock experiment reflects the changing attitudes at area country clubs in the matter of juniors in the championships.

Handicap Minimum

Wiltwyck Country Club permits all juniors — regardless of age — to compete if they have a handicap of six or less. It's top four 1968 juniors — Ed and Bob Byman (14), Joe Bostic and Werner Kolln — fall into this category.

Van Aken, a 10-time champion at Woodstock and one of Ulster County's all-time greats, chose not to defend his title this year. He said "personal reasons" motivated his decision.

The move was not unexpected, since the perennial champion had entertained similar ideas the past few years. What kept him going was his desire to represent Woodstock Country Club in the annual Kingston Area Round Robin tournament.

This was the showcase tournament that enabled Van Aken to compete head-to-head with his long time rivals — Leon Randall, Harvey Bostic and George Hughes.

Won 24 Major Titles

When this writer decided to discontinue the Round Robin because of declining club and public interest, it was a foregone conclusion that Van Aken would not defend his Woodstock title in 1968.

With 24 major area titles to his credit — second only to Leon Randall — Van Aken probably felt that there were now only two worthwhile goals to challenge him — the Herdengen Memorial and the Woodstock Open.

Van Aken won his first Woodstock title in 1954, after transferring from Wiltwyck. He also was club champion in 1955-56 and for the past five straight years.

At one time, Wiltwyck permitted only its designated junior champion to compete in the championship flight.

The Twaalfskill Club does not permit junior players in the club championship.

Set Physicals At Saugerties

Fred Seither, athletic director at Saugerties High school, has announced dates for the annual physicals and opening of football practice.

Physicals for all sports will be given on Wednesday, Aug. 21, at 10 a. m. in the nurses office at the high school.

Football practice will begin on Wednesday, Aug. 28, at 6 p. m.

Rawhide Ranch Sets Annual Rodeo, Western Horse Show

Nearly 200 horses will be in the arena for the annual Rodeo and Western Horse Show, Saturday and Sunday (Aug. 10-11) at 2 p. m. at the Rawhide Ranch in Lake Hill. Proceeds will be for the benefit of the Muscular Dystrophy drive.

Featured events include barrel racing, pole bending, musical chairs on horseback, calf roping, bareback bronco riding, bull riding and square dancing on horseback.

Rawhide Ranch has the largest string of horses in the United States. It attracts large numbers of children from the U. S., Canada, Venezuela for an eight-week period.

Heading the staff are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Farrell, who supervise 12 college-educated cowboys and cowgirls from as far west as Texas, Colorado, Kansas and South Dakota.

Luncheon will be served by the Lake Hill Fire Department.

L A K E K I A M E S H A — The world's finest women golfers . . . one of the world's greatest golf courses and the biggest purse ever . . . $28,500.

These are the ingredients that make the weekend stop at world famed New Championship Golf Course at the Concord Hotel this weekend the greatest golf attraction ever offered in the Catskills.

Early reaction among the 45 members of the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) is almost unanimous that the Concord layout is the "toughest, longest and finest" golf course the women have ever competed on in the 17-year history of the LPGA.

And all the big guns of the tour will be here including Hall of Famer Mickey Wright, Carol Mann, the current moneybags of the tour; Kathy Whitworth, Marilyn Smith and a host of others.

Forty of the gals will compete in a Pro-Celebrity-Amateur tournament Friday for a purse of $2,500.

Tourney Opens Saturday
The 54-hole competition, for $28,500, richest purse in LPGA history, starts Saturday and concludes on Monday.

Ray Parker, the major dome at The Concord, who switched from the annual PGA tournament to the ladies circuit, has left nothing undone in an effort to make the weekend tournament a historic stop on the LPGA tour. He is being ably assisted by Michael Strauss, of the Concord sports staff and New York Times sportswriter.

Other players in the star-studded field include: Sandra Haynie, Marlene Bauer Haggie, Althea Gibson Darden, Candy Phillips, Debbie Austin, Sharon Wilder, Kathy O'Hearn, Rene Powell, Pam Barnett, Jeanne Woodward.

Louise Suggs, Due

Louise Suggs, one of the LPGA's all-time greats, is also on deck, along with Gloria Ehret, Clifford Ann Creed, veteran campaigner Betsy Rawls, Judy Kimball, Sharon Miller, Merle Lindstrom, Margie Masters and Mary Mills.

Sandra Spuzich of Milwaukee, the 1966 U.S. Women's Open champion, heads another contingent that includes Ruth Prentice, Gerta Whalen, Sandra Palmer, Peggy Whalen, Sue Burnin, Jo-Ann Ruhn, Sandra McClinton, Linda Craft, Donna Caponi, Betsy Cullen, Shirley Spork, Pet Greaves and Cynthia Sullivan.

The competition will spotlight the advances made in golf in the scenic Catskills, since Grossinger's sponsored an LPGA tour stop several years ago. Then the total purse was about one third the payoff for this 1968 event.

Rated among the top five courses in the country is the new Concord championship layout over which the tournament will be contested. It is the third 18-hole layout at the plush resort, 7,200-yard course is loaded with natural challenges manicured to peak efficiency.

One thing is assured for spectators—the LPGA gals can go for broke from almost every tee. The gals generally play on courses ranging from 6,200 to 7,200 yards. They will have nothing to hold back at the Concord committee said that a final analysis of the survey would be released soon.

purchased at the gate on the days of the tournament, LPGA officials have announced.

The tickets are priced at $4 per day and $10 for the four-day tourney. Tee off time is 8:30 a. m. Friday, 10 on Saturday; 10:30 Sunday and 9 a. m. Monday.

Thirteen Opposed To Gun Registration

Thirteen of fifteen additional responses to the gun registration questionnaire being circulated by the Saugerties Area Sportsmen's Clubs indicated opposition to gun controls, the committee has reported.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled tonight at 8 o'clock at the Saugerties Fish and Game Club in Fish Creek. The committee said that a final analysis of the survey would be released soon.

Tickets for the event may be released soon.

Eddie Fisher relieved Sam McDowell after a single and a walk in the first inning of the Tigers' regularly scheduled game in what may have been a ruse by Cleveland manager Al Dark but Al Kaline singled in one run and Bill Freehan followed with a two-run double. Earl Wilson, aided by Daryl Patterson's three innings of scoreless relief, raised his record to 10-9.

A two-run pinch double by Kaline and Norm Cash's 16th homer were the big hits in the Tigers' victory in the suspended game.

Ken Harrelson hit a two-run homer in a three-run first inning and Dick Ellsworth scattered nine hits to win his 11th game for the Red Sox. It was the seventh win in eight games for the Red Sox, who dealt Jerry Priddy his sixth loss against three victories. Harrelson, Mike Andrews and Jerry Adair had two hits each for the Red Sox.

Frank Robinson and Curt Blefary backed Jim Hardin's six-hit pitching with homers in the opener and Paul Blair's two-run single sparked a three-run rally in the sixth inning of the nightcap as the Orioles remained 6½ games behind the Tigers. The Orioles added three more runs in the seventh inning of the nightcap with the help of Ellie Hendricks' run-scoring single and a two-run double by Brooks Robinson.

Don Mincher doubled and scored on Chuck Hinton's single in the seventh inning to help Sam Ellis to his ninth victory for the Angels despite homers by Frank Howard and Cap Peterson. Howard's homer was his 32nd of the season.

A total of 11,000 special licenses will be available for hunters desiring to "get in" on the limited open season for antlerless deer within the South Branch of the Moose River "wilderness area" in central Hamilton and adjacent Herkimer counties.

A special license may be obtained by writing: New York State Conservation Department, "Wilderness Tract," Albany, N. Y., 12226. You must submit name, address and 1968 big game license number, along with a one-dollar fee. The fee should be in the form of a postal money order, cashier's check or certified check. Letters must be received before Sept. 1 or later than Nov. 25 will not be accepted. Hunters holding Area B party permits may also use them on the Moose River area.

Last year, 5,428 permits were issued and 305 deer were taken under the Special Antlerless Deer Permit. The hunt will be held during the regular gunning season in the Northeast Zone, Oct. 25-Dec. 3.

THIS HAS BEEN a controversial area, with the Conservation Department maintaining that the deer must be harvested for the good of their deer management program, while many sportsmen, natives of the area and the Blue Mountain-Indian Lake Fish and Game Club are of the opinion that there are not that many deer in the area.

The "wilderness area"—involved lands are primarily state-owned Forest Preserve lands lying south of Route 28, between Inlet and Raquette Lake. And, if you are planning to hunt this area, make sure you know where you are.

A gentle reminder: much of the surrounding land is posted solidly and patrolled by irate land owners who see no reason for the Coney Island invasion of the area.

As you may suspect, I am opposed to any kind of party permits and special seasons and, from our recent talks with veteran guides and business folk in the area, they need this special season as much as they need a blizzard in July.

As one guide aptly puts it: "If they took 305 deer on 5,428 permits and a hunter in back of every tree, I wonder how many will be harvested with 11,000 permits? Looks as if there won't be enough trees for the 'blitz'!"

Oh, yes, it will put $11,000 more into the state bank roll. Makes sense, doesn't it?

A FEW QUICKIES:

Ted Lyke, fishing for blues on a private boat out of Jersey City a couple of Saturdays ago reports a nice ride on the blue yonder, but with his five companions saw nary a bluefish boated the entire day.

Brad Wilson pretty well "banged up" after a July auto accident. Both his arms are in casts after operations and a bolted-together collarbone, but he still vows he'll be hunting by fall and hoping he has recovered from last fall's buck fever. On that occasion he was suddenly confronted by not one, but two tremendous bucks at the end of the season.

Waiting for a report from "Buckshot" Riseley on his recent fly-in to some remote Adirondack trout lakes. He made the trip with Bob Helm, one of the finest bush pilots flying out of Blue Mountain Lake.

Glascos Gun Club has set Sunday, Sept. 1, as the date for its turkey shoot on the club grounds. A real early start on the turkey shoot field, but those gobblers make good eating come the holiday feasting.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Smith of Abel Street just back from a two-weeks flight to Hawaii and just can't wait until he wets his line in his favorite Phoenicia pool. No fishing in Hawaii, but, oh those gals!

Despite the warm weather, the Phoenicia stream is still producing some nice trout creels. Some excellent browns are being taken at dusk and some fairly good, scrappy rainbows are being taken mostly on both wet and dry flies.

Happy to see Huyler Van Wagenen and Richard Nace are still in there pitching to rid the Esopus of debris and a general cleanup of this fine stream. With little or no help from the top officials, these men and their committee are doing a Herculean job. Men like these are what we need for better conservation programs.

Life With Cardinals So Good These Days

By FRED DOWN

UPI Sports Writer

Life with the St. Louis Cardinals is so good these days that manager Red Schoendienst can do more than talk about the weather.

He can do something about it. "All this heat is bound to get to various players," observed Schoendienst Wednesday night. "So I like to give a man a day or two off once in a while. I'll pick and choose from day to day as circumstances warrant." Schoendienst wasn't talking about the heat of the pennant race, of course, because the Cardinals' nine so-called rivals are stone cold dead. The Cardinals' 3-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday night was their 20th in 30 games since the All-Star break and boosted their league lead to a massive 14 games.

Resting Veterans

With such a lead, Schoendienst has been resting veterans like Orlando Cepeda, Tim Lincecum and Mike Shannon and plans to rest others like Curt Flood and Dal Maxvill. It hardly makes any difference because the Cardinal juggernaut just rolls on and on.

Three regulars were out of the lineup Wednesday night but Mel Neeley and Dick Hughes combined for an eight-hitter as the Cardinals dealt George Culver his 11th loss against nine victories. Cepeda, McGeehan and Phil Gagliano each knocked in a run and only Pete Rose's sixth homer of the year availed a Cincinnati shutout.

The Atlanta Braves romped over the Chicago Cubs 10-2, the San Francisco Giants shaded the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, the Houston Astros nipped the New York Mets 4-3 and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2 in other National League games.

Rookie Hurls 6-Hitter

Rookie George Stone pitched a six-hitter and drove in three runs with two singles to win his second game for the Braves and deal the Cubs' Ken Holtzman his eighth loss against eight victories. Jim Hickman hit his third homer and Ernie Banks his 20th for the Cubs.

Willie McCovey led off the eighth inning with his second homer of the game and 28th of the season to give the Giants their victory. Frank Linzy, who took over from Ray Sadecki in the eighth inning, received credit for his fifth win while Dick Hall suffered his first loss for the Phillies after four victories. Cookie Rojas went 3-for-3 for the Phillies.

Ted's Esso routed a King's Diner 15-8, averaging two previous defeats and wrapping up a tie for the Met Division title in the Saugerties Softball League.

The magic combination is now one Ted's win or one Boo's loss to give Ted's their second straight crown. Boo's goes against Greenfinger-Agway in tonight's game.

The O'Connor cousins did the damage for Ted's, while Maurice Hinchey was pitching an 8-hitter and slugging three singles. Don O'Connor clouted a two-run homer, his fifth of the season, and Robby had three RBIs on two doubles and a single.

At Monticello Raceway

It Was Chalk Players' Holiday

MONTICELLO — The chalk players at Monticello Raceway last night had a field day in the featured fourth, the $14,476 New York Sire Stakes event for three-year-old trotting fillies, because 1-2 favorite, Party's Over, scored a wire to wire victory all the way on the rail in 2:11 flat.

Handled by Dick Thomas for owners F. O. F. Farms, Party's Over left immediately as the starting gate pulled away and triumphed handsily over the field of 11, winning the race by three-lengths with a strong 30.1 final quarter finish.

The first fourth-mile went in 32.4 with Party's Over out front by a length with Sunny Strides (8) second, Neon Rodney (6) third and Walter's Gail (10) fourth.

Thomas backed off the second quarter to 35.3, making it to the half in 1:08.2 with no one pushing him. Bon Dia (11) did make a challenge, moving up on the outside after the half and got third going to the three-fourths which Party's Over reached in 1:40.4 a .32.2 third quarter, the fastest of the race to that point.

Coming home, the rest of the field tired but Party's Over, a daughter of Sharpshooter out of Precious Rodney by Rodney, had plenty left, pulling away from Sunny Strides and Walter's Gail, who finished second and third. He drew away from a length margin in the turn to three at the wire.

The time for that final quarter, the .30.1 clocking, gave Party's Over a 1:02.3 second half, and also giving him his fourth win in a row and sixth of the year in 10 starts.

The winner's share of the purse pushed Party's Over over the $25,000 mark for 1968 and two-year total to $56,313.

As the favorite, Party's Over paid $3.00, $2.40 and $2.80. Sunny Strides had placed pay-offs of $9.20 and $7.20 while Walter's Gail was worth $6.00 for show.

Car Dobkowski, who hadn't had a winner in 22 starts here this year, brought home Lucky Dear (5) in the first and hooked up with Romeo Lobell (4) in the second to form a $55.60 daily double.

Should the PGA tournament committee accept any of the players demands, a resolution urging adoption would be submitted to the PGA convention in November.

The players actually voted on only one matter at the Firestone meeting, and it resulted in a tie vote on a resolution to continue the section plan in qualifying the PGA championship.

Gates said that he had recommended that the players should consider appointing a commissioner to oversee their affairs on the pro tour.

"We're going to play right straight through every tournament that's been signed through 1969," Gates said.

There was no date set for a meeting between Gates and Rogers.

"We're going to play golf. It's back in the lawyer's hands. And we're behind him (Gates)," said Gardner Dickinson, spokesman for the touring pros.

Both the players and Gates emphasized there would be no boycott of the PGA.

"I think professional golf is important to this country. There's more to be gained by working these things out than by a breach," Gates said.

The touring pros have been angling for several years to gain complete authority over operation of the tour. They have demanded control over all purses, sites, television receipts and other details connected with the tour.

Ted's Near That Flag

Ted's Esso routed a King's Diner jinx, 15-8, averting two previous defeats and wrapping up a tie for the Met Division title in the Saugerties Softball League.

The magic combination is now one Ted's win or one Boo's loss to give Ted's their second straight crown. Boo's goes against Greenfinger-Agway in tonight's game.

The O'Connor cousins did the damage for Ted's, while Maurice Hinchey was pitching an 8-hitter and slugging three singles. Don O'Connor clouted a two-run homer, his fifth of the season, and Robby had three RBIs on two doubles and a single.

At Monticello Raceway

It Was Chalk Players' Holiday

MONTICELLO — The chalk players at Monticello Raceway last night had a field day in the featured fourth, the $14,476 New York Sire Stakes event for three-year-old trotting fillies, because 1-2 favorite, Party's Over, scored a wire to wire victory all the way on the rail in 2:11 flat.

Handled by Dick Thomas for owners F. O. F. Farms, Party's

Over left immediately as the starting gate pulled away and triumphed handily over the field of 11, winning the race by three-length with a strong 30.1 final quarter finish.

The first fourth-mile went in :32.4 with Party's Over out front by a length with Sunny Strides (8) second, Neon Rodney (6) third and Walter's Gail (10) fourth.

Thomas backed off the second quarter to :35.3, making it to the half in 1:08.2 with no one pushing him. Bon Dia (11) did make a challenge, moving up on the outside after the half and got third going to the three-fourths which Party's Over reached in 1:40.4 a :32.2 third quarter, the fastest of the race to that point.

Coming home, the rest of the field tired but Party's Over, a daughter of Sharpshooter out of Precious Rodney by Rodney, had plenty left, pulling away from Sunny Strides and Walter's Gail, who finished second and third. He drew away from a length margin in the turn to three at the wire.

The time for that final quarter, the :30.1 clocking, gave Party's Over a 1:02.3 second half, and also giving him his fourth win in a row and sixth of the year in 10 outs.

The winner's share of the purse pushed Party's Over over the $25,000 mark for 1968 and two-year total to $56,313.

As the favorite, Party's Over paid $3.00, $2.40 and $2.80. Sunny Strides had placed pay-offs of $9.20 and $7.20 while Walter's Gail was worth $6.00 for show.

Car Dobkowski, who hadn't had a winner in 22 starts here this year, brought home Lucky Dear (5) in the first and hooked up with Romeo Lobell (4) in the second to form a $55.60 daily double.

The companion feature, the sixth race, this one another

Sire Stakes event but for two-year-old trotting fillies, was a repeat of the earlier Sires trial, going to 1-9 choice, Nancy Lynne, by some ten lengths in 2:09.

Nancy Lynne, an offspring of Torrence Hanover out of Brevity Hanover by Nibble Hanover, was kept off the top end by driver Harold (Sonny) Dancer, Jr. until the backstretch the second time, when she zoomed by the leader to that point, Penny C., with ease and romped home all by herself.

Nancy Lynne raced home the final quarter in :31.3 after hitting that three-fourths pole in 1:37.2, while increasing her lead steadily. In the middle of the final turn, she was on top by two, and just kept increasing her margin right down to the wire.

PGA Tour Pros Bar Threats of Boycott

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—About 128 touring golf pros gave whole-hearted support to their negotiator Wednesday night in an effort to iron out problems with the parent Professional Golfers' Association (PGA).

The players meeting at the Firestone Country Club course on the eve of the American Classic Golf Tournament, gave their attorney, Sam Gates, of New York City, the go ahead to negotiate with the PGA in their demands for more authority over the pro tour. The players definitely ruled out any threat of a boycott to back up their demands.

Gates, who attended the hurriedly called meeting, said he would try the golfers' problems in New York with PGA attorney William Rogers as soon as possible.

There was no date set for a meeting between Gates and Rogers.

"We're going to play golf. It's back in the lawyer's hands. And we're behind him (Gates)," said Gardner Dickinson, spokesman for the touring pros.

Both the players and Gates emphasized there would be no boycott of the PGA.

"I think professional golf is important to this country. There's more to be gained by working these things out than by a breach," Gates said.

The touring pros have been angling for several years to gain complete authority over operation of the tour. They have demanded control over all purses, sites, television receipts and other details connected with the tour.

Some of the tour players, a relatively small group in the PGA organization, believe they are being unjustly ruled over by the PGA and that they are helping to support the club professionals.

Should the PGA tournament committee accept any of the players demands, a resolution urging adoption would be submitted to the PGA convention in November.

The players actually voted on only one matter at the Firestone meeting, and it resulted in a tie vote on a resolution to continue the section plan in qualifying the PGA championship.

Gates said that he had recommended that the players should consider appointing a commissioner to oversee their affairs on the pro tour.

"We're going to play right straight through every tournament that's been signed through 1969," Gates said.

Red Whites Nip Yallum's in 13-Inning Marathon, 2 to 1

RHUBARB TIME—Team members from the Houston Astros and the New York Mets waded into action against each other after Mets (3b) Kevin Collins was knocked out during a slide into 3rd base by Astros Doug Rader during the 13th inning of yesterday's action. The free-for-all started after Rader was accused of roughing Collins up with an elbow to the neck. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Mets Give Astrodome Free Swinging Rhubarb

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Houston Astrodome, which has always strived to present "the first" and "the biggest" in sports attractions, Wednesday recorded another first—a rhubarb.

The short, but free-swinging fight broke out in the fourth inning of a game between the Houston Astros and the New York Mets when Met third baseman Kevin Collins was flattened on a slide into third by Houston's Doug Rader.

Collins was struck in the face by Rader's elbow when Rader jumped out of his slide to complete a run scoring triple.

The Mets dugout emptied as the players crowded around Collins, laying on his back just behind third base. The Astros came out of their dugout when some of the Mets and Rader began exchanging comments.

Pignatano and Astro's Manager Harry Walker began the rhubarb.

Police and the umpires finally succeeded in quelling the fracas.

Collins, carried out on a stretcher during the fighting, was taken to the training room where ice packs were applied to his face. He was not believed seriously injured.

Pat House and Steve Shea snuffed out a New York rally in the eighth inning Wednesday night to preserve Larry Dierker's 10th win as the Houston Astros topped the Mets 4-3.

Dierker was tagged for a two-run double by Cleon Jones in the eighth after Tommie Agee reached base on Hector Torres' error and Larry Stahl walked. House replaced Dierker and retired pinch-hitter Ron Swoboda on a groundout and Shea then came on and got pinch-hitter Jerry Grote on a foul pop and Ed Charles on an infield grounder to end the inning.

Shea retired the Mets in the ninth to preserve the victory.

Yankees Split Pair With Oakland Athletics

NEW YORK (UPI)—Reggie Jackson looped a single to center field scoring Mike Hershberger in the 10th inning to give the Oakland Athletics a 4-3 win Wednesday after Joe Pepitone's homer and the six-hit pitching of Mel Stottlemire gave the New York Yankees a 3-0 victory in the first game of the doubleheader.

Hershberger batted for winning pitcher Lew Krausse and singled. He was sacrificed to second by Bert Campaneris and then Jackson looped his game-winning hit to center. Krausse received credit for his eighth victory while Steve Hamilton suffered his first loss.

Joe Keough homered in his first major league at bat in the majors to tie the score at 3-3 in the eighth inning after the Yankees took a 3-2 lead in the seventh on Gene Michael's single, Lindsay McDaniel's sacrifice and a single by Roy White.

Jim Pagliaroni homered in the fifth for the Athletics' first run but the Yankees went ahead 2-1 in the sixth when Dick Howser walked, Bill Robinson doubled and both tallied on a wild pitch by starter John Odum.

Singles by Danny Cater, Sal Bando and Joe Rudi and John Donaldson's infield out accounted for the Athletics' second run in the seventh.

Stottlemire, who raised his record to 15-8, struck out five and walked one in the opener.

Pepitone hit his fourth homer after White reached first on an error by second baseman Ted Kubiak. Pepitone also singled to open the seventh inning with a home run, who hit into a forceout, eventually scoring on a double by Bobby Cox.

The game was delayed an

Last night he stepped to the plate in the first inning of the championship playoff between RW's and Yallum's and faced pitcher Richie Hoffman of Yallum's. Mallard took two strikes then sliced a shot into the left field corner for a leadoff triple. An out later he scored on George Boyer's loft to Frank Allen in centerfield and put Red Whites ahead, 1-0.

RECIPE FOR SUCCESS

NEW DELHI (AP) — B.J. Azad, India's minister for education, says he would aspire for honors in sports if he were to live his life again.

The reason is simple: "People love sportsmen; they suspect politicians," he said.

ANTI-DRAFT OFFICE — Jim Oliver, a young American who fled to Canada to avoid the U. S. draft, works in the Toronto office of the Anti-Draft Programme, an organization which aids draft dodgers. Turnau Opera In New Paltz Aug. 9-10

Three famous operatic highlights will be presented by the Turnau Opera Players at the State University College in New Paltz, on Aug. 9 and 10.

Complete scenes, fully staged with scenery and lavish costumes, from Faust, Rosenkavalier and Un Ballo in Maschera are scheduled.

Some of composer Verdi's most vigorous and vocally exciting music was written for the opera A Masked Ball. The story is based on a historical incident, the assassination of King Gustave III of Sweden at a midnight masquerade.

Judith Anthony, Richard Davis and Alan Baker will be featured in the selection.

Faust contains some of the best-known music in opera including the Jewel Song and Salut! Demure, chaste and pure.

These arias are in the third act of the performance which will be sung in its entirety by Anthony, Safine, Joan Fuerst-man, Lorine Buffington and Franklin Summers.

A change of pace is provided by the score of Richard Strauss' Rosenkavalier.

In this comedy by Hugo von Hofmannsthal, an aging Viennese princess and a merchant's daughter vie for the affections of a young man.

Carlo Toscano, Alexandra Hunt, Joan Fuerstman and Alan Baker will end the evening with a musicale finale to the opera.

Curtain is at 8:30 p. m. and tickets may be purchased at the door of the main auditorium of the college.

Puzzling Figures On Cost of Living

By JOHN CUNIFF
AT Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing is more certain to cause normally calm men to lose their breath, their rationality and control of their blood pressure than the subject of inflation or, as some say, the debasement of currency.

Tell a man with two children that today he must earn $14,282 a year to equal the purchasing power of $5,000 in 1939 and the animal response is immediate, ranging in pitch from a bleat to a roar.

This quivering enemy—victim of inflation might actually become irrational to learn, as the First National City Bank reported this week, that the annual rate of dollar depreciation last year was 2.7 per cent, a rate greater than that of Britain, France and Germany, and Iran and Greece as well.

To strike this man dumb, however, one need only inform him that the currency showing the least depreciation in the past 10 years, according to First National City, is not the dollar but the quetzal of Guatemala.

Since 1957 the quetzal reportedly has dropped in value just one-tenth of one per cent a year, or in dollar equivalent, just one penny in 10 years. The dollar has shrunk 16 cents in that time.

And, difficult as it is to believe, the First National City charts also show that the El Salvador, Venezuela, Bolivia and Thailand have maintained their values better than the dollar.

Give People Fits

Such statistics as these give fits to inflation-frantic people. And even Dr. Franz Pick, a money and gold expert whose continental accent becomes heavy with denunciation when he speaks of the subject, refers to the U.S. dollar as "the dollar."

Somehow, though, the figures just don't add up.

Seeking comfort, some slight relief was found in looking at the very worst, even though somebody else's headache doesn't necessarily cure the pain in another man's head.

In Brazil, to illustrate, 100 centavos of the year 1957 are now worth two centavos. In Argentina, 100 centavos in 1957 have been reduced to the purchasing power of six. And in Chile, 100 centavos now get you only 11.

But it still doesn't seem right. Raw figures can lie, especially when the raw figures themselves are little more than lies to begin with.

The $5,000-a-year man of 1939 isn't nearly three times as badly off today, even though he must earn $14,282. The fact is, he is earning it—and more. He's much better off.

In addition, all that extra money isn't going into the filling of basic needs. A lot more of it is going to pay for what the man of 1939 couldn't aspire to: more education, better health care, pensions, a second car, television, hi-fi.

In other words, depreciation of currency doesn't always mean a reduction in take-home pay, not if the take-home pay is rising faster than inflation, as it has recently in the United States.

Only Figures Available

Still the figures do look puzzling, and so First National City was queried. And from there it was determined that the statistics are, at best, the only figures available of a rather bad lot.

For one thing, the statistics on cost of living in industrial countries and less well developed nations are hardly comparable at all. The figure for Saudi Arabia, in fact, looked too good to be true. First National City tossed it out.

It seems that the most accurate statistics generally are maintained by the industrial nations. In some small countries, for example, cost of living indexes are really based on surveys made years ago and not updated for changes in living habits. They could have more inflation than they admit.

The figures also might be distorted by the simplicity of the standard of living, which admits of no change, or by the fixing of prices on the one major crop, or simply, by stagnation of the economy at a low standard of living.

An absence of inflation in a country with a bogged-down economy is nothing to brag about. And though the depreciation of money and inflation are something to holler about, it's nice to know that the noise is muffled a bit by the sound of a booming economy.

RECIPE FOR SUCCESS
NEW DELHI (AP) — B.J. Azad, India's minister for education, says he would aspire for honors in sports if he were to live his life again.

The reason is simple: "People love sportsmen; they suspect politicians," he said.

ANTI-DRAFT OFFICE — Jim Oliver, a young American who fled to Canada to avoid the U. S. draft, works in the Toronto office of the Anti-Draft Programme, an organization which aids draft dodgers. More than 10,000 young Americans are estimated to have come to Canada to flee the draft since 1963. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Turnau Opera In New Paltz Aug. 9-10

Three famous operatic highlights will be presented by the Turnau Opera Players at the State University College in New Paltz, on Aug. 9 and 10.

Complete scenes, fully staged with scenery and lavish costumes, from Faust, Rosenkavalier and Un Ballo in Maschera are scheduled.

Some of composer Verdi's most vigorous and vocally exciting music was written for the opera A Masked Ball. The story is based on a historical incident, the assassination of King man, Lorine Buffington and Gustave III of Sweden at a midnight masquerade.

A change of pace is provided by the score of Richard Strauss' Rosenkavalier.

In this comedy by Hugo von Hofmannsthal, an aging Viennese princess and a merchant's daughter vie for the affections of a young man.

Carlo Toscano, Alexandra Hunt, Joan Fuerstman and Alan Baker will end the evening with a musicale finale to the opera.

Curtain is at 8:30 p. m. and tickets may be purchased at the door of the main auditorium of the college.

Puzzling Figures On Cost of Living

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing is more certain to cause normally calm men to lose their breath, their rationality and control of their blood pressure than the subject of inflation or, as some say, the debasement of currency.

Tell a man with two children that today he must earn $14,282 a year to equal the purchasing power of $5,000 in 1939 and the animal response is immediate, ranging in pitch from a bleat to a roar.

This quivering enemy—victim of inflation might actually become irrational to learn, as the First National City Bank reported this week, that the annual rate or dollar depreciation last year was 2.7 per cent, a rate greater than that of Britain, France and Germany, and Iran and Greece as well.

To strike this man dumb, however, one need only inform him that the currency showing the least depreciation in the past 10 years, according to First National City, is not the dollar but the quetzal of Guatemala.

Since 1957 the quetzal reportedly has dropped in value just one-tenth of one per cent a year, or in dollar equivalent, just one penny in 10 years. The dollar has shrunk 16 cents in that time.

And, difficult as it is to believe, the First National City charts also show that the El Salvador colon, Venezuela Bolivar and Thailand have maintained their values better than the dollar.

Give People Fits

Such statistics as these give fits to inflation-frantic people. And even Dr. Franz Pick, a money and gold expert whose continental accent becomes heavy with denunciation when he speaks of the subject, refers to the U.S. dollar as "the enemy."

Somehow, though, the figures just don't add up.

Seeking comfort, some slight relief was found in looking at the very worst, even though somebody else's headache doesn't necessarily cure the pain in another man's head.

In Brazil, to illustrate, 100 centavos of the year 1957 are now worth two centavos. In Argentina, 100 centavos in 10 years have been reduced to the purchasing power of six. And in Chile, 100 centavos now get you only 11.

But it still doesn't seem right. Raw figures can lie, especially when the raw figures themselves are little more than lies to begin with.

The $5,000-a-year man of 1939 isn't nearly three times as badly off today, even though he must earn $14,282. The fact is, he is earning it—and more. He's much better off.

In addition, all that extra money isn't going into the filling of basic needs. A lot more of it is going to pay for what the man of 1939 couldn't aspire to: more education, better health care, pensions, a second car, television, hi-fi.

In other words, depreciation of currency doesn't always mean a reduction in take-home pay, not if the take-home pay is rising faster than inflation, as it has recently in the United States.

Only Figures Available

Still the figures do look puzzling, and so First National City was queried. And from there it was determined that the statistics available, at best, the only figures available of a rather bad lot.

For one thing, the statistics on cost of living in industrial countries and less well developed nations are hardly comparable at all. The figure for Saudi Arabia, in fact, looked too good to be true. First National City tossed it out.

It seems that the most accurate statistics generally are maintained by the industrial nations. In some small countries, for example, cost of living indexes are really based on surveys made years ago and not updated for changes in living habits. They could have more inflation than they admit.

The figures also might be distorted by the simplicity of the standard of living, which admits of no change, or by the fixing of prices on the one major crop, or simply, by stagnation of the economy at a low standard of living.

An absence of inflation in a country with a bogged-down economy is nothing to brag about. And though the depreciation of money and inflation are something to holler about, it's nice to know that the noise is muffled a bit by the sound of a booming economy.

Cyclist Killed

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A collision between an automobile and a motorcycle in East Rochester Wednesday took the life of Paul Harrison, 17, of suburban Irondequoit, who was driving the motorcycle.

Dear Abby

Tells Friends Everything

By ABIGAIL VANBUREN
(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a good man in many ways, but he has one terrible fault which I think is inexcusable. He "tells all" (and I do mean ALL) to his men friends.

I feel that we have no intimate husband-wife secrets like other married couples. My husband tells guys he hasn't even known very long everything that goes on between us. I know he has because he's told me so.

Knowing that all his men friends know all those intimate things about me, I can't face them. What is the matter with a man who acts like this? I have grown cold toward him, and we've only been married two years. Do you blame me?

DEAR COLD: COLD WIFE: Your husband is very immature or he thinks he's invented something. Your talkative husband is "telling all" to the wrong people. If he can't keep his mouth shut, he should lie down on a couch, and tell it to a psychiatrist.

DEAR ABBY: I am a recent divorcee, and as such, most men take me for an "easy mark." They all ask the same question, "What do you have to lose?"

I am in my late thirties, and I'm certainly not a child. But what is a good answer for these eager beavers? The word "NO" doesn't seem to mean anything to them. They want to know WHY! Please give me a good answer.

INDIANA READER: DEAR READER: Just say, "NO" — that's not my style, and don't engage in a debate with any of these clowns or you're sunk.

DEAR ABBY: Ben and I have been happily married for 4 years (no children yet) and I wouldn't think of being unfaithful. He says he trusts me, and he isn't the least bit jealous.

Well, the employees at my office recently got up a bowling team, and since I am a pretty good bowler, I joined. The other married bowlers always come alone and go home alone, and their spouses never come to "watch" them.

Ben and I each drive our own cars, but on my bowling night, Ben drives me to work. I go to the bowling alley with a co-worker, then Ben calls for me at the alley. He always comes so early that it's right at the beginning of the game, so he "waits" for me. While he waits, he watches every move I make. This affects my game and I go to pieces and can't bowl.

Once Ben had car trouble and didn't get there until after the game, and that was the only time I bowled my usual game, and our team won.

I can't tell Ben not to come so early or he'll think I'm hiding something. Yet when he watches me bowl I am so bad the team suffers. Please, please help me.

BOWLING BLUES: DEAR BLUES: Don't pussyfoot around. Tell Ben that you cannot bowl your best when he is watching you, so to please do you, and the team, a favor and come AFTER the game.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.S.: In selecting a career for yourself, choose a tough one. That way you won't have so much competition.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET, "HOW TO HAVE A LOVELY WEDDING," SEND $1.00 to Abby, box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069.

The Italians seem to favor the Napoleonic maxim that luck is on the side of the heaviest artillery, but on today's hand we had the artillery and a misfire at the crucial moment cost us the battle.

Our West opened a diamond at the first table and Forquet and Garrozzo of Italy worked their way up to a nice comfortable three clubs and made five.

Avarelli passed at the second table and Norman Kay and Edgar Kaplan reached five clubs in two bids.

West's diamond lead fell to dummy's ace and the eight of clubs lost to West's ace. The diamond return was ruffed and a trump led to dummy's queen.

South's next play was to ruff a third diamond. East discarded a low heart and Norman Kay noted that West, who had passed as dealer, had already shown up with six diamonds to the queen-10 and the ace of clubs. It looked as if East would hold the ace of spades, but Kay led a spade toward dummy anyway. West played the jack and dummy's queen held the trick. Sitting in an easy chair at home we can see the ace of spades in the West hand but Norman was sitting at a card table in France and no one showed him that ace.

He returned to his hand by ruffing the last diamond and, after a mature deliberation, decided that the heart finesse offered a better chance of success than a second spade lead. He tried it and went down one.

If anyone thinks for one moment that we intend this hand as unfavorable criticism of Kay and Kaplan, let us point out that their bidding was magnificent. Nine pairs out of 10 would have been in three no-trump, going down two or three tricks. They avoided this trap, reached the right contract and finally went down when Norman made the same play that almost any expert would have made.

Gamblers are divided into two classes: those who say they win consistently, and those who tell the truth. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Hay fever jokes are hilarious until YOU begin to sneeze.

The average American is said to sleep 7½ hours a night. The figure must have been determined by a bachelor, living six miles from the nearest highway, who had no television.

Our favorite barkeep has a food license, but they'd better not catch him serving fried chicken.

Dear Abby

Tells Friends Everything

By ABIGAIL VANBUREN
(1968 by Chicago Tribune
© N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a good man in many ways, but he has one terrible fault which I think is inexcusable. He "tells all" (and I do mean ALL) to his men friends.

I feel that we have no intimate husband-wife secrets like other married couples. My husband tells guys he hasn't even known very long everything that goes on between us. I know he has because he's told me so.

Knowing that all his men friends know all those intimate things about me, I can't face them.

What is the matter with a man who acts like this? I have grown cold toward him, and we've only been married two years. Do you blame me?

DEAR ABBY: I am a recent divorcee, and as such, most men take me for an "easy mark." They all ask the same question, "What do you have to lose?"

I am in my late thirties, and I'm certainly not a child. But what is a good answer for these eager beavers? The word "NO" doesn't seem to mean anything to them. They want to know WHY! Please give me a good answer.

INDIANA READER
DEAR READER: Just say, "NO — that's not my style," and don't engage in a debate with any of these clowns or you're sunk.

DEAR ABBY: Ben and I have been happily married for 4 years (no children yet) and I wouldn't think of being unfaithful. He says he trusts me, and he isn't the least bit jealous.

Well, the employees at my office recently got up a bowling team, and since I am a pretty good bowler, I joined. The other married bowlers always come alone and go home alone, and their spouses never come to "watch" them.

Ben and I each drive our own cars, but on my bowling night, Ben drives me to work. I go to the bowling alley with a co-worker, then Ben calls for me at the alley. He always comes so early that it's right at the beginning of the game, so he "waits" for me. While he waits, he watches every move I make. This affects my game and I go to pieces and can't bowl.

Once Ben had car trouble and didn't get there until after the game, and that was the only time I bowled my usual game, and our team won.

I can't tell Ben not to come so early or he'll think I'm hiding something. Yet when he watches me bowl I am so bad the team suffers. Please, please help me.

BOWLING BLUES
DEAR BLUES: Don't pussyfoot around. Tell Ben that you cannot bowl your best when he is watching you, so to please do you, and the team, a favor and come AFTER the game.

West's diamond lead fell to dummy's ace and the eight of clubs lost to West's ace. The diamond return was ruffed and a trump led to dummy's queen.

South's next play was to ruff a third diamond. East discarded a low heart and Norman Kay noted that West, who had passed as dealer, had already shown up with six diamonds to the queen-10 and the ace of clubs.

It looked as if East would hold the ace of spades, but Kay led a spade toward dummy anyway. West played the jack and dummy's queen held the trick. Sitting in an easy chair at home we can see the ace of spades in the West hand but Norman was sitting at a card table in France and no one showed him that ace.

He returned to his hand by ruffing the last diamond and, after mature deliberation, decided that the heart finesse offered a better chance of success than a second spade lead. He tried it and went down one.

If anyone thinks for one moment that we intend this hand as unfavorable criticism of Kay and Kaplan, let us point out that their bidding was magnificent. Nine pairs out of 10 would have been in three no-trump, going down two or three tricks. They avoided this trap, reached the right contract and finally went down when Norman made the same play that almost any expert would have made.

Convention Pros in Action

NEW YORK (UPI)—In old films on the late show the reporter races into the newsroom shouting: "Stop the press! I've got a scoop."

Anyone whose ideas of reporters and the way they go about their craft comes from this suspect source could have had a brilliant example of the way they actually work in real life by staying up early this morning to watch the voting in the Republican National Convention.

Before Richard Nixon grabbed the nomination in the first ballot at Miami Beach the alert Dan Rather of CBS-TV picked up a rumor that the Rockefeller and Reagan strategists were going to try to force the convention to adjourn the vote until today. The theory was they might have more time overnight to break the phalanx of Nixon delegates.

Cameras Close In
The cameras closed in as Sen. John Tower of Texas who believed it. In his glass enclosed anchor booth above the convention floor, Walter Cronkite took over the role of a city editor on a newspaper. He directed his floor staff to run down the rumor.

There followed an impressive demonstration of spotlight journalists at work. Bill Stout flagged down Rogers Morton, Nixon's floor manager. Mike Wallace burrowed into the Mississippi delegation and found they had been summoned to an immediate caucus with Reagan. Joe Benti buttonholed Frank Farley of New Jersey, a Nixon stalwart. The Pappas stopped Meade Alcorn, Rockefeller floor manager.

Professionals at Work
The cameras followed them. John Hart then got the complete genesis of the rumor from Rep. Clarke MacGregor of Minnesota. All the interviewing was sharp and to the point; the speed and savvy of the floor reporters highly professional. What it added up to was that the Nixon adherents firmly believed the story. The Reagan-Rockefeller solidly poo-pooed it. But the exercise lifted the dreary chronicling of every minute of the convention out of the tedium of taking too long to reach a foregone conclusion.

Incidentally although you never see them on the tube, good newspaper and news agency men operate with the same plan. The best thing to do when the next Hollywood cinema-type reporter shouts "Stop the press!" is laugh right into the face of your set.

The coverage of the convention by all three networks has been commendable, particularly the floor reporting of CBS Chancellor of NBC. But John and NBC were prisoners of their own format, i.e. the complete convention gavel-to-gavel. Chet Huntley and David Brinkley of NBC labored as valiantly as Cronkite to inject verbal adrenalin into our quadrennial tribal rites but the thing simply went on too long.

Wrapup Lacks Spark
ABC-TV was thus presented with a glittering opportunity to sweep the ratings with its nightly 90-minute wrapup of the day's events. Howard K. Smith anchored a workmanlike production which somehow lacked the spark that would have—as many in the industry believe it could have—completely demolished the opposition prime time. ABC had the advantage of lead-ins from such alternate and widely popular fare as "Cowboy in Africa," "Rat Patrol" and "Garrison's Gorillas."

It also had one of the delights of the convention coverage, the urbane, elegant duel of wits between the right wings' William Buckley Jr. and author-politician Gore Vidal who belongs to the liberals. Buckley said Wednesday night that he was convinced crime in the streets would be a bigger campaign issue than Vietnam.

ABC's coverage did improve Wednesday night after a choppy start Monday and it is no secret its summary formula was closely studied by the other networks. The 1968 conventions may be the last uncritically followed for every moment of their existence. The man who said: "The true essence of art is knowing what to leave out" wasn't referring to politics, but NBC and CBS might do worse than ponder his words for 1972.

Q — When did the U.S. Army adopt olive drab uniforms?
A — Traditional blue uniforms were discarded in favor of olive drab in 1902. Experience during the Spanish-American War had taught that blue is decidedly too good a target.

A — Any year the number of which is divisible by four is a leap year, excepting century years, which must be divisible by 400. The year 1968 is a leap year.

Convention Pros in Action

NEW YORK (UPI)—In old films on the late show the reporter races into the newsroom shouting: "Stop the press! I've got a scoop."

Anyone whose ideas of reporters and the way they go about their craft comes from this suspect source could have had a brilliant example of the way they actually work in real life by staying up early this morning to watch the voting in the Republican National Convention.

Before Richard Nixon grabbed the nomination in the first ballot at Miami Beach the alert Dan Rather of CBS-TV picked up a rumor that the Rockefeller and Reagan strategists were going to try to force the convention to adjourn the vote until today. The theory was they might have more time overnight to break the phalanx of Nixon delegates.

Cameras Close In

The cameras closed in as Rather checked the story with Sen. John Tower of Texas who believed it. In his glass enclosed anchor booth above the convention floor Walter Cronkite took over the role of a city editor on a newspaper. He directed his floor staff to run down the rumor.

There followed an impressive demonstration of twilight journalists at work. Bill Stout flagged down Rogers Morton, Nixon's floor manager. Mike Wallace burrowed into the Mississippi delegation and found they had been summoned to an immediate caucus with Reagan. Joe Benti buttonholed Frank Farley of New Jersey, a Nixon stalwart. Ike Pappas stopped Meade Alcorn, Rockefeller floor manager.

Professionals at Work

The cameras followed them. John Hart then got the complete genesis of the rumor from Rep. Clarke MacGregor of Minnesota. All the interviewing was sharp and to the point; the speed and savvy of the floor reporters highly professional. What it added up to was that the Nixon adherents firmly believed the story. The Reagan-Rockefellerers solidly poo-pooed the dreary chronicling of every minute of the convention out of the tedium of taking too long to reach a foregone conclusion.

Incidentally although you never see them on the tube, good newspaper and news agency men operate with the same plan. The best thing to do when the next Hollywood cinema-type reporter shouts "Stop the press!" is laugh right into the face of your set.

The coverage of the convention by all three networks has been commendable, particularly the floor reporting of John Chancellor of NBC. But CBS and NBC were prisoners of their own format, i.e. the complete convention gavel-to-gavel. Chet Huntley and David Brinkley of NBC labored as valiantly as Cronkite to inject verbal adrenalin into our quadrennial tribal rites but the thing simply went on too long.

Wrapup Lacks Spark

ABC-TV was thus presented with a glittering opportunity to sweep the ratings with its nightly 90-minute wrapup of the day's events. Howard K. Smith anchored a workmanlike production which somehow lacked the spark that would have—as many in the industry believe it could have—completely demolished the opposition prime time. ABC had the advantage of lead-ins from such alternate and widely popular fare as "Cowboy in Africa," "Rat Patrol" and "Garrison's Gorillas."

It also had one of the delights of the convention coverage, the urbane, elegant duel of wits between the right wings' William Buckley Jr., and author-politician Gore Vidal who belongs to the liberals. Buckley said Wednesday night that he was convinced crime in the streets would be a bigger campaign issue than Vietnam. ABC's coverage did improve Wednesday night after a choppy start Monday and it is no secret its summary formula was closely studied by the other networks. The 1968 conventions may be the last uncritically followed for every moment of their existence. The man who said: "The true essence of art is knowing what to leave out" wasn't referring to politics, but NBC and CBS might do worse than ponder his words for 1972.

4,000 Allies Move To Halt Red Threat

By JACK WALSH
SAIGON (UPI)—An invasion force of 4,000 soldiers has swept into the A Shau Valley to stifle a growing Communist threat to the allied war bastion at Da Nang, military spokesmen said today.

The drive, underway for four days, was the second time U.S. and South Vietnamese troops had entered the valley to stop the flow of Communist soldiers and supplies through A Shau into the northern war front.

"We are going in there to destroy everything we can find," said Maj. Gen. Melvin Zais. "We are spoiling for a fight."

The first invasion in April cost the allies 100 helicopters shot down in the opening days. This time Communist resistance was light.

Military spokesmen said American B-52 bombers had dropped nearly five million pounds of bombs onto Communist hideouts in the valley since Sunday. U.S. fighter-bombers logged 127 missions there.

Discover Trucks
American soldiers uncovered four 2½-ton trucks hidden in the valley Wednesday, evidence the Communists had again been using the stronghold as an infiltration route toward coastal Da Nang and Hue.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander, called the offensive a "spoiling action" aimed at breaking up the fresh Communist buildup in the valley.

At the same time, spokesmen announced the lowest American war casualties since the final week in 1967—171 killed and 1,050 wounded last week. The 899 Communists killed was the lowest figure in that category in 16 months, the command said.

Military sources said the 7,000 Communist defenders of the A Shau Valley were apparently withdrawing into nearby Laos from the allied show of force. UPI correspondent Raymond Wilkinson reported light Communist resistance in the valley, 60 miles west of Da Nang and 360 miles north of Saigon.

Helicopters Downed
Groundfire shot down four helicopters from the armada that carried the raid into the valley Sunday. Two others were damaged.

Spokesmen said 15 Communists were killed in the first four days, with six Americans dead and 12 wounded by snipers. The raid, dubbed Operation Somerset Plain, was not announced until today for security reasons.

Zais, commander of the thrust, said the Communists had "substantially restocked the valley" with trucks and supplies since U.S. troops swept through it in 29 days in April. Government troops found one arms cache.

The valley, a 25-mile-long jungled groove through rugged mountains along the Laotian border, was captured by Communist soldiers in March 1966, and built into a major outlet for the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Bombers Hit Valley
The invasion followed a week of the first B-52 bomber strikes into the valley since April.

At the same time, U.S. airborne troops began a drive to the valley along Communist Road 548A leading toward the coast and Da Nang. There were no reports on their progress.

In another development, a terrorist threw a grenade into a U.S. military police jeep in Saigon Wednesday, killing one American soldier and wounding another. The terrorist escaped.

U.S., Communist Casualties Drop

SAIGON (AP)—Combat casualties among American and enemy forces decreased again last week, the U.S. Command reported, continuing to reflect the lull in major ground fighting in the Vietnam war.

The number of South Vietnamese troops reported killed increased slightly over the total for the week before, while the number of wounded decreased.

The U.S. Command said 171 Americans were killed in action last week, compared with 193 a week earlier. The number of wounded last week was 1,050, down slightly from 1,085 the week before. Of the wounded last week, 563 required hospitalization.

The American command reported 899 of the enemy killed last week, the lowest weekly total reported since the first week of January 1967. But the enemy casualty total each week is usually increased considerably in the following week's report as ground sweeps turn up more bodies.

The South Vietnamese command said 250 government soldiers were killed last week compared with 243 a week earlier. The wounded totaled 738; there were 781 the previous week. The number of missing or captured last week was 10, compared with 25 the previous week.

The U.S. Command said the casualty report raised to 26,461 the number of Americans killed in action in Vietnam from Jan. 1, 1961, through Aug. 3, while the total wounded rose to 166,180. The command said 1,187 Americans are missing in action.

U.S. Will Release More Hanoi Prisoners

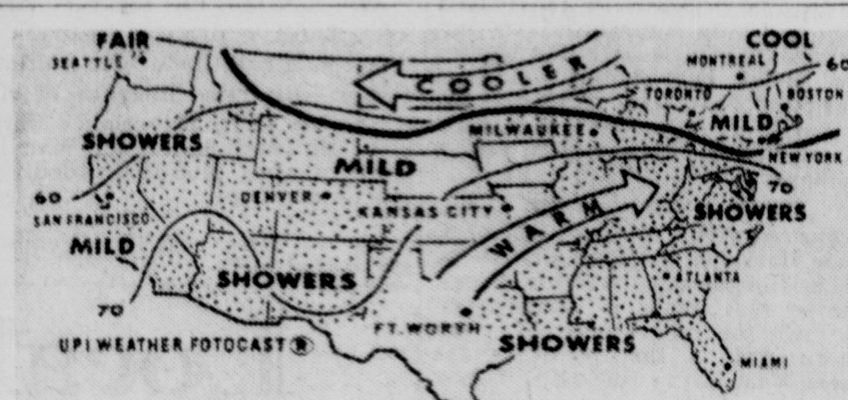

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States decided to release a large number of North Vietnamese prisoners to encourage Hanoi to free more of the hundreds of U.S. military personnel it is detaining.

State Department officials said today arrangements are being worked out with the North Vietnamese for the return in the very near future of the 14 North Vietnamese naval personnel designated for release by U.S. negotiators in Paris Wednesday.

This group, which fell into U.S. Navy hands July 1, 1966, would be the largest group the United States has freed at one time since the Vietnam War began. From time to time, South Vietnam in coordination with the United States has released somewhat larger groups of North Vietnamese prisoners captured during land engagements. The North Vietnamese sailors were taken by U.S. authorities in a naval engagement between three North Vietnamese PT boats and U.S. ships in international waters off the Gulf of Tonkin.

North Vietnam has released small numbers of U.S. prisoners in gestures much appreciated by U.S. officials. But on the whole Hanoi has been uncooperative in regularizing prisoner exchanges by refusing to supply a list of the Americans in its hands.

'Card Sender' Indicted by Jury

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—an Albany man has been indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of mailing a threatening postcard to President Johnson.

Viet GIs on Nixon Equally Divided

By BARRY KRAMER
SAIGON (AP)—U.S. troops interviewed in Vietnam appear to be evenly divided—for and against—the presidential aspirations of Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon.

"I would rather have seen Rockefeller get it. I think he would be a better candidate," said PFC Robert Goo of Dayton, Ohio.

"But," he added, "Most of the guys are for Nixon."

Has the Experience
"He's a good man, he's got the experience," said Spec. 5 James Simon, 20, of Lansing, Mich.

"I intend to vote for Nixon," said Maj. Paul Roberts of Las Vegas, Nev. "He would be a good man to follow Johnson and to end the war. I don't think there's any doubt that the next president will end the war."

Roberts added: "Nixon's knowledge of foreign affairs is more complete than any of the other candidates. He's not an inspirational leader, but his integrity is not in question."

Nixon is not without his detractors among the military. "I'm a little disappointed with the Republicans," said John Front of Britton, S.D. "Two years ago there were six or seven Republican possibilities and all of a sudden we're back to the same old thing—Nixon. I'm just not enthused about it. I'd rather see Rockefeller."

"I think he's a pretty good Republican candidate," said Navy Yeoman 3C Steven Weck of Burlington, Iowa, "but I don't think he'll win the election."

"I would rather have seen someone else," said Air Force

M. Sgt. Richard C. Jones of Orlando, Fla. "Nixon never was very strong, but maybe he has gained strength in the past few years."

Thinks Nixon Best
Lt. Joseph A. Trevino of Pittsburgh, Pa. thinks Nixon is the best candidate the Republicans could have chosen, "and I think he's probably going to get the presidency. He's a man with experience."

"He's the best of the Republicans," said Spec. 5 Phillip Shleman of Dallas, Tex. "I think it will be him in the election."

"I don't think Nixon will win. Rockefeller might have had a chance," said Lt. John Van Mol of Knoxville, Tenn. "The American people are not being given a real choice this election."

Capt. Robert Engstrom of Worcester, Mass., said he would have preferred Rockefeller. "I cannot say I am delighted with the choice of Nixon. I would prefer to see a more liberal candidate."

Letton added, however: "I am undecided whether to vote for him. That depends on his running mate and whom the Democrats nominate."

"Some more progressive views are needed on America's problems—including Vietnam—than anything Nixon is likely to come up with," he said.

Depends on Mate

"Nixon is probably the best chance the GOP has," said Lt. Thomas A. Letton of Knoxville, Tenn. "Some of the other candidates were probably just as good, but Nixon has more of a name because of his record as vice president under Eisenhower."

Letton added, however: "I am undecided whether to vote for him. That depends on his running mate and whom the Democrats nominate."

4,000 Allies Move To Halt Red Threat

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—An invasion force of 4,000 soldiers has swept into the A Shau Valley to stifle a growing Communist threat to the allied war bastion at Da Nang, military spokesmen said today.

The drive, underway for four days, was the second time U.S. and South Vietnamese troops had entered the valley to stop the flow of Communist soldiers and supplies through A Shau into the northern war front.

"We are going in there to destroy everything we can find," said Maj. Gen. Melvin Zais. "We are spoiling for a fight."

The first invasion in April cost the allies 100 helicopters shot down in the opening days. This time Communist resistance was light.

Military spokesmen said American B52 bombers had dropped nearly five million pounds of bombs onto Communist hideouts in the valley since Sunday. U.S. fighter-bombers logged 127 missions there.

Discover Trucks

American soldiers uncovered four 2½-ton trucks hidden in the valley Wednesday, evidence the Communists had again been using the stronghold as an infiltration route toward coastal Da Nang and Hue.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander, called the offensive a "spoiling action" aimed at breaking up the fresh Communist buildup in the valley.

At the same time, spokesmen announced the lowest American war casualties since the final week in 1967—171 killed and 1,050 wounded last week. The 899 Communists killed was the lowest figure in that category in 16 months, the command said.

Military sources said the 7,000 Communist defenders of the A Shau Valley were apparently withdrawing into nearby Laos from the allied show of force.

UPI correspondent Raymond Wilkinson reported light Communist resistance in the valley, 60 miles west of Da Nang and 360 miles north of Saigon.

Helicopters Downed

Groundfire shot down four helicopters from the armada that carried the raid into the valley Sunday. Two others were damaged.

Spokesmen said 15 Communists were killed in the first four days, with six Americans dead and 12 wounded by snipers. The raid, dubbed Operation Somerset Plain, was not announced until today for security reasons.

Zais, commander of the thrust, said the Communists had "substantially restocked the valley" with trucks and supplies since U.S. troops swept through it in 29 days in April. Government troops found one arms cache.

The valley, a 25-mile-long jungled groove through rugged mountains along the Laotian border, was captured by Communist soldiers in March 1966, and built into a major outlet for the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Bombers Hit Valley

The invasion followed a week of the first B52 bomber strikes into the valley since April.

At the same time, U.S. airborne troops began a drive to the valley along Communist Road 548A leading toward the coast and Da Nang. There were no reports on their progress.

In another development, a terrorist threw a grenade into a U.S. military police jeep in Saigon Wednesday, killing one American soldier and wounding another. The terrorist escaped.

U.S., Communist Casualties Drop

SAIGON (AP)—Combat casualties among American and enemy forces decreased again last week, the U.S. Command reported, continuing to reflect the lull in major ground fighting in the Vietnam war.

The number of South Vietnamese troops reported killed increased slightly over the total for the week before, while the number of wounded decreased.

The U.S. Command said 171 Americans were killed in action last week, compared with 193 a week earlier. The number of wounded last week was 1,050, down slightly from 1,085 the week before. Of the wounded last week, 563 required hospitalization.

The American command reported 899 of the enemy killed last week, the lowest weekly total reported since the first week of January 1967. But the enemy casualty total each week is usually increased considerably in the following week's report as ground sweeps turn up more bodies.

The South Vietnamese command said 250 government soldiers were killed last week compared with 243 a week earlier. The wounded totaled 738; there were 781 the previous week. The number of missing or captured last week was 10, compared with 25 the previous week.

The U.S. Command said the casualty report raised to 26,461 the number of Americans killed in action in Vietnam from Jan. 1, 1961, through Aug. 3, while the total wounded rose to 166,180. The command said 1,187 Americans are missing in action since the Vietnam War began.

U.S. Will Release More Hanoi Prisoners

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States decided to release a large number of North Vietnamese prisoners to encourage Hanoi to free more of the hundreds of U.S. military personnel it is detaining.

State Department officials said today arrangements are being worked out with the North Vietnamese for the return in the very near future of the 14 North Vietnamese naval personnel designated for release by U.S. negotiators in Paris Wednesday.

This group, which fell into U.S. Navy hands July 1, 1966, would be the largest group the United States has freed at one time since the Vietnam War began.

From time to time, South Vietnam in coordination with the United States has released somewhat larger groups of North Vietnamese prisoners captured during land engagements. The North Vietnamese sailors were taken by U.S. authorities in a naval engagement between three North Vietnamese PT boats and U.S. ships in international waters off the Gulf of Tonkin.

North Vietnam has released small numbers of U.S. prisoners in gestures much appreciated by U.S. officials.

But on the whole Hanoi has been uncooperative in regularizing prisoner exchanges by refusing to supply a list of the Americans in its hands.

Viet GIs on Nixon Equally Divided

By BARRY KRAMER

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. troops interviewed in Vietnam appear to be evenly divided—for and against—the presidential aspirations of Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon.

"I would rather have seen Rockefeller get it. I think he would be a better candidate," said PFC. Robert Goo of Dayton, Ohio.

"But," he added, "Most of the guys are for Nixon."

Has the Experience

"He's a good man, he's got the experience," said Spec. 5 James Simon, 20, of Lansing, Mich.

"I intend to vote for Nixon," said Maj. Paul Roberts of Las Vegas, Nev. "He would be a good man to follow Johnson and to end the war. I don't think there's any doubt that the next president will end the war."

Roberts added: "Nixon's knowledge of foreign affairs is more complete than any of the other candidates. He's not an inspirational leader, but his integrity is not in question."

Nixon is not without his detractors among the military.

"I'm a little disappointed with the Republicans," said John Front of Britton, S.D. "Two years ago there were six or seven Republican possibilities and all of a sudden we're back to the same old thing—Nixon. I'm just not enthused about it, I'd rather see Rockefeller."

"I think he's a pretty good Republican candidate," said Navy Yeoman 3C, Steven Wedeck of Burlington, Iowa, "but I don't think he'll win the election."

"I would rather have seen someone else," said Air Force

Body Recovered

LAKE LUZERNE, N.Y. (AP)—The body of a 15-year-old girl was recovered Wednesday from the Sacandaga Reservoir a day after she had been reported missing.

Yvonne Guilbault of Albany last was seen alone in a 15-foot power boat late Tuesday afternoon. The boat later was found empty and circling on the lake near this Adirondack community.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Crouse.

M. Sgt. Richard C. Jones of Orlando, Fla. "Nixon never was very strong, but maybe he has gained strength in the past few years."

Thinks Nixon Best

Lt. Joseph A. Trevino of Pittsburgh, Pa. thinks Nixon is the best candidate the Republicans could have chosen. "and I think he's probably going to get the presidency. He's a man with experience."

"He's the best of the Republicans," said Spec. 5 Phillip Shleman of Dallas, Tex. "I think it will be him in the election."

"I don't think Nixon will win. Rockefeller might have had a chance," said Lt. John Van Mol of Knoxville, Tenn. "The American people are not being given a real choice this election."

Capt. Robert Engstrom of Worcester, Mass., said he would have preferred Rockefeller. "I cannot say I am delighted with the choice of Nixon. I would prefer to see a more liberal candidate."

"Some more progressive views are needed on America's problems—including Vietnam—than anything Nixon is likely to come up with," he said.

Depends on Mate

"Nixon is probably the best chance the GOP has," said Lt. Thomas A. Leeton of Knoxville, Tenn. "Some of the other candidates were probably just as good, but Nixon has more of a name because of his record as vice president under Eisenhower."

Leeton added, however: "I am undecided whether to vote for him. That depends on his running mate and whom the Democrats nominate."
